Teutons Prepare for Struggle to the End; Wild Scenes at Bier of Victim

BY GEORGE SELDES
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright Chicago Tribune]

BERLIN, June 25.—Republican and monarchist Germany met at the cross-roads today. Between them lay the body of Walter Rathenau who loved and served the German republic and who died like a soldier, his body torn with bits of a hand grenade and bullets.

This body which tomorrow will lie in the Reichstag and over which funeral orations will be preached will become the symbol for a coming war unto death between those who follow the ex-Kaiser and those who follow the democracy.

Whether the coming war be one of more bloodshed and violence—the monarchists who killed Rathenau openly announced the anniversary of the Versailles treaty would be celebrated with anti-republican action throughout the land—soon will become known. Already the government has taken military measures. Certain it is that from today the weak, backboneless compromising attitude with monarchists has gone.

WIRTH'S ANNOUNCEMENT

So Wirth announced today when with bowed head and tears in his eyes he told the Reichstag, "this is the end; this is the end. We must go another way." Later, he added, "He was my friend. I knew him as no other. Rathenau is dead, but the German republic must live.

It was a wild, mad, terrible scene in the Reichstag today under flags half-mast when great groups of men gathered to pay their first respect to the dead leader. Some expressed sorrow and others cried revenge. Rathenau's chair was draped with crepe and his desk had white roses with oak leaves.

The Reichstag's president, Loebe, had asked the members of the Nationalist party to stay away for this is the party which represents the ex-Kaiser, and they are all reactionaries, all old officers, all junkers and all hired assassins, working for restoration of the monarchy. But the Nationalists came.

HELFFERICH EXECRATED

Their speaker, Karl Helfferich, was among them, hiding amidst the group for a while. But the Socialists spied him.

"There goes the murderer; out with him. Down with the monarchists," they cried.

Loebe came in with Wirth. For a moment there was silence. Then with one accord the Reichstag members burst into shouts: "Beware, Wirth; beware, Chancellor. You are next on the murder list." Wirth, you must act now or lose

THREE DEAD AS AUTO IS OVERTURNED

Pickwick Stage Skids and Falls Over a Forty-Foot Embankment

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

REDDING, June 25.—Three persons were killed when the southbound Pickwick automobile stage plunged over a steep grade on a sharp curve near Sims, forty miles north of here on the State highway this afternoon. The large car, containing ten passengers, skidded, turned over and fell top downward over a forty-foot embankment.

Leslie Feney and his five months old baby of Anaheim, were pinned under the stage and killed, as was an unidentified man. Mrs. Feney escaped with a badly sprained back. Charles Caldwell of Toronto was seriously injured. They were taken to a hospital at Dunsmuir.

Others suffered minor injuries.

Gun Powder Fire Endangers Utica Summer Colony

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

UTICA (N. Y.) June 25.—Three barges filled with gun powder caught fire at Sylvan Beach early this evening and, fanned by a stiff breeze, the flames shot 200 feet in the air with each explosion, spreading to cottages at Verona Beach. The entire summer colony there is threatened by the flames. Rome and Oneida have sent fire apparatus to the scene.

DISABLED VETERANS MEET

San Francisco Ready to Honor Ex-Soldiers Who Hold Convention Starting Today

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—In Pullmans and box cars, in impressive automobiles and smaller and more popular motor vehicles, former fighters of the United States forces arrived in San Francisco today to attend the annual convention, opening tomorrow, of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

The "heroes' special," bringing 240 men, mostly from Ohio, Illinois and Minnesota, arrived early tonight. Eleven heroes, designated by their States as the greatest from their respective commonwealths as candidates for the "living hall of fame," which will be a convention feature, were aboard.

NATIONAL CHAPLAIN ARRIVES

Rabbi Michael Aaronsohn of Hamilton, O., the "blind chaplain," also was one of the hero special's passengers. He is national chaplain of the disabled veterans. His eyesight was shot away in the Argonne.

New Orleans delegates came in two box cars, fixed up army fashion and reminiscent of "Chevaux 8 hommes 40." The cars were fitted with bunks and cooking appliances. The Louisiana veterans said travel was slow, but not uncomfortable. The Los Angeles delegation arrived 112 strong on the steamers Yale and Humboldt.

Col. Charles R. Forbes, head of the United States Veterans' Bureau at Washington, arrived on the Overland Limited.

CITY DECORATED

The veterans found the city decked for their coming, the light standards which lately burgeoned with the gay Shrine colors now bright with flags and white and blue banners bearing the shield of the disabled veterans. Special services in all churches of San Francisco greeted the former warriors today.

Mayor Rolph tomorrow will ask merchants to close their shops for the parade the following day. Tomorrow will be Elks' day and the buddies will be taken on sight-seeing tours by members of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks and to special entertainments at the Letterman General and Marine hospitals, where the veterans will meet again those of their buddies who are not on their feet for the convention.

Luncheon at noon in the open-air amphitheater at Golden Gate Park and a smoker tomorrow night under the auspices of the United Spanish War Veterans are the features of Monday's program.

FATAL ARIZONA ACCIDENT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WINKELMAN (Ariz.) June 25. J. Fellerman, driving from Globe to Winkelman, took one of the curves at too high a rate of speed. The car left the grade and rolled over upon the driver. E. A. Silverton arrived soon thereafter and managed to pull Fellerman from under the automobile and then took him to the Winkelman Hospital. His injuries were such that he died soon thereafter.

POLITICIANS WAKING UP

Will President Run Again?

Possible Nominees for 1924 Getting Into Limelight in Both Parties

Hughes Looming as Biggest Figure Should Harding Decide Not to Run

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Possible nominees for the Presidency in 1924 are beginning to get the limelight in both major parties and in the outer shadows from which a third party may emerge.

Whether President Harding will be a candidate for renomination is a matter of considerable speculation among Republican politicians. Up to this time it has been assumed that he would seek a second term, but some of the confidants of the President have been heard of late to express doubts on the subject.

The factional fights in the Republican party and the matter of patronage are said to have got on Harding's nerves and to have caused the President to ejaculate in a moment of irritation that four years in the White House would be about all he could endure. The party leaders are confident, however, that in due time the President will become a candidate for renomination.

That there will be other candidates of importance for the Republican nomination is not doubted, the men whose names figure chiefly in political speculation being Secretary of State Hughes, Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Senators Capper, Kansas; Watson, Indiana; Lenroot, Wisconsin; Johnson, California; Beveridge of Indiana, Frank O. Lowden of Illinois and Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania.

If Hughes should consent to become a candidate there is no doubt that he would be a formidable contestant. He is the big man of the Harding administration and his success in handling foreign affairs and the statecraft he displayed in the armament conference have redeemed the loss of prestige he suffered from his defeat for the Presidency in 1916. Hughes has come back, everybody hereabouts says.

LIGHT BEER AND WINE

The light wine and beer advocates see in Secretary Weeks a champion to lead them to victory in the campaign to liberalize the Volstead Act. Beveridge and Pinchot have come out for the renomination of President Harding. Gov. Miller might be a candidate, but only in the event of his re-election this year. Senator Capper denies he has "any intention of seeking the presidency and never will have; Mr. Harding has made a good president and I will support him in 1924."

William Randolph Hearst is regarded as a probable contender for the Democratic nomination and a formidable one if he should be elected governor of New York. Senator Pomerene, Ohio, is certain to be a prominent aspirant if re-elected in November. Cox, despite his disastrous defeat two years ago, has intimated a desire to run again and McAdoo is reported to be busy already lining up the influence that will control the delegates to the Democratic national convention. Bryan is yet to be heard from.

If neither the Republican nor the Democratic nomination should be sufficiently progressive to suit the radicals, a third party is likely to materialize and to constitute considerably more of a factor than any third party in this generation except in 1912.

Senator La Follette, Wisconsin, has championed the aim of organized labor to overcome the Supreme Court decision that unions are suable and is widely discussed as a logical leader of a radical party. The Senator is preparing to force the issue by proposing a constitutional amendment providing that Congress may over-ride a decision holding a law unconstitutional.

CITY BLOCK DESTROYED

Many Cabarets Wiped Out

Liquors and Wines Burn; Battle in Vain With the Flames

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CALEXICO, June 25.—Property valued at more than $365,000 was destroyed early today at Mexicali, just across the Mexican border, when fire of undetermined origin razed nearly an entire city block.

The Lower California Commercial Company was the heaviest loser with about $150,000 in furnishings and equipment gone into smoke along with about $175,000 in liquor stored in the warehouse that was burned.

A night watchman discovered the blaze about 4 a.m. and help was rushed from the American side of the boundary line when an alarm was sounded.

THOUSANDS VIEW BLAZE

Thousands in scanty attire soon lined the streets to watch the blue and green flames leap toward the sky as fine imported liquor and wines totaling thousands of gallons caught fire in the storehouse. Half of the block composed of saloons, wholesale liquor houses and cabarets fronting direct on the international line and not more than 300 feet away instantly caught fire in the strong wind blowing and was soon a mass of swirling, hissing flames as barrel after barrel of spirits caught, bursted and ran in rivulets of hissing fire in all directions.

The country for miles and miles around was lighted with gorgeous-colored reflections in the sky while owners and patrons of the popular resorts stood with saddened faces gazing at the loss while the fire departments of both Mexicali and Calexico battled in vain with the flames because an accident in Coachella Valley to the Holton Power Company wires cut off practically all water pressure at the time the fire started.

MANY GET DRUNK

Liquors of all sorts were seized and carried out by the crowd and this augmented the already confused situation when many became drunk.

"Why not let the mdrink it?" was the retort of the owners, "it would only be burned anyway."

Rushing to the aid of the Mexicali fire department, the Calexico fire department, under Fire Chief W. C. Hinckley, did valiant work in preventing the spread of the flames to other buildings. Sparks and cinders from the conflagration were blown clear across Calexico outside the north city limits and the fact that a general fire on this side of the line was averted seemed a miracle.

The Lower California Commercial Company and Al Casner, pioneer American resident of Mexicali, were the heaviest losers. Casner was owner of the buildings occupied by the company, valued at $40,000. The company itself had added only recently $30,000 improvements. Casner carried $16,000 insurance.

Besides the buildings, he lost many personal effects and souvenirs of past revolutions of great value. The commercial company estimates its loss at $150,000 personal effects uncovered by insurance and $175,000 in liquor stored in its warehouse.

Only two days ago twenty carloads of liquor were removed from the warehouse because of insurance rates, based on a monthly invoice, being raised 10 per cent.

CURRENCY IS BURNED

Four thousand dollars in American currency was burned in the safe of the Commerical Company when it blew open. The safe also contained $2000 in silver. Jewelry also kept in the safe and valued highly because of the antique Spanish design and settings will be a total loss. The jewelry was owned by Heraclio Ochoa, presi-

EVIDENCE CUT AND DRIED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HERRIN (Ill.) June 25.—The Coroner's investigation got under way early this afternoon and adjourned to permit the jurors to attend funeral services for Joe Pichovich, 22 years old, Lithuanian union miner, slain in the skirmish Wednesday which preceded the massacre of nonunion men Thursday morning, June 22.

The first witness heard was William A Thornton, a Marion, Ill., policeman.

"You don't know who did the shooting, do you?" asked Coroner William McCowan?

"No, sir," replied the witness. "I don't know anything about it."

That was the substance of his testimony and of those who followed.

COL. HUNTER CALLED

Col. Samuel H. Hunter, Illinois National Guard, who has been here for ten days, was the next witness. Col. Hunter told of being held up by mine guards and taken to Mine Superintendent C. K. MacDowell of the strip mine of the Southern Illinois Coal Company last Sunday night.

A member of the jury asked Col. Hunter: "Is it true, colonel, that they had machine guns mounted?"

"I searched the mine property three times and failed to find any," Col. Hunter replied.

"What did they have," Col. Hunter was asked.

"Shotguns, rifles and ammunition," Hunter replied.

J. H. Henderson said he was inside the power plant of the Coal Belt Railway between the mine and Herrin when he heard shots Thursday morning and later heard that bodies had been found in the woods.

"Of course," interjected the corner, "as to how they got killed, you don't know anything about that, do you?"

"No, sir," said the witness.

Elsa Cash and Albert Strom, undertakers, told of the bringing in of nineteen bodies and the finding of six men in the cemetery, two of whom later died.

Strom said he got three bodies from the road east of Herrin and eight from the power plant woods. The body of McDowell, the superintendent, was found a mile east of the woods, the undertaker said. In another woods four more bodies were found, the witness declared. They agreed that all died of gunshot wounds.

LLOYD GEORGE IS FACING OVERTHROW OF CABINET

Premier's Irish Policy Blamed for Death of Field Marshal; Crisis Expected Today

BY ARTHUR S. DRAPER
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, June 25.—Lloyd George's government faces a political crisis, the importance of which none may estimate at present, when the House of Commons meets tomorrow only a few hours after the body of Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson is laid at rest in St. Paul's Cathedral.

The Premier's position has been none too secure for several months, but now its fondest admirers admit its really precarious situation, for the whole country has been profoundly moved by Wilson's assassination, and the "die hards" who have been fighting a losing parliamentary battle are greatly strengthened.

LLOYD GEORGE SILENT

Keen political judges anticipate a move on the part of Lloyd George, who has remained silent since the field marshal was slain by two young Irishmen who undoubtedly excuse their crime on the ground that it was a political measure.

Tomorrow morning London will be given over to mourning, but in the afternoon the struggle will begin which may mean the political life of one or all members of the government. Sir Edward Shortt, Home Secretary, will be the target of the government's critics, although their real fire will be aimed at Lloyd George and his policy of handling the Irish problem.

The Premier has a body of supporters who have never deserted him, however great the criticism from the other side of the House, and the majority of that group will almost certainly stand by him in this most serious crisis. He should have a parliamentary majority and it appears certain he will demand a vote of confidence, for no government could afford such a challenge to go by default.

ATTACK IRISH POLICY

All sorts of motives will animate the critics of the government. There are those who hate his Irish policy, his negotiations with Collins and Griffith, his conciliatory attitude toward the south and the withdrawal of troops from that section. There are others who have no sympathy with the Premier's foreign policy, his conversations with the Russians, his arguments with the French government and his view of the methods to be taken regarding Germany. The "die-hard" group can hardly expect to beat the government in a division, but they believe they can exert enough pressure to make the government alter its Irish policy.

Lloyd George's greatest difficulty will be to satisfy the House and through it the country that his handling of the Irish situation has justified itself. Statements which have been made in Dublin since the assassination have not helped to make the Premier's task any easier. Chaotic conditions continue in Ulster, particularly in Belfast, where reprisal follows reprisal. There is no question, but that gunmen in the fight between Catholics and Protestants are killing and wounding, according to order and not indiscriminately as might be judged from reports. Tomorrow debate may bring out the fact that both sides carry heavy responsibility for crimes now being committed on the frontier.

Collins's provisional government will be attacked tomorrow and these attacks will have their reaction in Ireland, where the Republicans are in a desperate position after the recent election. The government has been holding discussions almost continuously since Wilson's assassination and military leaders have been called into conference on several occasions, the natural deduction being that some sort of military rule will be introduced into Ulster soon. That order may be restored through the constabulary seems beyond hope, for bitterness between the rival factions is bound to be more intense than ever.

HEAT KILLS THREE MEN IN DESERT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, June 25.—Three men are reported to have died as the result of heat and thirst in the desert near Amos yesterday. One victim was brought to Brawley early this morning by a freight train crew and died shortly after his arrival. According to the train crew, two men in an automobile found an old prospector nearly dead for lack of water in the desert. They gave him their supply and were later stalled by a dry radiator. Both are reported to have drunk of an arsenic spring they finally reached. The prospector failed to survive on the water given him. Coroner Peterson is still in the desert investigating the case. The names of the victims are unknown here, as the man brought to Brawley was unable to talk and had nothing to reveal his identity.

Irish Election Shows Majority Favors Treaty

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DUBLIN, June 24.—After nearly eight days the tellers have completed the count for election of members of the provisional parliament. The result shows the pro-treaty members will total fifty-eight, anti-treaty, thirty-six, while labor has seventeen seats. The farmers have seven and the independents ten.

On the question of ratification of the treaty the new House will be divided, ninety-one for, to thirty-six against. Recapitulation of the popular vote shows 496,231 for, and 118,507 against the treaty.

While the labor members are pro-treaty, yet they disapproved of the draft of the Irish constitution, the adoption of which is the most important task of the provisional parliament.

FRENCHMEN LIKE PROHIBITION

Wine Maker Declares Business Has Increased Under the Volstead Act

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Are the French winemakers downhearted as a result of prohibition in America? Paul Dubonnet arriving today on the Steamship La France answered with an emphatic negative and inferred that the present enforcement was rather a boon to the business.

"The year after the Eighteenth Amendment went into effect," he said, "our house lost six million francs. Since then we have made up this amount and have greatly increased our business over what it was before prohibition by our shipments to Cuba and Canada." And then M. Dubonnet smiled.

SUN YAT SEN ELIMINATED

Desert Southern Leader

Peking Government Rapidly Gaining Strength in Canton Territory

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PEKING, June 25.—Latest advices from Canton report Sun Yat Sen, defeated southern leader, detained aboard a gunboat there, with his navy and the Kwang Tung provincial assembly definitely aligned against him and Gen. Chen Chiung-Ming's troops in full control of the city. Sun's forces in Kiangsi province, on which he pinned his flickering hopes for restoration, are said to be disorganized, and looting the territory over which they are scattered.

Official opinion in Peking is that Sun Yat Sen, as the leader of a possible obstructionist movement against the reunion of China, has been permanently eliminated. The government now is considering what disposition to make of him.

LI MAGNANIMOUS

President Li Yuan Hung is disposed to be magnanimous and invite Sun to Peking to assist in the reunification program. He believes the southern chief's presence would give great moral support to the united government in view of the immense following in Southern China he formerly had at his command. President Li also argues that Sun's alignment with the Peking administration would strengthen the union government's cause among the Cantonese leader's friends in foreign lands, including America.

Other tentative proposals are that Sun Yat Sen be permitted to retire to his home in Shanghai, or that he carry out his previously announced intention of visiting the United States.

WILL BE FORCED OUT

No one in authority here doubts that Sun eventually will be forced to formally resign under increasing pressure from Chen Chiung Ming, his conqueror. Both the Kwangtung Provincial Assembly and the leaders of his naval forces have urged Sun to take this step, in the interest of a united China.

Gen. Wu Pei-Fu, who recently decisively defeated the Manchurian war lord, Chang Tso-Lin, before Peking, and who is the recognized military power of North China, is in daily communication with Chen Chiung Ming in the south.

Wu declares that Chen is in hearty accord with the plan to reunite the country under one government at Peking, to disband all provincial troops and to establish a smaller national army, large enough for defensive purposes only.

Both Wu and Chen are agreed that the old Republican Parliament, dissolved by the militarists in 1917, should reassume full control of the country's affairs, perfect a permanent constitution and elect a successor to President Li Yuan Hung.

With this program, President Li also is in accord. He has maintained ever since reassuming office that he is holding his position only pending an expression of the wishes of the old Republican legislative body, which he hopes will be able to meet with a quorum by August 1, at the latest.

CHANG GIVES UP

Anticipating the increasing strength of the revived Republican regime at Peking, the defeated Chang Tso-Lin, from his stronghold at Mukden in Manchuria, has sent word that he does not intend to further hinder reunification of the country.

Chang avows that he and the people of the three Manchurian provinces are willing to co-operate in the united China plans if Man-

SHOOTING FOLLOWS FETE

Contractor Wounded by Wife After Event at Home of Rene Davies, Sister of Screen Star

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FREEPORT (Long Island) June 25.—Oscar A. Hirsh, a wealthy contractor, was today shot and perhaps fatally wounded by his wife after he had gashed her face open with a blow from his diamond-studded fist. The quarrel was a climax to a lawn fete at the home of Rene Davies, sister of Marion Davies, the screen star. Hirsh is lying unconscious at a hospital and his beautiful blond wife is held without bail in the Mineola jail. When seized, Mrs. Hirsh screamed: "He made me do it," and said he had kept her a prisoner without food for four days.

Dist.-Atty. Elvin Edwards decided to give Mrs. Hirsh an opportunity to obtain her liberty on bail tomorrow. He said he preferred to have the preliminary hearing on Tuesday to give the hospital authorities an opportunity to learn whether or not the bullet wound may be fatal.

FOLLOWS QUARREL

The shooting occurred in front of the palatial home of Rene Davies, at Wilson Place and Pennsylvania avenue. None of the many guests at the homecoming party witnessed the shooting, but several, including Magistrate Bernard J. Douras, father of Marion and Rene Davies of the Bronx, told the District Attorney they heard a violent quarrel, after which a single shot was fired.

Magistrate Douras said many of the guests ran from the house when they heard the shot to find Hirsh on the ground and his wife standing near, apparently in a daze. The magistrate said he heard Mrs. Hirsh call her husband a vile name after the shot was fired and scream, "You made me do it!"

STATEMENT BY EDWARDS

Dist.-Atty. Edwards said he believed this exclamation from Mrs. Hirsh referred to a blow on the left eye that she is believed to have received from her husband before he was shot. Mrs. Hirsh's face was gashed and it is believed the cut was made by a large diamond ring, worn on the finger of Hirsh's right hand. Mrs. Hirsh told Rene Davies immediately after the shooting that she was in a daze and did not know what she was doing.

"He kept me in the house for four days without food," Rene Davies said Mrs. Hirsh exclaimed. of the pistol with which Hirsh was Dist.-Atty. Edwards said the source shot is a mystery. He said Mrs. Hirsh appeared to have been drinking at the homecoming party and did not give a clear account of the quarrel with her husband.

TALK IS WET, HABITS DRY

Americans Slowly Being Won Over to Prohibition

Bars Abroad Losing Money; Times Are Changing

Drinking on High Seas Also Shows Decrease

BY S. FRED HOGUE
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, June 25.—Americans are being won over to prohibition in spite of themselves. On the high seas, in Great Britain and on the continent their conversation is wet, but their habits are decidedly dry.

The American bars in the Strand hotels here are so little patronized that they are so likely to be closed before the season is over, although the hotels themselves are fairly overflowing with Americans.

"It was not so before the war, sir," the head barkeeper of the Cecil informed me; "then business was excellent. The Americans are here now, I never saw so many of them; but they seem to have gotten out of the habit of drinking, sir. We have more Canadian and Australian customers than Americans."

A similar complaint was made to me by the buffet steward on the ocean liner France, which brought me across. He said that they did not sell more than one-third as much liquor per trip as they did in 1913.

I had expected a great rush for the clubroom when we should cross the three-mile limit; and I went into the lounge an hour after we had dropped the pilot expecting to find it crowded. But a single table was occupied and the three guests were taking French.

There were about 250 Americans among the first cabin passengers; but they spent little time in the lounge, and I did not see a single case of intoxication.

AMERICANS A PUZZLE

There is something puzzling about the way the average American of the good-fellow class talks when he is in his home town and the way he acts when as much drink as he may desire can be had for the ordering. The psychology of the situation is somewhat bewildering.

I can only relate my own experience, and it seems to be that of the average American who travels abroad. When I was arranging for my trip I selected a French boat with an eye to the conditions that would prevail after I had escaped from the clutches of the Volstead Act.

But when I found myself on the high seas where liquid refreshment in any quantity could be had for the asking, I suddenly discovered that I had no special desire for it. I had actually lost my taste for liquor and it was like acquiring the habit all over again. Scotch had lost its flavor.

I talked to a number of fellow Americans and they all confessed to me that they felt the same way. I found also another element entering into the problem, a kind of latent patriotism.

AMERICANS ABROAD

One never feels what it means to be an American until he passes a season under another flag. He has to get away from home to find out how much of an American he really is.

I felt a kind of repugnance against doing something under another flag that would be the violation of a law at home. One comes to honor his country by observing its laws when the observance is no longer compulsory. This is something that must be experienced to be understood. It is rooted in the subconscious mind and is independent of the will.

But such a feeling exists. I have talked the matter over with a score of Americans who are spending their vacations aboard and they all confess to a similar feeling.

The Volstead Act is more popular with Americans in Europe than at home; and this seems to explain why the sale of liquor on the foreign boats engaged in the trans-Atlantic trade has fallen off; and why the American bars in London and Paris cannot sell enough liquor to pay expenses.

Little wonder the psychology of an American is difficult for Europeans to understand. We are utterly unable to understand it ourselves.

you would never need go without a thrill—it's another case of "the schoolmaster's daughter always having her lesson."

By the same line of logic the young men in Los Angeles and vicinity should be the best-dressed men in the State, for no other city of like size in America can boast of better natural advantages so far as men's clothing is concerned.

Take this stock as it stands and it would do a land office business in a Fifth Ave. location.

Take our values and transplant them in Chicago and the news of their fairness would loop the loop in a fortnight.

Why, man alive, if you live here in Los Angeles you own the world, so to speak.

So what more can you ask?

LIONS KILLED IN ARIZONA

Mountains Are Scoured for "Cats," Yet Fifteen Are Shot This Year

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAFFORD (Ariz.) June 25.—Fifteen mountain lions have been killed in the Graham mountains during the past sixty days and benefit already is known by the live stock interests of the region. The last lion killed was of immense size, though very thin. There is some belief that a new stock of lions strays up this way from Mexico, for the mountains have been combed for years by lion hunters, who annually have killed large numbers of the great cats.

COMRADES OF EARLY DAYS MEET

Separated for Fifty-four Years, Note Anniversary of Weddings

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CORONA, June 25.—After fifty-four years of separation, Capt. John L. Merriam and Sergt. Z. C. Hamilton, together with their wives and a small company of friends and relatives, sat down to a memorial dinner here Friday given by Sergt. and Mrs. Hamilton in honor of the sergeant's old captain.

There has been a strange parallel between the lives of these two old comrades and friends. Both were born in New York, the sergeant ninety and the captain eighty-seven years ago. In 1853 the captain came to California; the sergeant came in 1854. John L. Merriam enlisted in the First California Cavalry at Sonora, Tuolumne county, and was mustered in a little later in San Francisco. The following year, as first lieutenant, he was transferred to the Second California Cavalry, where on May 23, 1863, Z. C. Hamilton enlisted in the same regiment and was assigned by Capt. Merriam to his own company, Company L, in which Hamilton soon after became sergeant.

In 1866 Capt. Merriam was discharged on account of disability, and a few days later Sergt. Hamilton also retired from the Army. About two years later both married and drifted apart.

In 1888 Capt. Merriam and his wife moved to Corona and have since made this city their home.

As the years rolled by Sergt. Hamilton was stricken with blindness. For twelve years his wife ministered to him. Then one of their sons, C. R. Hamilton, having come to Corona, was soon followed by Sergt. Hamilton. In his association with other G.A.R. men Sergt. Hamilton soon learned that his former captain was a close neighbor and their acquaintance was soon renewed, but the plight of Sergt. Hamilton was too much for the captain, and he prevailed upon his friend to submit to an operation, with the result that Sergt. Hamilton is now enjoying excellent eyesight and the last days of both officers are being spent at the home of one or the other.

As their fifty-fourth wedding anniversaries were separated by just one day, this day was accepted as a fitting one to celebrate.

dent of the Lower California Commercial Company, which operates a string of liquor houses in Tiajuana and Mexicali.

Other property owners who sustained loss in the fire were: Howard Jordan, one-story building; John Jassoud, owner of the building which was being turned into a fine boxing arena and athletic club, and also of the Monte Carlo Bar operated by Guy Covault.

Three safes were destroyed and Miguel Monjo, president of the Commercial Company, estimates loss at $150,000.

Property located between Jordan's and Jassoud's is owned by the widow of the former Governor of Lower California, Col Celso Vega.

Casner, a wealthy man, got out of the fire with a vest and a pair of trousers. One of his most valued curiosities destroyed in the fire was a large Mexican sombrero, beaded with silver spangles and valued at $150. Casner states that he will rebuild at once a modern two-story fire-proof building.

Plans for the construction of the fight arena will have to be changed, but it will be built.

THENARDITE WORK STARTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CLARKDALE (Ariz.) June 25. The Western Chemical Company has been doing its annual assessment work on a thenardite deposit near Camp Verde. The company started about six months ago shipment of the salt to a plant at San Pedro, where it was to be refined and shipped to paper manufactories in Sweden and Finland, but the market appears to have lapsed and nothing has been done locally for many months.

GRAND MASTERS ATTACK KLAN

Indignantly Deny Masons Support Order

Say Tactics Incompatible With Americanism

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Thoroughly aroused by the exposure of the assertions of the promoters of the Ku Klux Klan that the masked organization enjoys the sympathy and support of the Masonic fraternity Grand Masters of the Masonic bodies of States north, east, south and west yesterday protested against the Klan and joined in pronouncing the order a conspiracy in violation of every principle of Masonry and of Americanism.

WARNING ISSUED

A total of twenty-five of the forty-eight Grand Masters in the United States have been heard from. Many of the Grand Masters declared that no Masonic property, lodge rooms or meeting halls are available for Ku Klux Klan purposes, and a number of them said they had already issued warnings against affiliation with the Klan by members of the Masonic fraternity.

In the State of Oregon, where the Klan is so strong politically that its candidates lost the recent Republican primary elections by less than 500 votes the Masons long ago faced the masked knights as enemies according to G. G. Brown, Grand Master, Free and Accepted Masons of Oregon, who quoted a circular letter sent to all lodges in the State on May 16, by the then Grand Master, Frank S. Baillie.

MASONIC LETTER

This letter read in part as follows:

"Ominous and forbidding rumors provoking dissension and strife, falsely intimate that the Masonic fraternity as such is officially aligned in silent acquiescence in and approval of a movement inciting religious bigotry and religious discrimination.

"These new alignments in political matters fostering such sinister appeals to prejudice and discord beget a menace to our American institutions, which every Mason should condemn and suppress as foreign to the spirit of the Masonic fraternity. Your Grand Master places before you his positive interdiction of such acts."

FAILS TO JOIN

One southern Grand Master, replying to the request for an expression of opinion on the Klan and its tactics, failed to join the almost universal protest of his fellow Grand Masters against the masked knights. This Grand Master is Julian F. Spearman of Alabama, who said he had "neither commendation or condemnation" for the Klan. The Klan is powerful in Alabama, where its repeated acts have been more numerous than in almost any other State, with the exception of Texas and Oklahoma.

Wiring from Middlebury, Vt., A. S. Harriman, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of that State, said:

"The Ku Klux Klan is, I believe, a product of a desire for power by irresponsible individuals. Masonry, believing in liberty, equality and brotherhood as extensively as the human race, can have no sympathy with an organization whose reputed acts are arbitrary and utterly inconsistent with law. The Ku Klux Klan is a mere temporary phenomenon. America has no room for a secret society of regulators."

That there can be nothing in common between Masonry and Ku Kluxism is the declaration of Omar B. Smith, Past Grand Master of the Indiana jurisdiction, who telegraphed as follows:

"Indiana Masonry is not in sympathy with and does not recognize, countenance or approve the Ku Klux Klan in any way. They have no right whatever to claim Masonic sympathy and support, as none has ever been extended to them. The Masonic teachings do not in any way conform to Ku Klux actions."

UTAH CAUTIONED

Masons of the Utah jurisdiction were cautioned against affiliating with the Ku Klux Klan nearly a year ago, it is learned in a telegram from E. R. Gibson, Salt Lake City, Grand Master of the Utah Grand Lodge.

His telegram says: "From our investigation we are convinced that the order of the Ku Klux Klan is incompatible with Masonic principles. It does not have the sympathy or support of Masonry in this jurisdiction. Grand Master Carver wrote a circular letter to all lodges in the juisdiction last year cautioning all members against affiliating with it. Our attitude is unchanged."

Ku Klux is a menace, according to the view of Albert M. Speer, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the State of Maine, who telegraphed as follows: "I am relentlessly opposed to any form of association of Ku Kluxism with Masonry and as I understand it I deprecate it in any form as a menace to law and order."

That the Masons of Minnesota, not yet troubled by a Ku Klux invasion, stand ready to oppose it if it should come, is indicated in the following telegram from Herman Held of Mankato, Grand Master of the Minnesota Grand Lodge:

LOYAL AMERICANS

"We have not come into contact with the Ku Klux Klan as yet. It has no connection with Minnesota Masonry in any form. Minnesota Masons are loyal Americans, believing in enforcement of law by recognized authority. We are opposed to any organization that uses mob violence, ignorance or superstition to accomplish its end, no matter what that end may be."

Standing shoulder to shoulder with the Masonic fraternity in Texas as opposed to Ku Kluxism, Louis M. Moyers of Globe, Ariz., Grand Master of that State, has wired: "Masonry in Arizona, as elsewhere, stands for good government. It enjoins upon its members obedience to law and respect for constituted authority. It does not support or give countenance to unlawful acts of any kind and is not in sympathy with the Ku Klux Klan or any organization that seeks to place itself above the law. Any statement that the Ku Klux is receiving sympathy or support from Masonic fraternity in Arizona is absolutely false."

Klan promoters' assertions are refuted by W. F. R. Whorton, Past Grand Master of South Dakota, joining with T. R. Stoner, present Grand Master, in the following: "Masonry in South Dakota does not advocate methods employed by the Ku Klux Klan. We have never supported nor sympathized with any such movement and any statement to the contrary is absolutely false."

HERRIN MURDER IS CONDONED

ers had even gone to the length of forbidding union grave diggers to dig the holes. Four preachers representing the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches conducted the simple services—chiefly the singing of old hymns and prayers. Only a handful of spectators fringed the little group conducting the services, with a sprinkling of curious women and girls. The union miners remained in town and chortled over their work. The plain pine coffins were designated by a cheap aluminum tag-stamped "At Rest," and at each grave there was pushed into the ground a pine board, with the words, "Died June 2, 1922," painted on them. There were no names and no reference to the manner of their death.

TALES OF EYEWITNESSES

Eyewitnesses of the murder of the non-union men tell of terrible deeds. After men were shot down guards stood over them and jeered them as they expired. If a wounded man fell face downward he was turned over by kicks and some one would grind his nose and face out of all resemblance to human features with the heel of his boot.

After men were dead their bodies were kicked about until the neck was dislocated and they were otherwise mutilated in a manner that cannot be told. Especial attention was given Supt. McDowell, who was a cripple with a wooden leg. One of the rioters had split open his head with a pick and he was staggering along the road, trying to obey orders to walk faster to the place of execution. He was holding his gaping forehead to staunch the flow of blood which was blinding him. One of his torementors walked up and struck him a terrible blow under the ear with the butt of a heavy pistol and ordered him to walk faster.

"I know what is at the end of the journey," said McDowell. "I am making the best time I can."

MURDER OF McDOWELL

"Well, we will end it for you right now," said his guard, as he stepped back a pace or two and emptied his automatic pistol into McDowell's abdomen. Later, a group of miners, passing that way, found McDowell lying on his side as he had fallen. They turned him over on his back with their boots and one or two of them took a cigar from McDowell's vest pocket and jammed it into the open mouth of the dead man.

The Williamson county Miner, official organ of the miners' union, in its description of the slaughter lays all the blame upon the murdered men, but tells how the miners invaded the camp and insisted upon counting the plates and examining every nook and corner of the place for hidden machine guns. They also ordered the searchlights discontinued, but when this order was not obeyed, they cut the wires and threw the place in darkness preparatory to the massacre. In its concluding paragraph, the Miners' paper says:

"The faces of the 'scabs' presented a terrible appearance. Hideous as the face of a crook must be, they were even worse after justice had triumphed."

Carlo Schanzer, the Italian Foreign Minister, arrived in London today and will meet Lloyd George tomorrow for discussion of European problems. A conference of the Allied leaders may be called before the end of this week as the German crisis is considered extremely serious here, but Lloyd George must make a temporary settlement of the Irish difficulties before he can tackle any other grave problem.

TARIFF BILL MEANS HIGHER FOOD COSTS

DEMOCRATIC SENATOR SAYS EACH PERSON WILL PAY $13.16 MORE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Increased prices of agricultural products which will follow the enactment of the tariff bill will mean a tax upon the American people amounting to $1,316,569,449, according to a statement made today by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, Democratic member of the Senate Finance Committee.

Senator Walsh estimated that the burden due to the tariff will amount to $13.15 per capita more than the present Underwood Act and $3.63 per capita more than the former Payne-Aldrich Act.

In making up his estimate Senator Walsh computed the increase in the proposed duty on agricultural products over the Underwood Act and then based his figures on the increased tax on the American people on the assumption that prices of these products used in the United States would be increased by that much. The figures were prepared, he said, with the aid of the Department of Agriculture. Added to the food tax, he claimed, will be an increased cost in the price of shoes, cotton and woolen goods, furniture, building materials and other manufactured articles.

SUN YAT SEN ELIMINATED

Southern China Leader is Deserted by Navy

Now Virtual Prisoner Aboard Gunboat Near Canton

churia is given a measure of local autonomy, Chang also frankly admits his defeat at the hands of Wu Pei Fu and indicates that he has been cured of any desire to cause his country further trouble.

In the face of all these apparent evidences of harmony, however, there still rings out the discord of Sun Yat Sen's defiance. Unlike Chang Tso Lin, the self-seeking militarist, Sun, the leader of a once-flourishing democratic cause, announces from the gunboat on which he is said to be held practically a prisoner at Canton, that he will go down fighting rather than yield to force.

Sun brands Chen Chiung Ming, his conqueror, as a traitor, whose treachery piled up the trouble that resulted in the death of Wu Ting Fang Sun's Foreign Minister, ex-envoy to the United States and a recognized leader of Chinese diplomacy.

The Canton chieftain, aboard his gunboat prison, is pictured as awaiting eagerly news of the return of his Kiangsi troops with whose aid he hopes to regain his lost power. Peking declares his hopes are in vain. Canton opinion is the same, but the man who led the Republican cause in the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty still believes that his star has not yet waned.

AMOY (China) June 25.—The resignation of Dr. Sun Yat Sen as president of the Southern Chinese government is expected hourly. Dr. Sun has been abandoned by his navy and it is believed he has given up all hope of regaining his capitol, now in the hands of Chen Chiung Ming, an adherent of the Peking Central China government.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

AMOY (China) June 24.—(Delayed.)—The Kiangsi army of Sun Yat Sen, deposed president of South China, is answering its fallen leader's call and has launched a pincer drive against Chen Chiung Ming and his united China troops, according to advices received here from Canton under date of June 23.

Sun's army, from the province of Kiangsi, at whose head he marched out of Canton a few weeks ago on his expedition to conquer the North and unite all China under his own banner, has turned in its tracks and, split into two sections, is bearing down on Chen's headquarters at Weichow in what is believed here to be a forlorn hope to save the wreck of the South China Republic.

At the head of the Kiangsi levies is Gen. Hsu-Hung-Chi, known as the "trouble maker of Kwantung," an avowed enemy of Chen Chiung Ming and the man whose plots are said to have done much to bring about the final break between Chen and Sun.

CLASHES REPORTED

The vanguard of Hsu's forces and the pickets of Chen's army encamped around Weichow already are reported to have clashed in preliminary skirmishes.

Hsu, with little to hope for victory, is rushing his divided army against Weichow by forced marches and by railroad. One wing is traveling overland from Shiukwan, while the other is taking the railroad from Shiukwan between Canton and Weichow, the two advances constituting a pincers movement in which Hsu and Sun hope to crush Chen at Weichow.

General opinion is that Hsu's advance is Sun's last card in the game for South China and that it cannot win.

In the meantime, the city of Canton is reported to have become thoroughly consolidated against Sun Yat Sen and in favor of the Peking government's united China program. The southern navy, despite Sun's assertions to the contrary, is declared to have disowned its former chief. Merchants and other residents of the city at a mass meeting adopted resolutions indorsing President Li Yuan Hung, and the Peking administration, requesting Gen. Chen Chiung Ming to return to Canton from Weichow and urging cessation of all hostilities. The meeting also decreed a celebration in Canton to mark the retirement of Sun Yat Sen from the presidency.

TEXAS TOWN FLOODED AFTER LEVEE BREAK

BROWNSVILLE (Tex.) June 25. The levee system protecting the town of Mercedes from Rio Grande flood waters began crumbling today and within a few hours approximately half of the residence section was under twenty inches of water. Other levees were expected to crumble, but the general opinion was that the water would not become deep enough to cause loss of life.

AVENGE DEATH OF RATHENAU

your life. Wirth, you must save the republic."

Loebe stepped to the fore and said:

"We have come here to honor the dead man,"—he could get no further.

"Revenge, revenge," cried the Socialists.

Loebe quieted the assembly and began again: "The cruelty and brutality of this action make our blood run cold. Rathenau sacrificed his life for the German republic."

Above the din his speech was mostly unheard, but raising his voice Loebe declaimed, "The fate of the German people is now in danger."

"Revenge," cried the left benches. Suddenly some one arose and cried: "One after another our republic's leaders fall under the bloody hands of assassins."

Loebe continued: "Rathenau was one of the first German leaders who since the war regained for Germany some trust, and who gained for himself success as a statesman."

At this point some one shouted: "Long live the republic," which everyone took up.

Loebe sat down and Wirth mounted the tribunal.

WIRTH REGINS

"Our work must not be interrupted. Rathenau gave his life not only for the German Fatherland, but for all humanity for he worked for all humanity in trying to heal Europe's wounds and bring a new lease on life to many peoples. He must continue this work for our country and the rest of Europe. It cannot halt. All true patriots must now redouble their efforts. We must punish those whose method is murder and you gentlemen on the right"—pointing to the Nationalists—"this is the end; this is the end. From now on we take a different course. All German workers, all who love liberty will join us in the defense of the republic and of the Fatherland."

When a vote was taken to distribute the Loebe and Wirth speeches throughout the country, the Nationalists remained seated. So did the People's party, including Hugo Stinnes, this party being next to the Nationalists the most reactionary in Germany.

CONCERN IN WASHINGTON

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Concern is expressed in official quarters over the assassination of Walter Rathenau, Foreign Minister in the Wirth Cabinet.

Owing to the tense political situation in Germany and the repeated reports of plots by monarchists close students of European affairs in official quarters feel that almost anything might happen following the deliberate murder of the strongest man in the government, even a real revolution.

In as much as Dr. Rathenau has been largely instrumental in working out reparations and other problems vital to the Allies, his death is said to be a real blow to Germany's late enemies as well as to the Ebert government.

HOUGHTON SENDS MESSAGE

The State Department received confirmation of the assassination of Rathenau a few hours after it took place, ambassador Houghton, who Friday night had entertained the German foreign Minister at dinner, having dispatched a hurried cablegram as soon as the news reached the embassy.

Rathenau, in collaboration with Chancellor Wirth is credited here with having made a real effort to comply with Germany's reparations and other obligations under the treaty of Versailles. So long as Wirth remains at the head of the Cabinet it is possible this policy will continue to be followed.

The difficulty as seen here is to know whether the violent outbreak against a member of the German Cabinet may not precipitate a crisis, since it is believed only a spark is needed to start serious trouble in the present tense situation.

Chancellor Wirth is expected to have difficulty in finding a successor to Rathenau, who possesses anything like his qualifications to handle financial and economic problems, and who is willing to accept the foreign office portfolio.

Offers to Buy Film Rights to Outdoor Opera

An offer of $50,000 was made yesterday by James E. Bowen, president and general manager of the Federal Photoplay Corporation and Cosmosart Studios, to the sponsors of the outdoor production of "Carmen" in the Hollywood Bowl on the night of July 3 for the exclusive right to film the production.

The filming of "Carmen" as presented at the Bowl would have to be supplemented by additional scenes, but Mr. Bowen believes he could induce the opera stars to remain in Los Angeles two additional weeks while the incidental scenes were taken.

Walter E. Shoestedt, manager of the production, which is being staged under the auspices of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, admitted last night he was considering Mr. Bowen's offer, but would not accept the proposition if in any way it would interfere with the performance.

M'CUMBER IS DESPERATE

North Dakota Senator Seeks Renomination

Receives Strong Commendation from Co-Workers

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—On the eve of the North Dakota primary, in which he is fighting desperately for renomination, Senator McCumber, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, today issued an address to the farmers, asserting that the emergency agricultural tariff act is responsible for the higher prices they are receiving for their products and promising a permanent tariff bill extending their protection.

At the same time there was issued a collection of statements by Senators Gooding, Idaho; Capper, Kansas, and McNary, Oregon, members of the farm bloc, praising McCumber as the true and powerful friend of the farmer. Gooding said that without the aid of McCumber "the tariff bloc would have been unable to secure the protection for the farmer which the pending tariff bill gives," and that if McCumber fails of renomination the farmers will lose the most valuable aid in Congress.

FIRST FARM PROTECTION

"To Senator McCumber," said Senator Capper, "more than any one else the West is indebted for the protective tariff schedules on farm products, for the first protection ever given by Congress."

Senator McNary said "that in every emergency of the farmers Senator McCumber has come to their help."

Senator McCumber in his address to the farmers said that the Finance Committee will press the tariff bill to passage as rapidly as Senate rules permit "that the farmers may reap the full benefit of the proposed tariff at the earliest possible moment."

PRODUCTS PROTECTED

"For the first time in the history of the United States farm products are placed on a protective basis," continues the McCumber address. "The tariffs which are written in the bill represent substantially the judgment of grain growers, stock raisers and dairy and farm organizations. They are supported by the farm tariff bloc in the Senate and by the farmers in every State. This statement is made because of the campaign of misrepresentation conducted by certain interests which are fighting the tariff bill who claim that the tariffs on agricultural products are not desired by farmers generally.

"In the pending measure farmers have had special consideration. Nearly everything they use in the operation of a farm, such as farm machinery, potash, barbed wire, etc., are placed upon the free list. Because of duties given upon farm products of course, a compensatory duty must be given on finished articles made from such farm products.

"The Emergency Tariff Act which covers a number of farm products like the sheep and wool raising industry, is admitted by every one acquainted with the industry to have saved it from absolute destruction."

HEAVYWEIGHT ACTOR DIES IN NEW YORK

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Raymond Kelleher, widely known as "Fatty" Kelleher and the heaviest actor on the American stage, died today at Bellevue Hospital, following an attack of heart trouble. For many years he was a successful polite comedian and vaudeville performer. He last appeared on Broadway a few months ago with Mr. and Mrs. Coburn in the "Bronx Express."

He went to the hospital last Tuesday from the Hotel Arthur, where he was staying. He joked with the hospital doctors about his weight and their facilities for handling a 467-pound patient. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Grace Elroy of Providence, R. I.

NEVER HEARD OF PROHIBITION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PETERSBURG (W. Va.) June 24.—"I've been making whisky for nigh on forty years, and this is the first time I knew there was any law ag'in it," said Henry Hours, a venerable resident of the Smokehole district, located in Grant and Pendleton counties, when he was visited by State police and arrested.

A native of the district proffered information to the troopers that Old Man Hours was running a still, and had done so ever since he could remember.

ARREST TWO OF BUTCHER JEAN'S GANG

Capture of Aristocratic Criminals Explains Many Puzzling Deaths

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, June 25.—Highway robbery, murder and a new kind of piracy are crimes laid to the last two members of "Butcher Jean's gang," who were just arrested. They possessed about $20,000 between them when seized, and had bank accounts totaling $80,000—"swag" from numerous burglaries.

Aristocratic in appearance, Castelli, one of the twain, got away with $20,000 from the regimental safe of the Fourth Colonials and then led a life of a man about town in Paris and in Nice. There he victimized over-confident women of the demimonde, who succumbed to his charms.

Singular among his crimes was his practice of inviting out to trips wealthy men and women in a stunning motor boat he bought. Once out of sight of spectators on shore he would race to a secret cove, strip his guests of their valuables and throw them into the sea. The mystery of several persons missing on the Riviera was cleared up by his arrest.

KIDNAPED DAUGHTER IS SOUGHT

Drugged and Stolen by ex-Convict, Says Appeal from Father

Declaring that his daughter was kidnaped after being drugged by an ex-convict, and then brought to Southern California, William Long of Watewhit, Mich., yesterday appealed to The Times to aid him in learning her whereabouts.

"Our daughter was abducted last February 28," he writes. "The last trace we got of her was at San Dimas, about March 27."

The girl's name is Myra Long. Her mother is on the verge of collapse because of the worry incident to the girl's disappearance, the father declares. Any information concerning her will reach Mr. Long if addressed to postoffice box No. 292, Watewhit, Mich.

Vera Cruz in Danger from Great Flood

MEXICO CITY, June 25.—The river regions of Vera Cruz are threatened with the worst flood of years. The waters are rapidly rising and the town of Medell already is flooded.

Dead cattle are floating down the Jalapa. Trains have been suspended on the Vera Cruz Pacific and Interoceanic railways.

FAMOUS OLD RANCH TO BE SUMMER RESORT

ON NEW HIGHWAY, HAS FINE ELEVATION AND $27,000 CROP OF APPLES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MIAMI (Ariz.) June 25.—Between Miami and Superior, on the new highway, is the famous old Iron ranch, near Devil's Canyon. This ranch has been in the possession of a single family ever since 1880, when the proprietor and his family seemed to have almost miraculous exemption from the depredations of marauding Apache bands. The trail now has been succeeded by a modern highway and there is expectation that the ranch will become a summer resort, owing to its elevation of about 4500 feet.

It is the only farm of any importance existing between the Mesa section and Globe, and is said to have an apple crop that brings about $27,000 a year return.

KANKAKEE (Ill.) June 25.—Mrs. Len Small, wife of the Governor of Illinois, suffered a severe paralytic stroke at her home here today. Gov. Small, Saturday at Waukegan, was acquitted after a protracted trial on a charge of conspiring to defraud the State of interest on public funds while serving as State Treasurer. Friends believe that Mrs. Small's affliction is the result of intense strain and anxiety which the long trial entailed and the sudden reaction of joy which the verdict of acquittal brought. She appeared, however, to be in good health and spirits on her visits to the courtroom.

TEXAS RANCHER VS. MARCO POLO

Describes Hidden Region in Lone Star State

Buffaloes and Brilliant-Hued Birds Found

Valley, Beautiful Scenery Guarded by Rock

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANDERSON (Tex.) June 25.—At intervals for the last thirty years reports have been brought out of the wild region to the south of here of the existence in a hidden and rock-walled valley of a herd of buffaloes.

The latest account of this wonderful and mysterious valley with its imprisoned buffaloes was recited here a few days ago by Andreas Lopez, an educated and well-to-do Mexican ranchman whose property is situated on the Mexico side of the Rio Grande. It was a remarkable tale which Lopez told a group of friends as they sat around the table at the Southern Pacific eating house.

He said that he had been ranching just cross the river in Mexico for nearly forty years and that a few miles from ranch headquarters was the canyon made by Maravillas Creek, on the Texas side. So far as his knowledge went, this canyon had never been explored. In a spirit of adventure he and one of his cowboys, Manuel Flores, set out about two weeks ago to see what a tramp up the bed of the creek that runs at the bottom of the precipitous walls would lead to. They carried enough food with them to last several days and rolls of blankets upon their backs.

TALE OF LOPEZ

"We had no difficulty in crossing the Rio Grande and entering the mouth of the canyon," Lopez said. "For several miles the walls of the gorge almost met several feet overhead. It was a gloomy but inspiring sight. On the afternoon of the second day, when we had reached a point perhaps fifteen miles from the lower end of the canyon, we came upon a solid barrier of rock which rose to a height of more than 600 feet and over which flowed the little stream of water known as Maravillas Creek. We had difficulty in climbing to the top of the wall, but when we had done so the sight that met our eyes was one that will remain always in my memory. Before us lay an almost perfectly level valley that must have been forty miles one way by twenty-five the other in size. It was carpeted with a luxuriant growth of grass. Crossing this level expanse at intervals were streams of crystal water which came from springs. All around the valley towered mountains that ranged from a few hundred to perhaps 2000 feet high.

BEAUTY OF LANDSCAPE

Clumps of trees here and there set off the beauty of the landscape. It was very evident that in this valley the rainfall was abundant—the rank vegetation was evidence enough of that fact. I arrived at a solution of why this was true that was satisfactory to my own mind, and it was this: Sweeping across the Rio Grande from the desert region of Northern Mexico is a prevailing hot wind. It enters the valley through the numerous canyons that lead through the mountain range in the south. The air in coming through the deep gorges cools perceptibly and when it reaches the valley clouds quickly form and the rain is precipitated. It is a local meteorological phenomenon not at all uncommon to other parts of the world and even in this country, I am told. At any rate, there was a good shower of rain every afternoon during the ten days that I and Flores spent in the valley.

HERD OF 500

"But now the astonishing thing of our exploit was the discovery of a herd of more than 500 buffaloes which were contentedly living in the valley, completely cut off from the rest of the world. It was on the second day of our visit to the valley when we came upon the buffaloes. We had seen evidence of some kind of large animal almost from the very time we climbed to the top of the wall that marked the end of the canyon, but we never dreamed that the tracks were those of buffaloes. We had climbed to a vantage point on one of the hills or mountains in order to get a better view of the surroundings, when we saw in the distance a big bunch of animals grazing. We made our way to them and were astounded to find that they were buffaloes.

THEORY OF RANCHER

"It is my theory that the nucleus of the present big herd of these animals entered the valley through a narrow passageway in the fringe of almost impassable mountains that completely surround the paradisical place and that an avalanche of rock closed the egress and the buffaloes were made prisoners there. How long ago that was there is no means of knowing. It has been more than forty years since a wild buffalo was seen in this part of the border region of Texas. We remained in the valley until our food supplies began running short and then departed the way we had come. Another striking feature of the place is that it is the home of countless numbers of birds of brilliant plumage—birds the kinds of which I have never before seen."

Mr. Lopez's story was received with credence here, especially by old-time ranchmen who knew the nature of the region that lies between here and the Rio Grande. It is stated that it is impossible to enter the rugged section from the north. According to Lopez's description, the mysterious valley lies between Maravillas Creek and San Francisco Creek. Before he left here for home he offered to pilot a party of cowboys and ranchmen of this section to the valley and prove to them that he was telling a true story. His offer was accepted and the expedition is now being organized.

OTHER REPORTS

But for the fact that other reports of this valley and its herd of buffaloes have been circulated from time to time the story which Lopez told would perhaps have aroused little interest. Only about ten years ago a Mexican sheepherder came into Sanderson in exhausted condition and related that he was lost for several days and in his wanderings through the mountains south of here, he came to a point which overlooked one of the most beautiful valleys he had ever conjured up in his dreams. Far below him the grass was green and the trees waved their branches. Upon the level expanse were grazing hundreds of animals, he said, and according to his description of them they were buffaloes.

This story was looked upon at the time as the product of a mind distorted by suffering and hardships. It was even then regarded as remarkable, however, that fifteen years before an American mining prospector had wandered into Sanderson and told a similar story. This mining man's story interested a San Antonio man, Dr. H. M. Taylor, so much that he organized and headed an expedition that came out here and spent several weeks searching the mountains for the wonderful valley with its herd of buffaloes. They did not find it.

Hearings to be Heard Again in October

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Whatever the final outcome of the decision of the Supreme Court, the result of the continuation as a single corporation of the Southern Pacific will come before the Interstate Commerce Commission in October. The commission has just finished a hearing of tentative plans to bring about consolidations of railroads in the Southeastern region of the United States and from time to time similar hearings for other parts of the country will be held by the commission. It is expected that the western roads will be reached in the late summer or early fall and the hearings, or part of them, may be conducted at some point, or points, on the Pacific Coast.

The commission has taken a great interest in the status of the Central and Southern Pacific roads, for the reason that hundreds of letters and telegrams have been received from chambers of commerce, labor organizations, civic organizations and individuals asking that in the interest of the communities served the operating entity of the Southern-Central Pacific system be preserved. Some opposition, apparently inspired by opposing interests, has circulated some propaganda urging that the Supreme Court decision be carried out and the division between the two systems be made a reality at an early date.

COMMISSIONERS QUOTED

In some of this literature officials of the commission have been quoted and this the commission asserts was without authority.

The commission will deal with consolidations in each region separately, and all of the local conditions will have weight in arriving at a decision as to the most satisfactory consolidations possible. All facts bearing on the future combinations of the carriers in any region will be sought and studied by the commission and their agents before the final recommendations as to consolidation are made by the commission.

COMMUNITIES FIRST

While the law and the purpose of the commission is to recommend such consolidations as will insure competing systems of rail transportation, the commission will give greater weight to the contentions of communities, shippers and individuals who have definite statements to make as to the effects of various consolidations considered.

In the meantime a motion for a rehearing is to be argued before the Supreme Court in the Southern-Central Pacific case and additional reasons given for permitting the present joint operation of the properties to be continued.

Mrs. Small Near Death After Trial

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

KANKAKEE (Ill.) June 25.—Happiness and rejoicing reverted to sorrow and sadness in the home of Gov. Len Small today, when Mrs. Small, his wife, was stricken with apoplexy, little hope being entertained for her recovery.

The attack came upon her shortly before midnight in the midst of congratulations of her friends and neighbors who had gathered to welcome Governor and Mrs. Small and their family home.

The Governor was acquitted yesterday of a conspiracy to embezzle interest on State funds while State Treasurer.

Mrs. Small had not regained consciousness at a late hour today.

TERRITORIAL POLITICS AROUSING INTEREST

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HONOLULU, June 24.—Territorial politics have started boiling considerably before the November elections to the Territorial Legislature and to Hawaii's single Congressional post-delegates to Congress.

The present delegate, Harry A. Baldwin, who was chosen last spring to fill the unexpired term of the late Prince Kuhio Kalanianaole, has sent home word that he positively will not be a candidate for re-election. He does not find political life in Washington to his liking and, furthermore, has much pressure of business here, where he is manager of a large sugar plantation.

Only one avowed candidate is in the field, John H. Wise, part-Hawaiian. Efforts are being made to get Clarence H. Cooke, president of the Bank of Hawaii and long active in Republican politics, to announce himself for the Republican nomination.

Democrats are casting about for a suitable candidate, with the probability that their veteran leader, L. L. McCandless, who already has run for Congress unsuccessfully seven or eight times, will again control the party and get the nomination.

CONCERTS AND WATER GAMES FOR SHRINERS

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HONOLULU, June 25.—Band concerts were the order yesterday in the visit of California Shriners to the home of their new imperial potentate, James S. McCandless.

The Al Malaikah band of Los Angeles, costumed in the attire of the Spanish don, took up the program in the evening and entertained gatherings at many prominent places. The visiting Shriners attended a swimming meet in which world-famous stars participated.

SMALLPOX IS DECREASING

Arizona Asked to Compel General Vaccination

State Federation of Labor Backing Hunt

Lowell Observatory Saved from Bad Fire

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, June 25.—According to a report from the State Board of Health, the deaths due to smallpox in Arizona thus far have been twenty-four in Pima county, fifteen in Maricopa county and four in Pinal county. The disease is of the warm weather type and decided ly of more serious character than that known in cooler weather. Here about forty cases are confined in the penthouse and fifty are under quarantine. Only one has died who had been vaccinated, and the health authorities are urging vaccination of everyone. The city has given free vaccination thus far to more than 2500 people, with probably as many more vaccinated by regular practitioners. Dr. I. L. Garrison, city health officer of Phoenix, has started a special clean-up campaign to remove all trash and refuse from the poorer quarters of the city. He states that general resort to vaccination will absolutely stop the scourge within thirty days.

NEW TRUST COMPANY

The Guaranty Trust Company has been granted incorporation by the Arizona Corporation Commission. It will have capitalization of $500,000. The incorporators are: E. W. Clayton, manager of the National Bank of Arizona; E. W. Lewis of the National Bank's Legal Department and Edward Eisele, a director. It is understood that the new corporation is to do the trust business in the National Bank of Arizona at Phoenix.

LABOR UNIONS BACKING HUNT

The Arizona State Federation of Labor appears to have been lined up in support of the candidacy of George W. P. Hunt for Governor. President H. S. McClusky of the Arizona State Federation also is editor of the Arizona Labor Journal, in which he has just presented a list of heckling questions to Charles B. Ward, the regular Democratic candidate for the Governorship. Especially he wants to know where Mr. Ward stands on the labor plank of the Tucson conference, this plank incidentally understood to have been written by Mr. McClusky during the convention, and inserted in the platform that had been prepared in advance. He asks specific replies from Mr. Ward. He questions concerning excessive interest, protection of bank deposits, domination of mining communities by mine managers, domination by corporations of the government of Arizona, development of the Colorado River as a public enterprise or for the benefit of the mining trusts and what should be done about government by injunction. He wants these matters discussed by Ward and Hunt and also by John Murphy, candidate for Attorney-General, and demands that there shall be no pussy-footing.

PROSPERITY SPECIAL COMING

TUCSON, June 25.—Word has been received by the operating department of the Southern Pacific that the so-called "prosperity special" will arrive Wednesday and remain overnight in this city, probably arriving in Los Angeles Friday night. The train consists of twenty large oil-burning engines, built by the Baldwin company, for the Southern Pacific coast lines. Though each engine in the train is under charge of a special engineer, the train is being taken through deadhead. The order for the Southern Pacific system is for fifty such locomotives.

EDITORIAL CONTRADICTED

FLAGSTAFF, June 25.—The people of Flagstaff are appreciative of the advertising given this locality by the Saturday Evening Post, but deny the assumption that they are contributing toward the denuding of the forests and the obliteration of the scenic features of Northern Arizona. In a late editorial the Post infers that the Forest Service is ruining the scenery and "is denuding the forests for a gold pittance." In truth, according to local authorities, the Forest Service is doing a tremendous and very valuable work in Northern Arizona in the proper regulation of herds of cattle and bands of sheep within the reservations, in the burning of dead timber, in attacking the forest fires and in the marketing of mature timber that is cut by leasing to lumber manufacturers and used for the benefit of mankind. Only in year long ago, about the time that the Santa Fe was demanding ties for its initial construction, were the forests of this locality mistreated. Now they are under strict control and regulation and have been made available for the entrance of all who care to come.

LOWELL OBSERVATORY SAVED

FLAGSTAFF, June 25.—Lowell Observatory lately was threatened seriously with destruction by fire and was saved only by the efforts of forty men, under direction of L. R. Lowell of the Forest Service. The fire was confined entirely to a section of land belonging to the Lowell estate. The burned area covers about seventy acres. The great observatory is placed within a thick clump of pine timber and it and the residences and storehouses around would have been lost save for the energy and skill of the fire fighters.

FOREST FIRES DYING DOWN

Flames Lick Seven Miles of Mountain Tops Back of Santa Barbara Before Controlled

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, June 25.—After roaring along the mountain summits above Santa Barbara for seven miles and licking up the dense brush in one canyon after another, the west wing of the Gibraltar forest fire tonight is considered by the forestry service to be under control and there is hope of controlling the east wing before morning.

The flames, breaking out with renewed energy before daylight and fanned by an east wind, swept six miles westerly from the top of Gidney Canyon to the head of Rattlesnake Canyon, threatening the entire south side of the range.

Checked in crawling down the south side of the mountains, the fire rolled west to Mateas Potraro, near Lacumbre Peak, the highest peak on the Santa Ynez range, and there a sudden shifting of the wind scattered the force of the fire.

VALLEY THREATENED

To the east of the top of Gidney Canyon the flames this morning swept fully a mile before the wind changed, and threatened for a time to crawl down into Carpinteria Valley. The change in the wind checked the fire and enabled Deputy Forest Ranger Mendenhall and a squad of men to hold it under control during the day.

The fire has mushroomed out at the head of Blue Canyon, but the latest information received by Supervisor Jordan is that it is now well under control. A large force of men in charge of Ranger Valentine is holding the fire at that point.

One line of the fire late this afternoon swept down upon the city's buildings, threatening the big cookhouse. All the furnishings and provisions have been moved from the place.

LINES ARE OPEN

Joseph L. Dominy, lineman for the Santa Barbara Telephone Company, has kept the telephone line open between the forestry headquarters and the Mono ranger station with difficulty. At the Mono station, two women, members of a fishing party from Santa Barbara and Carpinteria, have served as operators day and night, so that the forestry office would be in constant touch with that end of the fire line. They have refused to give their names. The men of their party volunteered as fire fighters.

If Deputy Supervisor Mendenhall succeeds in holding the east fireline for the next twelve hours all danger will have passed, it is believed. About 8000 acres has been burned over.

Plans Rose Wedding for Jack's Fiancee

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 22.—No stumbling blocks will be put in the way of the Marilynn Miller-Jack Pickford wedding by Mama Pickford.

That was made plain today when Mrs. Pickford, in New York for a brief visit, said she was delighted at the romance.

"Miss Miller spent last Sunday with Jack and me, and we had such a nice time," said Mrs. Pickford.

"I am going to spend next Sunday with her and we will talk over the plans in detail.

"I have urged Marilynn to come out to California for the weddi.g, and I feel sure she will. Jack must go back there this summer and it would be bad for him to leave right after the wedding. They hope to be married within the next six weeks.

"If she will only come to California we will have the kind of wedding she deserves. And she will be able to make good friends with her new sister, Mary.

"I think we will be able to announce next week that the wedding will take place in California —a real rose wedding just like my daughter Lottie had."

Grauman Soloist Achieves Favor With Rhapsody

The "discovery concert" yesterday morning at Grauman's Theater elicited much appreciation from a large audience.

Henry Murtagh's five selections on the organ attained popular favor. In his first number, Rubinstein's "Kamenoi Ostrow," he gave a poetic interpretation suggesting the variety of a full orchestra. His own arrangement of "Silent Night, Holy Night," brought out the deep spiritual significance of the old melody.

Annie Altman, the young Russian pianist, displayed rare mastery of her art and in her rendition of Liszt's Spanish Rhapsody she exhibited power and feeling.

Other enjoyable numbers were Grauman's cello quartet, featuring Bakaleinikoff, the brilliant conductor of the orchestra; two talented young men, Earl and Lewis, who made their guitars speak; Edna Cunningham in an interpretative dance; a group of clever kiddies in dances; G. Curti and Bert Teazle playing "The Miserere" on trombone and trumpet, and the Temple Baptist Choir in two selections, with Emery Foster conducting and Constance Balfour in a soprano solo. The orchestra played an effective number.

SENTIMENT IS EXPENSIVE

Attending Lillian Russell Memorial Service Costs Broker About $2,000,000

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Officials of the New York Stock Exchange who have been investigating the recent violent rise of shares of the Mexican Petroleum Company have found no evidence that any attempt was made to create a corner in the stock.

This was made known today, although no formal statement was issued at the exchange. The task of ascertaining the position of members of firms in "Mex. Pete." was left to the committee on business conduct, which sent out a questionnaire late Thursday.

ATTENDED FUNERAL

Notwithstanding the official whitewashing Wall Street in general today gave credence to a report that the sentiment which led Wall Street's most spectacular plunger of recent years to attend the memorial services to Lillian Russell a week ago Friday cost him over $2,000,000.

In the brief hour in which he surrendered himself to unworldly feelings and closed his ears to the rattle of the ticker while he listened to the solemn sweet strains of the funeral orchestra, his enemies, it is said, fell upon him.

For weeks he had been placing his fighting resources for a bear attack on Mexican Petroleum. He had the range of those whom he intended to plunder. He was ready to lay down the barrage which would drive the quotations for Mexican Petroleum down from 135 to under 100.

But Friday was a quiet day. The enemies in Mexican Petroleum were small and nervous. He knew his onslaught was expected; it was characteristic of him that he chose to undermine the opposition's morale by doing absolutely nothing.

COUNTER-ATTACK

For days his enemies had been waiting with a counter-attack which was worked out with every bit as much detail as his own raid. He left his desk an hour before the market's close and quickly the word flashed along the opposition line that the "zero hour" had come. It was not to be a counter-attack, but an offensive with the opposing general absent from his post.

A storm of orders to buy Mexican Petroleum, and buy, and buy, broke through Wall Street. The plunger had left only casual instructions which had not contemplated any such cataclysm as developed. By 2 o'clock, when the market closed, Mexican Petroleum was up to 143 1-4 and in that and the five succeeding trading days rose a total of 50 1-4 points.

For the plunger the situation had grown so desperate that even with his ability and resources further opposition was futile. A virtual corner had been brought about. He asked for a truce and agreed to settle at $225 a share.

AMERICA SEEN AS AN OASIS

Illinois Senator Reviews the Economic Situation

Says Administration Aiding the Country

Postwar Readjustment Has Been Hastened

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Measures instituted by the Harding administration and Congress have hastened post-war readjustment, brought prosperity within reach, retired $1,000,000,000 of the national debt, reduced government expenses 25 per cent and reduced taxes $1,000,000,000 a year, Senator McCormick, Illinois, chairman of the Republic Senatorial Campaign Committee, said today in reviewing the economic situation.

PROSPERITY OASIS

"America is an oasis of prosperity in the world," said the Senator. "The resumption of general activity and general employment, the restoration of prosperity can be prevented or postponed only by continued procrastination and delay in the debate of the tariff, or by general strikes.

"Americans are realizing now as they have not before the great measure in which Congress and the administration have contributed to the recovery of business and agriculture and to the sharp reduction in unemployment. The country has hardly understood the magnitude of the task before Congress and the administration.

"The unemployment today in England is something like six times per capita the unemployment of the United States. The unemployment in Scandinavia is increasing rather than decreasing at the time when the Department of Labor reports that 2,000,000 idle men in America have gone to work during the last ninety days."

NEARLY PROSTRATE

"While our agriculture has rallied under the stimulus of the Kellog Agricultural Credits Act, and the Emergency Tariff Act, the other great agricultural countries of the world remain nearly prostrate. Last year, in the terms of dollars, the exports of France and England amounted to a fraction more than they did during the last year preceding the great war. German exports, computed in dollars, amounted to about one-third of their value during the last year before the war, while American exports were nearly 70 per cent greater than they were during the year before the outbreak of the conflict of 1914. The figures for the first months of this year show that these ratios still hold good. Thoughtful men and women will not forget that the improvement in agricultural prices restored the buying power of the farmer, and so restored the interior market for the American manufacturer and found employment for the American workmen."

Find no Cash, Hold-Ups Beat Two Victims

Hold-ups continued their activities early Sunday morning. While three persons were held up only one lost money. The other two were beaten by the things.

R. D. Champajne, a taxicab driver of 351 South Figueroa street, took a passenger from down town to an address on Tampico street. Near his destination the man held up the driver and took several dollars by the thugs.

Clarence Clark, aged 27 years, of 2301 South Western avenue, was held up on Ninth street, between Wall and Maple streets early Sunday morning. Because he had no money he was beaten up.

Joe Solan, aged 34, of 409 East Fifth street, was beaten by two men at the corner of First and Cummings street after they failed to find any money on him. Both Clark and Solan were treated at the Receiving Hospital for minor injuries.

COLLEGE OARSMEN WILL SHOW BRAWN ON THE POUGHKEEPSIE COURS

SIX VARSITIES TO PULL OARS

Big Intercollegiate Regatta on for Today

Special Interest Centered in Navy Crew

Washington's Entry Causing Much Speculation

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

POUHKEEPSIE (N. Y.) June 25.—Over the waters that for nearly three decades have provided a course for the most eagerly sought and most bitterly fought victories in American intercollegiate rowing the crews of six universities will pull oars tomorrow in the Intercollegiate Rowing Association's twenty-fourth championship struggle.

Of more than ordinary interest to even the close followers of rowing is this year's regatta, the entries of the University of Washington and the United States Naval Academy expanding the eastern aspect of the races to national importance and furnishing a means for determining the supremacy on the water between the two sides of the continent.

TO SHOW METTLE

The Navy crew, regarded as a southern entry, was so anxious to show its mettle that the cadet oarsmen obtained permission to miss part of the middies' annual cruise to accept the association's invitation to competed. Its racing, almost all of which is done several hundred miles north of Annapolis, has made it the most feared to the East.

It is only the third appearance of the Navy and Washington in the association's regatta, usually participated in by Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Syracuse. The coaches of these crews regard Monday's encounter as of especial significance to experts, considering that the best sweep handlers in the colleges of the country will be on the water.

DIVIDE SPOTLIGHT

For more than a quarter of a century the intercollegiate regatta, usually rowed at Poughkeepsie, has divided with the annual Harvard-Yale race the glare of the spotlight in American rowing. Tales of hair-breadth finishes with the crews crumpling up like pasteboard figures after a driving finish; of perfectly synchronised eights rowing like automatons, have found their inspiration at either New London or Poughkeepsie.

Navy, which won this regatta last year, with the Pacific Coast entry, California, finishing second, and Cornell, with a crew up to the usual standard, are being highly touted tonight. Cornell has established a record in this classic unequalled in any other branch of sport, having won thirteen times and finished second five times out of twenty-five starts. It has defeated both Yale and Harvard this year.

LENGTH CHANGED

Upon the form and endurance displayed Monday depends the length of the course next year. Except for a three-mile race in 1895 and a two-mile event in 1920—both shortened because the nation was either at arms or recovering from war—the event was of four miles until last year. Everyone was not satisfied with the 1921 regatta and if there is more disappointment this year the fourth mile may be added again.

Over the four-mile course Columbia went from 1895 until 1914 without a victory, winning only the first regatta and finishing second six other times. Three times Pennsylvania has won, in 1895, 1898 and 1906, finishing second on three other occasions. Syracuse won five times, in 1904, '09, '13, '16 and in the shortened distance in 1920, with one second place in 1905 to its record.

TILDEN TO COMPETE FOR ILLINOIS TITLE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 25.—Several tennis champions of the country are entered in the Illinois State championship matches, which will begin tomorrow on the courts of the Exmoor Country Club. Play will continue throughout the week.

William T. Tilden II, Philadelphia, national title-holder, heads the list of celebrities. Among others are: Phil Bettens, three years junior champion of California; Vincent Richards, second ranking player in the country, and Julius Saglowski of Indianapolis, national boys' champion.

WASP WINS SLOOP RACE AT HARBOR

Norfolk Captures Trophy in Consistency Cruise at Newport

Paul Jeffer's Wasp romped off with first honors in the twelve-mile sloop race at the harbor yesterday, which ushered in the 1922 season of the Los Angeles Yacht Club. Mischief 1, owned by A. G. Maddock, carried off second money, while Brookes Hayr' Vite finished last among the three wind-jammers that started off Miner Pill.

The race was scheduled to start at 1 o'clock sharp, but because of a calm in the channel the yachtsmen were almost two hours late in making their getaway. It was a favorable wind that blew as the sloops began the journey toward Long Beach and the craft made speedy time. As the yachts were returning, however, they ran into a calm off Long Beach and the trip back to the bell buoy in the outer harbor was slow. The Wasp crossed the finish line just a short distance ahead of the Mischief 1, but the Vite was far to the rear.

The Newport Harbor Yacht Club opened its season with a twenty-one mile consistency cruise for motor cruisers. William Warmington's Norfolk won the Vice-Commodore Shirley E. Moseley trophy, Capt. Payne's Albacore was second and was awarded the New Port Harbor Club cup. The Seminole, owned by Capt. Baron, finished third, while Capt. Vibert's Ardath was fourth.

Defeats Espinosa of Oakland in Final Round

Match Goes to Extra Hole, Where Dutra Wins

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DEL MONTE, June 25.—Mortie Dutra of Pebble Beach won the finals of the Northern California Professional Golfers' Association tournament and the right to contend in the national open championship matches by defeating A. R. Espinosa of Oakland on the 37th green here today. Espinosa was disqualified on the extra hole of play for rushing the line of his putt with his hand. It was an unfortunate finish to a sensational match. In the morning round on the 17th hole a penalty stroke was called on Espinosa by Robert Hunter of Berkeley, referee, for accidentally moving his ball on the green. This cost him the hole and made the match all square at the end of the first with 18 holes.

Dutra was three down, making the turn for the last nine holes and came home one under par. Par out for the course is 37; par in 38, making par for the round 70.

BEES STING ANGELS TWICE

Salt Lakers Make It Six Out of Seven by Giving Seraphs Double Beating

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SALT LAKE CITY, June 25.—Salt Lake made it six out of seven today when Gould and Meyer set the Killefers down to 7 to 3 and 6 to 4 in a classy double bill here this afternoon.

Meyers (Uncle Bim, Meyers is what the fans call him) hadn't given the Angels a look at the ball up to the third inning when he figured that Umps McGrew knew less about balls and strikes than he did and the Umps promptly sent Meyers to the clubhouse. Meyers returned for the second game, Tome Hughes hadn't let the Bees get much of a slant at the ball up to this time, but both pitchers compromised, and the result was that after three scoreless innings the clubs took two apiece in the fourth.

BEES TAKE TWO

The Angels got over in the following manner: Deal lived on an error and Griggs walked. Lindimore sacrificed and Carrol scored both runners with a two-bagger. Paddy Siglin walked in Salt Lake's half of the fourth and Strand singled; both scored when Wilhoit and Lewis followed with hits. The Bees took two in the sixth when Wilhoit singled and Lewis doubled scoring Wilhoit. Tony Lazzeri chased the skipper across with a stinging single. The Bees added three more in the eighth, while Art Griggs made a final show for the Angels by hooking a home run in the ninth.

The second chapter of the book might be titled. "The return of the prodigal," or "The revenge of Uncle Bim," but at any rate Meyers made good his determination to win a ball game today.

The Bees started the game viciously getting two in the first when Siglin singled and Strand put the ball out of the lot. The Bees continued viciously in the second and scored Lewis on hits by himself, Andnson and Meyers. In the third Siglin walked and Strand singled. Siglin scored on two fierce-outs, Paddy scored in the fifth all by himself on a four ply clout.

McAULEY TRIPLES

In the sixth the Angels took three. McAuley opened with a triple and scored on Twombly's sacrifice. Deal doubled and Art Griggs joined the home run column for the second game as well as the first.

Lazzeri homed for the Bees in their half of the sixth and the Angels made it four in the seventh when Daly doubled and Lyons scored him with a single.

Griggs and Strand count five home runs apiece for the week. Elmer Ponder will not leave with the club. He is to be confined in a hospital here for another week at least in order that his shoulder may be kept in a fixed position, thus aiding the recovery from his injury.

CHAMPION REFUSES TO WORRY

Walter Miller Confident He Can Spill Jap in Big Wrestling Match

Everything will go in the coming wrestling match at the Los Angeles Athletic Club next Thursday night, between Taro Miyake and Walter Miller, with the exception of using guns or strangle holds. Such was the daring statement issued by Walter Miller, wrestling instructor of the L.A.A.C., and claimant to the world's middleweight wrestling championship.

In other words, Miller doesn't care whether Miyake wears his nice, new recently-imported white jiu-jitsu jacket or if he enters the ring barefooted.

IS CONFIDENT

The local grappler is the essence of confidence. He feels he can beat Miyake hands down, despite the weight advantage the Japanese wrestler will have and even if the latter chooses to weave into his American-style wrestling everything he knows about jiu-jitsu.

From the way Miller talks, local followers of the mat sport are going to be afforded an opportunity of watching one of the roughest and most thrilling matches staged here since the memorable Miyake-Ed Strangler" Lewis imbroglio—and that was some affair.

Just how far the bout will go is questionable. However, it is a cinch that the wrestling ring of the Athletic Club is due for a thorough workout on Thursday evening when these two wild men of the squared circle set to work.

Miyake is a genuine catch-as-catch-can grappler. His reputation is known the country over, as he has been meeting the best in the game for years. And he is coming here with the express purpose of proving to local fans that Japanese athletes are expert exponents of the American style of grappling and that Kinjo Ikeda is by no means an example of the Japanese type of wrestlers.

Charley Keppen, athletic manager of the L.A.A.C., arranged the tilt and a thoroughly exciting evening should result when these two gladiators of the mat do their stuff.

The principals will wrestle at catch weights. The bout will be two out of three falls with a two-hour time limit.

RUNS IN 9 3-10THS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EDDIE MAIER SOME PROPHET

E. R. Maier, president and owner of the Vernon club, naturally was yesterday in a mood most easily described as "What-did-I-tell-you-last-spring."

Mr. Maier predicted, although modesty may prevent him from admitting as much, that Portland would be hopelessly handicapped by the presence of a couple of unruly players, that the Los Angeles pitching staff would fail to deliver, that Seattle wouldn't come through and that San Francisco was shy of pitching. Three-quarters of the Maier prediction has come true. San Francisco has managed to elude this line of dope.

Result of series was species of revenge for Bill Essick. Bill became plum mad last spring when Turner or Kenworthy, or whoever was manager of the Beavers at that time, opined that Vernon was no stronger than last season. Last season the Tigers had no keystone combination. Now they have.

Here's a Problem

If two Caucasian grapplers are unable to pin Walter Miller's shoulders to the mat, as indicated above, how long will it take one oriental wrestler to accomplish the task? The problem may be solved next Thursday night when the middleweight champion hooks up with Taro Miyake (shown below) at the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

CHAMPIONS IN TITLE MITTFEST

Leonard and Britton to Have It Out at Madison Square Tonight

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 24.—For the first time in twenty-eight years New York boxing enthusiasts will witness a decision contest in which the welterweight champion will defend his laurels against the boss of the lightweight division, when Jack Britton, the Daddy of the present fighters, climbs through the ropes of the New York ring Monday night to battle Benny Leonard fifteen rounds.

Britton wound up his hard work of two weeks today at Saratoga Springs, and when he jumped on the scales he tipped the beam at 145½ pounds. Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock he will weigh in before the Boxing Commission and he must be 147 pounds or under.

A large crowd of up-state fans saw Britton go through his last paces.

This is the third meeting in several years between Britton and Leonard. They clashed for ten rounds at the Commonwealth Club, and most of the experts agreed Benny was entitled to the victory.

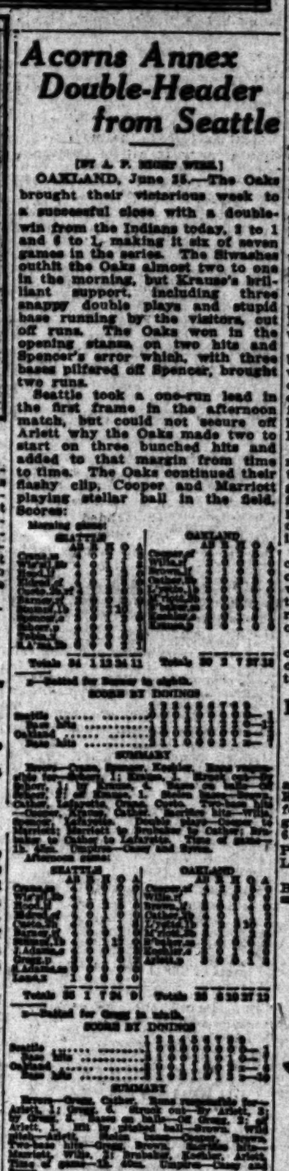
Acorns Annex Double-Header from Seattle

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OAKLAND, June 25.—The Oaks brought their victorious week to a successful close with a double-win from the Indians today, 2 to 1 and 6 to 1, making it six of seven games in the series. The Siwashes outhit the Oaks almost two to one in the morning, but Krause's brilliant support, including three snappy double plays and stupid base running by the visitors, cut off runs. The Oaks won in the opening stanza on two hits and Spencer's error which, with three bases pilfered off Spencer, brought two runs.

Seattle took a one-run lead in the first frame in the afternoon match, but could not secure off Arlett why the Oaks made two to start on three bunched hits and added to that margin from time to time. The Oaks continued their flashy clip, Cooper and Marriott playing stellar ball in the field. Scores:



NEW TAX ON BETS NETS A BIG SUM

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ONTARIO, June 25.—The new tax of 5 per cent on money wagered in the mutuels netted the Ontario government $213,790.10 from the Woodbine and $170,915.15 from Thorncliffe meetings recently finished. In addition, there was also the government tax of $7500 daily, or $52,500 for the meeting, which means that the government got $270,790.10 from the Ontario Jockey Club, and $223,415.15 from Thorncliffe for a grand total of $494,205. This does not include the Ontarion Government amusement tax of 25 cents on every admission ticket.

CHAMP TO SIGN TOMORROW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 24. — When articles are signed for the proposed world's heavyweight championship battle between Jack Dempsey, the title-holder, and Harry Wills, New Orleans negro challenger, a provision in the agreement will give Promoter Tex Rickard a period of ninety days in which to name the time and place, according to present plans of the promoter. Rickard declared today that the boxers and their managers would be assembled Tuesday for the formal signing of a legal document which will bind the principals to fight for the title at a time and place to be determined later. The promoter plans to stipulate in the agreement that he be allowed a ninety-day period, ending on June 30, 1923, in which to acquaint the principals of the battleground and date. In arranging this detail Rickard will be following the custom observed when he signed Dempsey and Carpentier.

Paddy Mullins, manager of Willis, visited the promoter today and sought to induce Rickard to conduct the bout this year, preferably without delay. To this Rickard said that he would not attempt to stage the mach as an outdoor attraction during the current season.

CHAMP TO SIGN TOMORROW

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, arrived here today from his home in Los Angeles.

Coincident with Dempsey's arrival, it was announced that a contract for a match with Harry Wills of New Orleans, negro challenger, to be staged by Promoter Tex Rickard, may be signed tomorrow.

Kanaka Maid Sets New World Mark in Sprint

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HONOLULU (T. H.) June 25.—Johnny Weismuller, the Illinois Athletic Club's swimming marvel, last night added another world's record to the long string he already had chalked up on his trip to Hawaii, by winning the 220-yard free style in 2m. 12 2-5s. The former record, 2h. 24 1-5s., was held by Perry McGillivray of the Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago.

Weismuller swam to his fresh victory spurred on by the cheers of noblas of Medina Temple of the Mystic Shrine of Chicago, who accompanied Imperial Potentate James E. McCandless on his trip to his Hawaiian home.

Medina's chasers, however, lost their potency in the 100-yard backstroke event, in which Warren Kealoha of the Hui Makani of Honolulu, beat the Chicago lad and at the same time cracked his own world record. Time, 1m. 5 2-5s. Kealoha's previous record had been 1m. 8s. flat.

Kealoha led in the backstroke from the start, despite Weismuller's frantic efforts to catch him. Sam Kahanamoku, brother of the famous Duke, sprang a surprise in the 220-yard free style, in which Weismuller set a new world's mark, by taking second place from Pua Kealoha, another Hui Makani star and one of Hawaii's best swimmers.

Still another world record went by the board in the fifty-yard women's open event when Marie-chen Wehselau of Honolulu covered the distance in 27 2-5s., beating the premier mark heretofore held jointly by herself and Ethelda Bleibtrey by one second.

Helen Moses of Honolulu, a member of the American swimming team at the Antwerp Olympic games, won the 440-yard women's free style junior national championship in 6m. 37 2-5s. Marie-chen Wehselau did not compete in this event.

The junior national high diving championship went to James Foley of the Hui Makani of Honolulu, while Sam Kahanamoku captured the seventy-five-yard surf board race. Time, 30 2-5s., breaking his own Hawaiian record of 32s. flat.

Between races the band and chanters of Al Malaikah Temple of the Shrine of Los Angeles entertained the packed stands.

People are beginning to wonder by what sort of percentage the Pacific Coast League pennant will be won this year.

Question was put to me Saturday, when the Vernon club stood just twenty games above the .500 mark. And the race is only twelve weeks old. Should the Tigers show the same ratio of gain in the remaining sixteen weeks the pennant would be put away by the tallest percentage ever achieved by a team in this circuit.

Recently the race has developed into a runaway affair with Vernon and San Francisco doing most of the running. True, none of the clubs is hopelessly out of it, but unless there is a brace within the next month it may develop into a two-team affair, and that would be bad for the circuit. But these are matters beyond human control.

Portland's collapse under most adverse conditions removed one contender. Seattle and Oakland have shown little. Salt Lake has taken a brace after a late start, followed by a terrific slump. Twice the Bees have come back after periods of reverse which would have taken the heart and fight out of some clubs. They may not be potential champions, but any club which can do that is a possible champion. Sacramento is the season's largest disappointment.

Los Angeles has not shown the expected improvement. The club needs another infielder, one more outfielder and an added pitcher. Right now we will mention no names, as the going is rocky enough for certain players on the Angel roster, but it is not difficult to see in what positions games are being lost, and the club never will be a real baseball machine until the matter is rectified, or words to that effect. These flat wheels in the team were apparent from the start, but it was hoped they would wear smooth. They have failed to do this.

The Angels performed somewhat of a miracle the final month of the race last year, winning the pennant with the second or possibly third best team in the league. Such performances are seldom repeated. Despite the great element of luck in baseball, as a rule championships are grounded on the bedrock of ability.

That the club is lacking in adjustability and may be shy of inherent strength is indicated by the situation brought about by the crippling of Elmer Ponder.

It affected the team somewhat like a crushing punch to the chin of an opponent in the ring. It was a staggering blow to the morale of the club, apparently. Also, it resulted in a hurry-up call to Chicago for reinforcements.

What happened when Shellenback failed to deliver for Vernon? Nothing. When James broke a finger? Nothing. When Gilder also fractured a finger? Nothing. When May split his hand? Nothing. When Love's arm failed? Nothing. When Faeth broke his foot? Nothing. When Dell split a rib? Nothing.

The Tigers went right along winning ball games. They went to the front of the league and increased that frontage. With every heaver on the staff injured at one time or another, and sometimes in bunches, the balance of the club did not appear to be appreciably disturbed.

On the other hand, injury of one Los Angeles pitcher looms as a body blow. This incident to me brings out the best line of comparison between the two teams.

In short, Vernon has greater mobility and plasticity and better reserve strength.

When the Tigers lacked pitching they displayed the ability to go out and get sufficient runs to win behind any kind of pitching. They have been lucky, as any winning team must be, but they have been alert to grab any lump of luck which came their way. I have seen the Tigers win a good many close games by some right-handed batter flicking a short fly into neutral territory in right field. Such hits, as all know, are flukes. Other teams probably get just as many fluke hits, but they may mean nothing. When these things happen with Vernon the Tigers generally have men on bases. And they have men on bases because they are playing ball. Not only do Esmick's men help make their own luck, but they keep themselves in a position to take advantage of these breaks. Any club which does this is a good ball team.

Getting back to pennant-winning percentages, we find Portland holding the top mark with a finishing figure of .657 in 1906. I don't know the particulars of that race, but most of the other clubs must have famished for lack of attendance the last three months. Los Angeles copped with a mark of .630 in 1903. Percentages of this sort do not bespeak a good pennant race. Others winning by better than .600 were Los Angeles again in 1905, 1907 and 1916, San Francisco in 1909 and Vernon in 1919.

Los Angeles won the flag last year with a percentage of .574, winning 108 games and losing 80. Lowest figure at which gonfalon was ever grabbed in this circuit was in 1920, when Vernon won with a mark of .556. Portland, with .559 in 1915, ranks next. As a general thing, if it is any kind of a contest, less than .600 will turn the trick, but, unless there is a general bracing of weak spots along the western front, the final accounting may foot up in excess of that.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Vincent Richards won in both the singles and doubles in the finals of the Metropolitan clay court lawn tennis championships here today. In the singles Richards defeated Francis T. Hunter, national indoor champion, 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

CAPONI PREPARES FOR MILL IN LOCAL RING

Tony Caponi, the gentlemanly featherweight from New York, has started work for a prospective match with Benny Vierra or Harry Pelsinger. Caponi shapes up well in the gymnasium and carries himself with the grace and confidence of an audience pleaser. Caponi, who is being handled by Billy (Doc) Morris, representing Leo P. Flynn, looks like a dangerous opponent for Vierra, and his talkative manager says this match would make the fans forget last Friday's main event near-fiasco.

A Vierra-Caponi bout would make an attractive fistic morsel for the next Hollywood offering.

SHELDON COMPANY TO DEEPEN ITS SHAFT

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) June 23.—J. R. Ackerman, in charge of the Sheldon Copper Company's operations in the Walker section, states that the shaft, now 650 feet deep, is to be extended to 850 feet to continue exploration of a strong copper ledge already well developed on levels down to 850 feet. The ore is chalcopyrite and bornite, with high gold and silver values and much iron, making it ideal for smelting. It is bettering in quality with depth. The company's stock is on the New York Curb, though most of it is in inside hands.

For an announced consideration of $100,000, the Jumbo Mining Company has sold to the Arizona Triple Mountain Copper Corporation a large number of mining claims on the southern boundary line of Yavapai county, in the White Picacho mining district, with inclusion of a mill site in Maricopa county.

The property of the Bannie Gold Mining and Milling Company has been transferred by the sheriff to R. M. Garrett, a negro barber of Prescott, in the sum of $66,276 after judgment in the Superior court. The transfer includes ten mining claims and a millsite in Walker district, near the Sheldon mine.

YANKEES TORN BY FRICTION

Something Due to Happen to Huggins's Pampered Set of High-Priced Players

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Something is going to happen to that Yankee baseball club in a very few days, and when the blowup comes it will serve to blast several well-known ball players right out of this town. The owners of the club have gone about as far as they dare with their investment without taking some drastic action. When the lid goes it might involve the manager, Miller Huggins, but more is the pity for the game little fellow has done everything within his possibilities to restore harmony among a lot of petted and pampered ball tossers in an effort to make them winners.

There is no use ducking behind facts and the facts are these: The Yankee club as at present constructed is not a good ball club. It is altogether too palpable that several of the high-priced athletes are lying down on Manager Huggins in the hope of having him dethroned. Friction aplenty has wrecked the team on the present trip and the owners have decided on some heroic measures to place the club where it belongs.

Of course, when a club is losing ball games it always looks bad. Then again it must be admitted that the absence of Frank Baker, Wally Schang and the redoubtable Babe Ruth is a serious handicap to the team. But the rest of the gang do not appear to be trying. The pitchers are slopping over in their work and not a member of the five pitching aces has been able to return a decent game in more than a fortnight.

Wear
The Kind That Cuts Mileage Costs

Mileage—the basis of wise tire-buying—is the measure of wear a tire gives.

Firestone Cord construction has shown to hundreds of thousands its uniformly superior wear. And a vast following recognizes the fact that Firestone Mileage is the most economical to be bought today.

This is because Firestone has refused to sacrifice any manufacturing process, no matter how difficult, that meant added wear for the user.

Firestone Cords are built oversize with extra bulk of rubber and cord. The great strength of carcass for which they are famous is the result of double gum-dipping the cords, and curing under internal expansion on air-bags to align and straighten the cords instead of on the ordinary iron cores. Easier and cheaper methods might have been used, but only at a loss of mileage and dependability.

Firestone Cords give these plus values without additional cost to you, because large-scale production, thorough organization and exceptional facilities have effected big economies.

Most Miles per Dollar

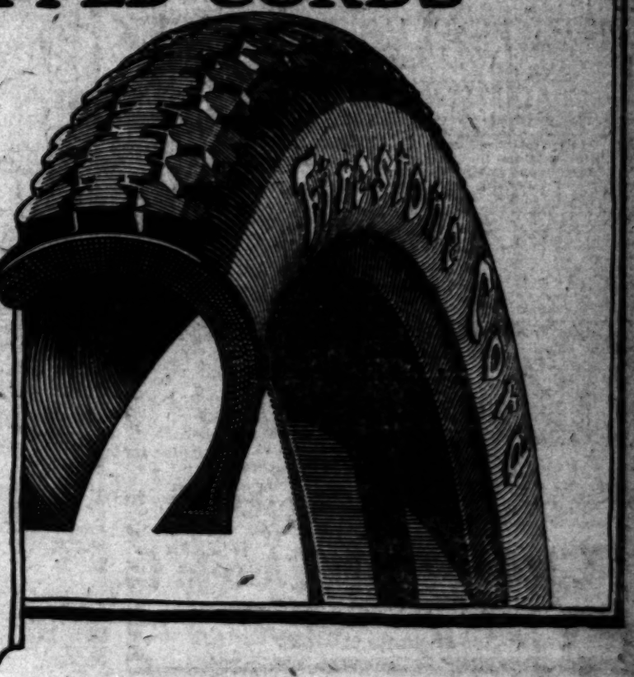
GUM-DIPPED CORDS

FABRIC
30x3 ..... $7.90—$8.95
30x3½ ..... 8.90— 10.65
CORD
30x3½ ..... $13.75—$17.20
32x4 ..... 32.40
32x4½ 41.30
33x5 ..... 52.15
(Plus Tax)



No wonder Firestone Cords give such phenomenal mileage. Double gum-dipped, air-bag cured—and every Firestone Cord is extra size. Note in the cross-section the difference in the size—the greater bulk of rubber and cord—of a Firestone as compared to a fabric or ordinary cord. Look before you buy—you are entitled to Most Miles per Dollar—and you get it in the BIG Firestone Cords.

SELECT GIRLS FOR TRACKFEST

Katherine Grimm, Gladys Gardner to Compete

Funds Needed to Send Them to Meet in France

The team which will defend the honor of the United States in the women's international track and field championships at Paris next August will include two Southern California girls who have displayed real ability in a branch of sport that has only recently been taken up by the feminine gender. Miss Katherine May Grimm of Redondo and Miss Gladys Gardner of Los Angeles are the only two girls on the Pacific Coast to be selected for the team of fourteen which will make the trip from America, and efforts are being made to secure donations sufficient to defray their expenses.

The national committee has no funds this year to finance the trip for such a large team, and the athletes will be sent by either institutions of which they are members or their families.

Both Miss Gardner and Miss Grimm are training under the direction of Alma Richards, former Olympic champion. Miss Gardner is able to do the 1000-meter run under 3:20 and Miss Grimm has done five feet in the high jump in practice. The American record for girls' high jump is 4ft. 9in. In the meet held at Lincoln High School, Los Angeles, Miss Grimm cleared 4ft. 7¾in., which is the best that has been made this year. In England the champion holds a record of but 4ft. 6in. Miss Grimm made her record without any training and jumping alone.

The team was picked from the winners in the tryout meet held at Oaksmere School in the East and the telegraphic track meet, which was handled by Howard G. Cleaveland of Long Beach, who is the Pacific representative of the National Women's Track Athletic Committee, which has had charge of and been boosting girls' track athletics, the membership and work being purely voluntary on the part of the members of the committee.

Those who will be in charg of the American delegation of fair athletes are: National Chairman Dr. Harry Eaton Stewart, physician and coach; Mrs. Harry Eaton Stewart, chaperone; Miss Suzanne Becker of Leonia (N. J.) High School, assistant coach; Miss Floreida Batson, New York City, captain sprints.

PENNANT RACE IS EXCITING

Three Teams in Running in American Circuit; But Giants Hold Big Lead

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—While the New York Giants are making pretty much of a runaway race of it in the National League, despite a series of reverses last week, the pennant hunt in the American circuit has developed into a spectacular three-club affair.

The St. Louis Browns, breaking even in four games with Detroit as a result of today's shutout victory, increasing their margin to three and a half games over the second-place Yankees, who were idle today, and to four and a half games over the battling Tigers.

The Giants, by winning from Boston, retained their lead of five games over St. Louis and five and a half over Brooklyn, both of whom kept pace with the leaders by winning.

The Yankees, further handicapped by the third suspension this season of Babe Ruth, continued in the throes of the dismal slump that cost them their leadership and has jeopardized even their hold on second place in the face of the Tigers' rush.

Bracing momentarily against Cleveland, the Hugmen dropped four straight to the Red Sox, and have now lost twelve out of their last fourteen games. The team's hitting and pitching both have been woefully weak.

The Browns, with Williams and Sisler leading a terrific attack, and fortified by steady pitching, will be hard to displace, while Ty Cobb has his outfit hitting a dangerous pace.

VISITOR ON TOP IN SHOOTFEST

Jim Hurst Captures Vernon Gun Club Trophy

Fancy Program Scheduled by Bruner for July 2

For the second consecutive Sunday a visiting trapshooter has won the top honors at the Vernon Gun Club. Last Sunday Fred Bair from Northern California cleaned up in the annual registered tournament, while yesterday Jim Hurst of Covina was the winner by several birds.

Yesterday's shoot was at 100 targets from sixteen yards in four frames and brought out a good-sized crowd despite sultry weather —weather, where dropping a line in some pool alive with trout, or dipping into a cold breaker at the beach, is usually preferred.

Hurst's appearance at Vernon yesterday was his first. He missed a bird in the first twenty-five and a target in the last frame. The score of ninety-eight for his initial score at Vernon probably will make him a regular.

C. N. White and J. W. Meek tied for the second high score, each breaking 94x100. Charlie Margrave was third high with his 93x100 score.

"Pop" Bruner, president of the club, announced last night that a husky program is being mapped out for next Sunday. A registered club tournament and special events are tentatively planned.

Large Crowd in Attendance at Last Gunfest on L. A. Club's Old Site

The last shoot to be staged by the Los Angeles Gun Club on the original site before moving to the new location at Griffith Park was pulled off with ceremony yesterday, with L. B. Clarke leading the field with a 99x100 score. An A. T. A. trophy went to Clarke by virtue of this performance.

A. H. Brady finished second with a record of 98x100, while E. M. Nutting and M. W. Page tied for third place, each dusting off 97x100. The former won the club cup in the toss-up.

A. Reese Martin won the trophy in the miss-and-out event, while J. F. Patterson and E. M. Nutting tied for honors in the doubles. Scores:

Seals Divide Honors With Capital Crew

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, June 25.—Ira Colwell, purchased last week from the Calgary club of the late Western International League, made his debut on the Moreing lot this afternoon and lost to the Seals by a score of 7 to 3. The new hurler pitched winning ball, except in the fourth inning when three singles, a triple, a sacrifice hit and a base on balls put four San Francisco runs into the score sheet. The Seals collected for three more tallies, but errors figured in these. Sacramento took the morning tilt at Stockton by a score of 6 to 5, dividing the bill for the day, but giving the visitors six out of seven games for the series. Scores:

TIGERS SPLIT WITH BEAVERS

in Florida bites lady bather on leg. Goldfish howls will hereafter be built to accommodate sperm whales. Whale in parlor is latest fad. Sane persons will not dip fingers in finger bowl following fish dinner. Hand might be snapped off by man-eating shark. Greasy mitt is tempting bait. Hand which feeds human face may also feed shark. Only safe way is to let meat hand oiled up with grub go unwashed. Hands will then match feet. Do as the soviets do.

Pores in Frank Brazil's skin must be as large as carbuncles. Anyway, judging from condition of socks, he is the champion sweater. He oozes perspiration like a cloud does April showers in May. Moisture settles in stockings. Mr. Brazil then slides in dust, thus mixing his own mud in mid-summer. He reminds one of the Mudville hero who waded to the plate in order to strike out, except that he seldom does.

Athlets with sticky loam adhering to his socks can't compete as a summer attraction with bathing nymph in one-piece bathing suit draped on sand. Hence mad rush which carried fans past ball park to beach.

Suds Sutherland picked out Sunday as a suitable time to have a good day, and outpitched Wheezer Dell until the fourth inning. He would have continued to outpitch Mr. Dell had Wheezer continued. Nothing doing with Jess Doyle thereafter. Ping Bodie flied out for Jess in eighth, and Jim Jam Jolly did the last act.

Wolfer whanged a double right at start of opener, and scored on a brace of outs. The same thing happened when Brazil doubled in second. Vernon grabbed one in third on Hannah's walk, Dell's single, Sutherland's wild heave to catch Wheezer off first and the usual timely hit by J. Carlisle Smith.

Portland put the pastime away in fourth. Charley High, first up, busted homer onto eighth tier of seats in right-field bleachers. Young Mr. High proved himself democratic by dropping his homer among the common peepul in the four-bit seats, instead of knocking it over the left-field fence and into laps of the Main-street plutocrats. Hughie High, brother of Charlie, although on the other side, could be observed swelling up with family pride when the homer happened. Doubles by Brazil and Grassett, surrounding a fielder's choice, scored two more and put the quietus on Wheezer. Portland grabbed one off Jolly in ninth.

Vernon became spectacular in ninth and Portland was quaint. Smith led off with two-bagger. Chadbourne grounded to Sutherland, who ran over and had Smith trapped on line single-handed, but threw to Sargent. Smith was chased back to second, now occupied by Chadbourne. Chad relinquished this position, and attention was turned to him as he emerged into the open. In run-down which followed, Beavers ran down themselves, Smith sliding into third ahead of Poole's throw across diamond to Sargent, and Chadbourne regaining second. Hawks walked, filling bases. Hughie High singled Smith across. Hyatt sent short fly to left for single, counting Chad. Gressett should have had fly. McCann mitted Sawyer's foul for nice catch after Schneider had been sent in to run for Hyatt. French forced Schneider at second, Hawks scoring on out. Hannah walked, filling bases some more and putting winning run on first. Murphy, batting for Jolly, flied to Brazil and winning run on first never survived to reach second. Such is baseball, most peculiar game extant. Scores:

JUVENAL RECALLS PECULIAR VICTORY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Jim Juvenal, old-time single sculling star oarsman of the Schuylkill Navy, Philadelphia, recalls a victory over a mile-and-a-quarter course on the Schuylkill River, Philadelphia, in 7m. 19s. It was in the people's regatta, July 4, 1900, in the senior single sculls race against John Rumohr a Canadian wearing the colors of the Harlem R.C.N.Y., originally scheduled for a mile and a half, interference by a man towing rowboats across the river, caused the referee to restart the race at the quarter mile from the start and Juvenal won. Hoover beat Costello in 7m. 24s. in the Philadelphia Challenge Cup race over the same course recently.

COSTLY FIRE IN BIG WHEAT FIELD

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FRESNO, June 25.—Fire said to have started during the harvesting of a large crop of wheat in the fields of E. B. Brown, eight miles from Westhaven, yesterday afternoon destroyed about 1500 acres of standing grain valued at about $200,000, according to reports received here.

Calls for help were sent to Coalinga and many men responded, led by Fire Warden W. T. Hayes. A strip three miles wide and about four miles long was burned.

MUST SERVE TERM

Edwin Ware, styled the Midget Bandit, who was convicted here after a series of robberies and holdups, was denied probation when his case came before Judge C. E. Beaumont. He will serve a term in San Quentin prison. His father is Lieut. Harvey H. Ware of the New York City Police Department.

James Gordon, a miner from Butte, sang his way into a job here last night.

Gordon was singing on the street last night minus a permit, and was brought to headquarters by the police. He sang to them. They called a theater manager and Gordon was engaged to appear in a local playhouse.

TO FILM PITCH PLAY

Mary Miles Minter will start work next Monday under the direction of Charles Maigne on "The Cowboy and the Lady," with Tom Moore playing the male lead. "The Cowboy and the Lady" is one of Clyde Fitch's plays, and is a story of the West with a mingling of society and the rugged characters of the frontier.

SEEKS HEAVY DAMAGES

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, June 25.—Asking $50,000 for injuries received, $1000 exemplary damages and $100 for his horse, W. C. Cunningham has filed suit against Candido Leandro, a rancher of the Visalia district, for $51,100. Cunningham claims that he was attacked on the highway, beaten over the head with a four foot iron pipe and his horse taken away from him April 25th of this year, as he was driving along the road.

AMERICA ROOT OF ALL EVILS

Foreign Press Puts Blame on This Country

United States Guilty for Not Assuming Burdens

Wanting Uncle Sam's Money Becomes Epidemic

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 25.—It is futile to protest our innocence any longer. America may as well come out and confess she has an exclusive monopoly on all the international crimes and blunders. The grand jury of interallied newspaper propaganda, ever probing into international dishonesty, has indicted America on the following counts:

Causing riots, stagnation, disease, and death in world industry and trade; inciting small countries to war, encouraging Turks, Armenians and Greeks in intestine massacres; ditto Germans and Poles; ditto Italians and Serbs; ditto Arabs vs. French, British; ditto Russians and anti-Reds; sabotage at the Genoa conference, foreclosing mortgages on widows, orphans and war cripples; usury, agnosticism, mayhem, arson, driving an automobile on the wrong side of the street and chewing gum during office hours.

THE FOURTEEN POINTS

As surely as the English know that Wilson's fourteen points caused all these embarrassing independence movements in Egypt, the Arab world and India, the Egyptians realize that the only reason the British limited their independence to a British-appointed King was because one of the first demands of America in getting in the World War, was that Egypt should get no other government but the one established there now. The Arabs also are aware that America was the leading inspiration Great Britain had in sponsoring Zionism. The French, too, are not a bit deceived by the recent appearance of Charles Crane in Syria. Although Mr. Crane, who was head of the American commission to inquire into the advisability of accepting the mandate for Turkey, made his recent trip to Syria presumably as a private citizen, the French newspapers both in Beirut and Constantinople, have exposed that he was sent to Damascus by the State Department to get the Arabs to renew their riots for independence. On the other hand, the Syrians attribute the presence of France in Syria to the demands of America that Christian minorities must be protected.

MILLIONS DON'T COUNT

The Armenians of course blame America for letting them die; the American Near East Relief having spent only $60,000,000, a paltry $60,000,000 for every man, woman and child in the country, to feed and clothe them. The soviet republic of Armenia is prospering as much as Armenia ever prospered, but nevertheless Armenia can never feel the same toward America for not sending 300,000 soldiers to resist the invasion of the Turks on one hand and the Russians on the other. The Greeks also point an accusing finger at America for not financing their war against Mustapha Kemal in liberating Greeks over half of Turkey from the cruel yoke of the Turks.

This list of crimes perpetrated by Uncle Sam could be lengthened indefinitely, to include the accusations of Lithuania because Poland got Vilna and the condemnation of Poland because the phrase "self-determination of peoples" was not amended to read only "self-determination of Poles." Space however prevents publication of each special grievance.

AMERICANS ALL WRONG

But not only the American government suffers. One has only to read the subsidized English and French papers in any European capital to get a line on the individual American, his lack of culture, ideals and toothpaste, his vanity and avariciousness, the selfish motives behind his ostentatious generosity and foreign policy. Hired Turkish newspapers have even revealed to a gasping world all the low down intrigues of the Standard Oil Company, how it has spent $2,000,000 here in some ulterior scheme to set the Bosporus on fire, to ravage the city and raise merry hell! It has nailed as totally absurd the assertions of the Standard Oil officials that the erection of the latest model tanks here were constructed to enable that concern to sell oil expeditiously, cheaply, and in large leters safely. All the Standard Oil has done is to keep a couple of thousand men on the pay roll during the unemployment crisis the last two years, but a glance at the subsidized press would indicate that this company had invented a special device for the burning of Moslem babies and was giving a gallon of oil with each appliance.

GOLD ALL TIED UP

In Athens, in Bucharest, in Warsaw, even in poor, maltreated Vienna, the people are told that the only reason there are hard times is that America has all the gold and won't let France and England get any of it to dole out to the smaller countries for railroads, customs, mines, stockyards, and the other luxuries of a country. The British and French press throughout Europe emphasize the only reason they insist on payment from debtor nations and want Germany to pay reparations is because of the greed of America.

And America, not having the dough to subsidize a newspaper and besides it not being proper in the eyes of the State Department to carry on our own propaganda except as can be done without cost, remains convicted without even having a consul appointed for her defense.

IMPERIAL IS ADAPTED TO GROW FRUIT

Orchards Will Replace Cotton and Vegetables, is Belief

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CALEXICO, June 25.—The plan to colonize farm lands in and around Calexico with disabled ex-service men so as to promote a denser population by cutting the acreage into small farms will in thirty years make Imperial Valley one great orchard. Those in touch with the situation here believe more money can be made in orchards than in cotton, vegetables or cantaloupes.

Fruit raised in Imperial Valley, according to statements made, can be marketed two weeks ahead of fruits raised in any part of the United States. With water available and with the proven success of orchards already here, there is no reason why culture of the land should not turn gradually and steadily toward orchards and fruit raising.

Whether or not soldier trainees brought into this section would be encouraged along these lines or not has not been announced and may come up for consideration in working out details of the trainee plan, but it is reasonable to suppose that as they go along here and become acclimated and educated to the fine points of intensive cultivation they will return to fruit raising.

STABBED BY NEURITIS!

Many people suffer attacks by this archfiend, commonly called "nerve inflammation." The first warning is usually a sharp, stabbing pain, which may "come and go" or hurt constantly. You may feel it in the shoulder, neck, forearm, small of the back or down the thigh and leg to the heel. It is sometimes mistaken for sciatica, rheumatism or neuralgia, which troubles often do end up in neuritis.

No matter where you have nerve pains or what caused them, you can get quick relief without taking a few bromides, narcotics, or other dope. Just take two Tyamol Tablets in hot water, and in a few minutes the pain will be gone.

Tyamol Tablets have a soothing, healing effect upon the diseased nerves, gradually helping to restore them to healthy condition.

Don't suffer any longer. Price $1 at any leading druggist. Tyamol Company, Mfg. Chemist, 400 Sutter St., San Francisco.—[Advertisement.]

Home vs. the Bright Lights

The nursery should be sunny and cheerful, bright colored drapes should contrast with light walls of neutral tint. Woodwork in Ivory. A Mother Goose border with bright colored figures above the moulding and possibly other figures here and there on the walls, interest the kiddies. A dark stained floor rather than rugs. Paint of the washable kind should be used on the woodwork.

Whether your young folks stay in evenings is largely a matter of competition between the attractiveness of home and the lure of the bright lights.

FIND MURDER TRAIL CLEWS

Intercepted Letter Aids in Search for Suspects

Local Officers Broadcast Descriptions of Men

Slayers of Shedenhelm Are Believed Identified

With the interception of a letter addressed to a member of the bandit gang that is thought by the police to be responsible for the murder of Lester T. Shedenhelm, local detectives yesterday doubled their efforts in the search for John Forrest and Jack Meyers, missing members of the gang. It was in the intercepted letter that the detectives found two addresses which are thought may be the rendezvous for the missing men.

One of the addresses was in Salinas, the other was 959 O'Farrel street, San Francisco. Officers in these places were seeking for Forrest and Meyers all day yesterday. It is thought by the police that other members of the gang will be found at these addresses.

BULLETIN STATE

In addition to the 5000 circulars which the Southern California Automobile Club has sent out many more were sent out yesterday by the local detective bureau. This does not include the many telegrams which have been sent during the last few days. Fifty of these were dispatched yesterday. The telegrams cover every main highway leading from the State, it is said. Each telegram contains a description of the men that are wanted, as well as a detailed account of the cars in which they are thought to be traveling.

One of the cars is believed to be a Peerless four-passenger roadster, while the other is said to be a Buick. Both of the cars are thought to have been stolen by the gang.

The police have recovered a Studebaker car from the gang. This apparently was stolen, but it has been cleverly disguised. It is being held at the Wilshire Police Station.

GUNS AS EVIDENCE

Besides this machine, four guns which were taken from four members of the gang are being held by the police. Police say that these guns are similar to those used in shooting Shedenhelm in Griffith Park on May 31.

Officers of the local police department and operatives of the Automobile Club said last night that they expected to conclude their work within a few hours. Detective Harry Hicock of the Automobile Club and Officers Spinner, Ryan, Dryden and Johnson are carrying on the search for Meyers and Forrest.

ANTHONY WITH COOGAN

Walter Anthony, musical critic and dramatic writer, has been added to the staff of the Jackie Coogan Productions. Mr. Anthony will employ his time in the scenario department and will act in a general advisory capacity in so far as the Coogan pictures are concerned. Anthony needs little introduction to the film world. For many years he was a dramatic editor of large Pacific Coast newspapers and later came to Los Angeles, where the movies lured him away from the newspaper desk. He has written the titles for Jack Coogan's "Oliver Twist," and there is a possibility he will also compile an elaborate musical setting for the production.

MONDAY MORNING, JUNE 26, 1922.—PART II: 16 PAGES. POPULATION (By the Federal Census (1920)—576,673 By the City Directory (1922)—691,251)

THEY ALL WANT TO WIN BEAUTIFUL NEW HOMES

Prizes in the "Times" $70,000 Campaign are Tempting Many to Enter Race

"Homeseeking" promises to be the popular pastime for many men and women in Los Angeles and most of the Southwest, judging by the eagerness with which they are entering The Times' $70,000 prize campaign. The beautiful $16,500 home in Wilshire Crest and the $8000 bungalow to be erected in West Hollywood tract, which head the long list of costly prizes, are winning new hearts every day, and the list of entrants is swelling rapidly.

All the candidates are alive to the importance of having their names appear in the first list. They want to publish their votes, so that their friends may know they are in earnest. Keen to win the $16,500 home, or the $8000 bungalow, men and women alike are hastening to enroll their names in The Times great $70,000 prize campaign. The capacity of the campaign department has been taxed to its utmost since it has become known that the first list of candidates will appear in a few days.

First subscriptions are coming in with most of the nominations. These first subscription coupons entitle candidates to 10,000 extra votes, when accompanied by the remittance.

Enthusiasm over the forthcoming distribution of $70,000 in prizes—the $16,500 house and the $8000 bungalow, plus the twenty automobiles and numerous other prizes—has reached such heights that wherever crowds gather The Times' record-breaking gift distribution is often the most important topic of conversation.

The fact that there are so many prizes, and that it makes no difference where a candidate lives, in so far as affecting the chances of winning are concerned, has been the cause of considerable comment.

Moreover, it now becomes almost impossible for a candidate to lose in this campaign, as The Times has provided that 10 per cent cash commissions are to be paid to all candidates on their new subscriptions in all cases where a regular prize is not won. This arrangement assures every participant that efforts put forth will be sure to bring a proportionate measure of reward. Those who strive the most will win the big, valuable prizes, and those who do not come within this charmed circle are protected by the commission plan.

Hustle plus votes equals a prize. Maybe an automobile, or the $8000 bungalow, or, perhaps, the $16,500 house. It is a simple problem in elementary arithmetic. But with this difference: That vim and energy will equal a $16,500 house, or a $4200 car. This is a new problem in "higher math."—one that is not found in Euclid, notwithstanding his superior position as a mathematician.

A campaign will be waged to win these prizes, and here is where the arithmetic comes in.

You have the opportunity, in the next ten weeks, to make your spare time worth $16,500—perhaps even more, for, the Wilshire Crest house that is worth $16,500 September 2 will probably increase greatly in value within the coming year.

Do you know of any business man who will pay you $16,500 for the next ten weeks?

This is the mercenary viewpoint. There are others. There is the sentimental viewpoint — the sentiment that always attaches to the word "home." It's like the love for one's native soil. It's a passion with some men, a religion with others, and a tender, gentle memory that lies close to the heart of many.

"Home is a place to take things to," and that's truth. But when that home embodies not only shelter and safety from wind and storm, but every ideal of truth and beauty of line and color, combined with every convenience the heart desires, it is a home, indeed. Those are the kinds of homes The Times is offering the candidates.

And then there are the motor cars. There's the sturdy, dependable Maxwell at $1070, the Liberty Cavalier at $1755, the Gardner at $1085, the Auburn Beauty Six at $1900—and sixteen other fine cars—all the way up to the Lincoln at $4200. Each one of these splendid cars—there are twenty in all—will soon have a proud owner. Will you be one?

If you are not yet a candidate in this great campaign, turn to the advertisement, elsewhere in this issue of The Times, study the plan under which the cars will be awarded, fill in the nomination blank, and bring it down to the campaign office on the second floor of The Times Building. Better still, bring the "First Subscription Coupon" with you. On receipt of the prepaid subscription, accompanied by the "First Subscription Coupon," you will be given 10,000 EXTRA votes. Then your name will appear in the first list of candidates that is published.

Don't stumble along Life's Highway while the world drives by. Drive your own car in the parade. Enter the campaign today—now—and win a valuable prize!

HERE'S A PALPITATING QUESTION

To Bob, or Not to Bob—Ay, There's the Rub That Puckers Feminine Brows; Age Limit Is Off, Many Seek Solace of the Shears

BY ALMA WHITAKER

"To bob it or not to bob it?"

That is the question that is corrugating many a feminine brow today. Wherever two or three women are gathered together the weighty arguments pro and con on submitting one's tresses to the expert shearer are propounded. The flappers began, it but there isn't any age limit anymore. Three vital human interests are involved — youth, art and freedom. Voila, we must be young, we must be arty and we must be free.

Ah, and there is the rub. For nature can be so treacherous. One woman's successful bob can be another woman's desolation. Either one looks cute or—er—one distinctly doesn't. And one can't be sure till the deed is done.

When, for instance, in search of illuminating examples, we gaze upon Mrs. Elizabeth Wood Stack, or Mrs. Claire Woolwine, or Mrs. Turner F. Weatherholt, or Mrs. June Braun Schultz, or Miss Elaine Gilhooly, the last two having just arrived with the very choicest bob from New oYrk where they assure us no self-respecting mondaine goes unbobbed these days, we are valiantly inspired to bob it without further debate. When we remember Mrs. Jaun de la Cruz, who risked the innovation five years ago; when we see Mme. Lili Petchnikoff, that distingue Russian musician, with her close-cropped curls; when we meet Mrs. Edward Bowen, the mother of two children, having cast her long thick auburn tresses to the winds; when we consort with such successfully bobbed matrons as Mmes. Dwight Wilbur Stabler, Jeanette Porter Monroe, Carl Heintz, Reginald Chambers, J. M. Sanders, G. Edwin Williams, and Thomas Roberts, any hesitation we may have known vanishes instanter. For these ladies have successfully mastered the mighty combination of youth, art and freedom, matrons all though they be. And, upon meeting little Miss Adelaide Harmer of Hollywood, who joyously confesses to 64 years and has worn hers bobbed for 1o, these many summers, our resolution is only strengthened.

But alas, there are others. Those deceived souls whom Nature has basely tricked, denied their tresses even the semblance of a natural curl, designed their faces to completely defeat any aspirations toward youth, art, or even freedom—such as these are shackled to curling irons and nightcurling pins, and persistent shampoo and violent brushfulness in a vain endeavor to acquire that soft, fluffed-out effect—and we scan our faces in our mirrors with awful misgivings.

Perhaps that is why so few bobbed heads have as yet appeared in clubland. Mrs. Sidney Uhlman of Ebell, and Mrs. Charles L. Lewin of the Friday Morning Club, are the only ones we can call to mind who have taken the plunge. They have, however, both survived the experiment with eclat.

Nevertheless, countless dames well past the flapper age are trembling on the verge of the bob. Their names are legion. And we could if we would, name a lengthy

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

J'EVER HEAR THIS?

BY STRICKLAND GILLILAN

HER ANCESTRY

It may as well be retold of her as of anybody, so the lately-wed Princess Mary must be the goatess:

One day as the princess was walking in London she saw an apple-woman with particularly fine fruit for sale. Approaching, the princess made a purchase and then found, to her embarrassment, that she had no money with her. However, she said:

"You can trust me, I am sure. I am Princess Mary."

"An' do you know who I am?" asked the applewoman.

"I do not," said the princess.

Bobbing a courtesy, the apple vendress said:

"I am a direct descendant of Eve, the first applewoman."

AUTO PLUNGES INTO CANYON

Men and Women Escape With Only Slight Hurts

Two Hundred and Fifty-Foot Drop Taken by Four

Brakes Don't Work, Machine Turns Somersault

Taking a curve on the approach of the Ridge Route at a rate of speed which made it impossible to turn safely, an automobile with four passengers leaped off the grade shortly after noon yesterday, six miles beyond Newhall, and rolled 250 feet to the floor of the canyon below.

At the Glendale Hospital, where the injured persons were taken for treatment, it was declared nothing less than miraculous that they escaped instant death. According to reports, their injuries consisted of many cuts, bruises and broken bones, but all will recover, it is said.

Those in the car were Charles Garrison, Mrs. Olga Boehme and Miss J. M. Numma, all of 344 North Belmont avenue, Glendale, and John Bell, Argonaut Hotel, Los Angeles. The latter has a deep cut in his head; Mr. Garrison has several fractured ribs; Mrs. Boehme suffered many bad bruises and received a severe cut on one of her knees; Miss Numma has a fractured arm and several broken ribs.

The Glendale people were driving toward Bakersfield when they overtook Mr. Bell on the road and offered him a ride. Half an hour later the brakes of the car failed to work on a sharp curve and all four passengers somersaulted to the bottom of the grade with the touring car.

AIRPLANE STRIPS TOP FROM AUTO

Low Flying Cause of Accident; Woman Seriously Injured

Endangering the lives of four persons, an airplane swooped over the boulevard near Redondo Beach yesterday and stripped the top from an automobile.

Edmund C. Kossub of 3790 Hobart Boulevard was driving the auto. With him were his mother, Mrs. Ida Kossub, who suffered serious injury to her back when the auto was hit; his sister, Mrs. Tillie Hoffman, and a cousin, Alfonso Burkhardt, all of the foregoing address.

According to Mr. Kossub, the aviator refused to give his name and address. He is said to have taken to the air again soon after the mishap.

Theology, Music and Song Combine Efforts

Masterful Sermon Reveals the Dawn

The Times—KHJ—on the air today from 1:00 to 1:45 p.m. Franklyn Booth, violinist, will play a few selections by request. Wilbur P. Funk, saxophone soloist will play "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," by Saint Saens, and "Virginia Blues." News items will also be broadcast.

Program from 7:15 to 8 p.m. This is Pasadena Evening at KHJ, arranged through the courtesy of Helen Lukens Clut, and all artists on the program are Pasadena people. A message to Pasadena will be given by Gilmore Brown. Louise Derr, soprano, accompanied by Henry Edmund Earle, will sing "The Bird Song," from "Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo, and "I Passed by Your Window," by Brahe. Elizabeth Furlow, whistler, will be heard in "The Dawn of Love," from "The Firefly," by Hauerbach, and "Mother Machree," by Chauncy Olcott. Miss Lillian Carson will accompany Miss Furlow. Edward Novis, baritone, accompanied by Henry Edmund Earle, will sing "Pasadena," by Helen Lukens Gaut. Alice Coleman Batcheller, pianist, will play "On Wings of Song," by Mendelssohn-Liszt, and "Waltz in C Sharp Minor," by Chopin.

Into the homes of rich and humble, alike, into institutions peopled by blind, crippled, or dependent humanity, to the far-off cabin in the hills, to everyone in the Southland with a receiving set was carried theology and its handmaidens music and song. It was a complete reversal of form from moving Mahomet to the mountain—KHJ took the mountain to Mahomet.

Strangely apropos was the subject of the broadcast sermon from The Times radiophone by Rev. Ray C. Harker, pastor of the West Adams Methodist Church, whose Sunday morning topic was: "Christ, the Matchless Speaker." The vast, unseen audience was told that human life bristles with interrogation points. They stand at their east windows, figuratively speaking, waiting for the dawn of understanding, and, in so far as it is possible for God to speak through humans, Dr. Harker told his conception of infinite love to listeners in radio-infinity. The full text of Dr. Harker's sermon is given elsewhere.

Quoting Martin Luther: "Next to theology I give to music the highest place of honor, and we see how David and all the saints have wrought their Godly thoughts into verse, rhyme and song," seems especially applicable to the sacred service of yesterday. There is something in music of the sincere kind which marks it as the child of prayer; the companion of religion. The song that we hear in our ears, however, is only the song that is sung in our hearts.

Yesterday's vocal selections were the kind that sing in your heart and live with you in memory perhaps longer than any sermon can. George Mercereau, baritone, brought out every elemental thought of the composer when he sang "The Holy City," by Adams. His rare vocal talent found fine expression in "To Do Thy Will," by W. Pike. He was accompanied by Mayme Armstrong.

Likewise, the lyric-soprano numbers sung by Gail Mills Dimmit, accompanied by Arthur Blakley, were typical vocal portraits that live in the heart indefinitely. She sang "With Verdure Clad," from "Creation," by Haydn. "Come Ye Blessed," by Scott, and "In the Garden," by Mills.

Owing to the big $70,000 Times prize contest taking the field, the giving away of radio sets by The Times will be discontinued July 1. Those who are engaged in getting subscriptions for radio receivers are requested to hurry in order to complete their lists before that date.

The Southern California Radio Association annual radio show which will be well supported by practically all the radio supply dealers in Los Angeles in the way of exhibits and demonstrations, is expected to start July 17 and run thereafter for four days. Permission has been asked of the National Guard of California, for the use of the inner court of the Armory at Exposition Park, and a definite answer as to whether the use of this court will be granted will probably be received by tomorrow. It is understood that the proceeds from this show are to go to the Children's Hospital. A meeting of the S.C.R.A. will take place at Hamburger's tonight at eight.

Lay in a radio receiver for a rainy day. S. Mullin, 5133 S. Grand avenue, evidently did that and profited by it, for when he was confined to his home a week ago he had something in reserve to help him more than pink pills—his radio set. "I want to thank you for your concerts," he writes KHJ. "They have certainly helped to pass away the tedious hours."

CHRIST, MATCHLESS SPEAKER

Man Stands at His East Window Waiting for the Dawn of God's Revelation

BY DR. RAY C. HARKER,
Pastor West Adams Methodist Church

John VIII. 46—"Never man spake like this man."

Human life bristles with interrogation points. Questions many and weighty crowd upon the mind and cry for an answer. Every blade of grass quivers with questions to which no man can respond. Every fluttering leaf trembles with mysteries no man can unravel. Man's thought plunges into the ocean of mystery about him and into the abyss of mystery within him. But the arrows of his thought do not pierce very far. The plummet of his thought does not drop very deep. The flashes of his inspiration are soon swallowed up in the great gulf of mystery.

Hence man craves a revelation from God. Homer represents Ulysses as always roaming with a hungry heart.

God reveals His truth through incarnations. He enshrines His thought in impressive personalities. There have been many prophets speaking forth the truth of God. There have been many more catching glimpses of the mountain peaks of truth. There have been many voices crying in the wilderness of the world, but the heart of man finds its truest prophet, its wisest seer and its sweetest voice in Jesus Christ, the Savior of the world. Even His enemies said of Him: "Never man spake like this man."

Look at His message. The world may advance upon Socrates, Plato and Aristotle, but not upon Jesus Christ. His teachings are eternal principles; 20th century-encompassing and world-embracing. Notice His masterly summation of the law: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." This fits the man of feeblest mind as well as the archangel by the throne. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

WHAT WE SEEK

Again, "The kingdom of God is within you." Men seek happiness without. People seek satisfaction in fame, in wealth, or in pleasure, but Jesus tells us that happiness and joy must come from within. People dive to the depths of the sea, pierce the heart of the hills, and hope for happiness. They climb over their fellows and try to mount to thrones of power. They risk their unwary feet over the trapdoors of death for pleasure. They dangle their souls on the brittle thread of uncertainty and hope for gain. Christ needs to speak again: "The kingdom of God is within you." "Out of the heart are the issues of life." It is heart culture that brings peace. It is the heart that must catch the music of heaven. It is the heart that must open its portals to the sunlight of divine communication. It is the heart that must catch the the music of heaven. It is the heart that must open its portals to the sunlight of divine communication. It is the heart that must climb the summit of the delectable mountains whence man may have his open vision of God.

It is Jesus who taught the world to say in happy assurance: "Our Father who art in Heaven." He reveals Him as a God of providence. Not a wave ripples upon the bosom of the sea, not a leaf flutters to its fall, not a flower opens its eyes to the sun, not a dewdrop quivers on the cloverleaf, not a snowflake makes its wandering way to our world, not a raindrop falls in silence on the sea which God does not commission. Christ taught us to believe in a God who knows all, sees all, and controls all. He shows us how God's love hovers over the sleeping babe, and solaces the heart of the weary mother as she watches anxiously by the cradle of her smitten child; how His love keeps its unfailing vigils in the sickroom, by the open grave and in the valley of the shadow of death. Jesus shows me a God not only of power, glory and of moving majesty, but a God who is my Heavenly Father, and who loves me, his erring child.

SPEAKS WITH AUTHORITY

Then, too, Christ speaks with authority. His message was no hearsay, no second-hand word. It burned in His soul, it lived in His heart. "Verily I say unto you!" was the way He prefaced His words. At the close of the Sermon on the Mount the people were astonished at His doctrine for He taught them as one having authority and not as the scribes.

Christ's authority was recognized in many ways. He uttered His word and the fig tree withered away. He spoke to the dumb and forthwith the loosened tongue began to sing. He whispered to the deaf and they heard sweet music. He spoke to the blind and their eyes quivered at the sight of a light-filled world. When in the storm on the sea He bade the waves roll to silence. He spoke to demons and out of their homes in human hearts they came. He spoke to the dead and they heard His voice and from the unseen world they returned.

We, too, recognize His majesty and power, for in His presence doubt expires and faith kindles; hypocrisy dies and sincerity lives; despair enters into its deathpangs and hope reckons; hatred perishes and love grows; sin slinks away and piety prays; transient things shrivel and eternal verities assume their true magnitude, and God rises in majesty on the soul.

We need constantly a clear vision of Christ. Without this we have only the winding-sheet of religion. Take away the Christian's vision of Christ and you have drawn away his vital spark, and robbed him of his holy fire. You have seen the mountain with the clouds rolling about its bosom and glorified by the sun. That was a grand vision, but how much grander the scene when some gust of wind has swept the clouds away and you gazed upon snowy crest of that mountain monarch. So even a dim and befogged vision of Christ may be glorious, but how much more serene and divine is the clear vision of Him on whose brow "majestic sweetness sits enthroned."

There is the beauty of the crystal. There is the beauty of the polished stone. There is the beauty of the icicle. There is the beauty of jewels from the sea and from the amber beds. There is the beauty of the sky when the sun sinks in the West and the moon swings out on her silvery path, and the stars bedeck the brow of night, and man's heart breaks forth into singing: "The heavens declare the glory of God." There is the beauty of the morn, which Shakespeare describes when: "The envious streaks do lace the severing clouds in yonder east, and night's candles are burnt out, and jocund day stands tiptoe on the misty mountains tops." There is the beauty of the mountains with its silent slopes full of slumber and its craggy cliffs rugged with mystery. But the beauty of Christ transcends all these forms of beauty for in Him is the beauty of holiness, which has a matchless charm. The lines of eternity are woven into this product. The warp and woof of his garment of holiness are not earth-grown, but God-given. He is the matchless speaker because peerless in beauty and character.

O, thou Christ, speak to us today. Thou who hast told us of the prodigal son, and thus opened to our view the loving heart of our Heavenly Father; thou who hast shown us the condition of Dives and Lazarus, and so given us a glimpse of heaven and of hell; thou who hast opened the portals of the future, and hast disclosed the mysteries of the hereafter behind the veil, and hast brought life and immortality to light; thou who hast unbarred the gates of man's heart and let the light divine shine in to show him his imperishable soul, and point him to the way of salvation and to the gates of light. O, thou who canst strike the notes of eternal truth, and image forth eternal realities; O, thou Christ of the cooling hand, of the healing word, of the tender heart, of the forgiving spirit, whose name is love, whose touch is life, whose smile is heaven. Thou Babe of Bethlehem, Child of Nazareth, Youth of the Temple, Preacher of the Mount, Weeper of Bethany, Sorrower of Gethsemane,

NOTHING IN LEATHER

Pity the poor shoe merchant. According to the returns made at the convention of shoe men the retailers only made a cent and a quarter on each dollar taken in. Everybody knows that that could hardly be called profiteering. Instead of taking store of wealth from the people the shoe merchant must have a hard time in keeping body and soul together. As between the bootlegger and the shoe dealer the former has all the best of it.

PLENTY OF WATER

Melting snows are swelling the streams of Owens River Valley. Haiwee Lake, the biggest reservoir on the Los Angeles Aqueduct system, is filling rapidly. Los Angeles need fear no water shortage, thanks to the foresight of the citizens who voted the $23,000,000 bond issue a few years ago. One of the predictions concerning the aqueduct was that a considerable portion of its waters used for irrigation above would be returned. This result has already come to pass. This year a larger percentage of water is being returned than in any previous year.

REDUCTIO AD ABSURDUM

Women of wealth in the East are said to be lining up in front of the hospital in large numbers awaiting glandular operations. They find that by taking on a strain of goat they can rid themselves of some of the superfluous burden of flesh they are carrying. The Toggenburg seldom carries any excess baggage except at milking time. Goats are lithe, muscular and well-proportioned. They are hardy and active. There is almost never any waste of fat about them. If it is impossible to be a perfect lady, why not be a goat? At any rate, the women are turning to the goat for relief and the surgeons and specialists are said to have quite a waiting list. It would be pitiful, though, if the flapper of the next generation should bleat when asked to sing.

CENTER FOR INVESTMENTS

The sale of the Consolidated Realty Building for close to two millions in cash pins up a new record for Los Angeles.

The fact that the sale was made to a syndicate of eastern and San Francisco capitalists is an indication of the acknowledged strength of Los Angeles as a center for investments.

The city has passed the stage of business rivalries with neighboring Coast cities. It has definitely and assuredly arrived.

Although they may bedim their acknowledgment with a tear of regret, Coast business men—like other business men—cannot dodge the conclusion that this city will be one of the greatest centers of population—if not actually the greatest—in America.

The reasons which brought many other big cities into being have passed; they are living in the back wash of the tide. Our real future has just begun to unfold.

STORING POWER

Scientists and inventors are busy with the problem of storing power. They have in mind the idea of not only converting the heat of the sun into power to run a factory or ship, but to store that power so that it may be available at any time. They would capture the power and glory of a golden day and chain it for service on a cloudy night. But it is the storage of power they want, no matter what may be the original source of the power. There is power in so many things—the movement of the tides, the boisterous kiss of the north wind, the flutter of the woodpecker's wing and the deep breathing of the ant. Only the other day a zealous inventor asked for a patent on a device that would store up the power wasted in a rocking chair and use it to run a sewing machine. Possibly one might rock the baby and at the same time wind the clock and turn the ice-cream freezer. The immediate future is going to have some delightful surprises for us and some of them will relate to the storage of power.

IMPERIAL'S BIRTHDAY

Imperial Valley celebrated its 21st birthday last Friday and thousands of people gathered to draw comparisons between the fertile garden spot of today and the unreclaimed, unwatered desert of twenty-one years ago. It was a joyous celebration and significant, for it commemorated an achievement in community building that has few, if any, parallels, even in this land of rapid development and spectacular growth.

It was twenty years ago last Friday that water was first turned into irrigation ditches in the valley. In 1905 the river broke over the levees and progress was checked for nearly two years, until the stream was controlled. That portion of the valley on the American side of the boundary line was in San Diego county until August, 1907, when Imperial county came into being.

Imperial Valley history is, therefore, short as a place of habitation, but eventful and fruitful in results achieved. The valley now produces $65,000,000 to $70,000,000 annually and, with the prospect of a control dam at Boulder Canyon, looks forward to even greater successes. Until such a dam is built the valley has reached the limit of irrigation, but with the stream flow equalized a much larger area of land can be watered and cultivated.

THE GERMAN CRISIS

In the assassination of Dr. Rathenau the Junkers of Germany have spoken their defiance. It is the outburst of a monarchist movement that has been smoldering in Germany since the armistice.

This crisis is one of the penalties paid for the inconclusive ending of the war. It is the answer to the world of an undefeated, unregenerate, unashamed military caste; it is the answer of Prussianism.

For months there have appeared articles from the old militaristic leaders like Bernhardi and Ludendorff hinting that Germany's day of glory would return one day soon and her enemies be punished.

In a recent article Gen. Ludendorff openly urges the return to a monarchy. He speaks of the old system of military conscription as a "fine and valuable instrument of national education." He says frankly that "what the German people require in the near future is an autocratic dictatorship."

Dr. Rathenau has long been the active, aggressive foe of Kaiserism. As the framer of the recent treaty with Bolshevist Russia he, of course, sealed his doom with the old military reactionaries of Junker Germany.

The sequel is up the knees of the gods. If the result is to overturn the German democracy and restore a Kaiser to an imperial throne, Europe will be confronted with a painful and embarrassing problem.

The world will find itself in a condition most emphatically unsafe for democracy.

Incidentally the return of a Kaiser to the throne would be a dagger at the heart of France.

Unless it is quickly and forcefully snuffed out this tragedy may be fanned into a fire that will threaten again the peace of Europe.

In spite of the supposed destruction of German military material and the disruption of all German military organizations, it is an open secret that Germany still has great potential military power.

Under one pretext and another Prussian officers have been in training ever since the armistice. The French officers have complained bitterly that the Germans have been hiding away immense quantities of military material.

The situation is one that calls for resolution, tact and unified action among the Allies.

It would seem that the warnings of France have not been in vain.

A MILITARY SHAKE-UP

One of the greatest shake-ups in the history of the Regular Army will take place before January 1 as a result of the compromise between the conferees of the Senate and the House on the Army Appropriation Bill. An unofficial study of the bill indicates that one out of every seven officers in the Regular Army must return to civil life. Something over 2000 officers will be dropped from the rolls within the next six months.

This wholesale sifting-down process will serve to accentuate the need for a sweeping military reform in this country.

Providence must always have smiled on Uncle Sam. He has had the poorest, the most clumsy and worst-planned military machinery of any modern nation; yet he always seems to muddle through to victory.

Although we pride ourselves on being a benign and peaceful nation, we have had rather a lion's share of wars. Each war has found us hopelessly unprepared; has found us flying around like a hen on a hot griddle, trying frantically to scratch together an army and quite as frantically trying to discard the military machinery that had been built up in previous years of unskilled preparation.

If we could be said to have had any military plan, it was for a central Federal force of small strength—the Regular Army—commanded by highly trained West Point graduates. This was supplemented by little scattered State armies—the National Guard—officered by civilians and trained by one or two hours' meager drill each week.

After the Spanish-American War an attempt was made in a crude way to gather these scattered organizations into a concentrated force by placing all the State militias under Federal control. Some improvement was made, but just before the World War the military experts of Europe were treated to a rare joke.

Following the feat of the German army, which accomplished a complete mobilization in twenty hours, and the French army, which mobilized in forty hours, our army officers showed what we could do. Whereupon a great mobilization took place on the Mexican border. We proceeded to mobilize for five frenzied months and finally gave it up in disgust; they never did get mobilized.

When thrown into the World War it was found necessary to literally tear the war machinery to pieces and build it up again. Civilians were grabbed from their business offices, put through a terrific course of sprouts at officers' training camps and sent out to command troops. They did amazingly well, but there is no doubt that our losses in France were vastly heavier than they need to have been had military training been more thorough.

The government is now attempting to begin building the first really scientific military machine this nation has had during its whole history.

The country has been divided into districts; the National Guard regiments have been combined with organizations of Regulars to form administrative and tactical units. The system of training for National Guard officers has been changed in every particular. The vicious system of choosing commissioned officers by the votes of the enlisted men has been done away with.

It is unfortunate that 2000 officers should be lost at this time. To the extent that they can be absorbed into the National Guard will the measure of the misfortune be reduced.

SILLY CHARGES

It having been discovered that Secretary Weeks of the Treasury is a particularly good writer, the charge is made that everything appearing over his name is really written by a "young newspaper man," a graduate of Harvard.

I hate the big men, but find little comfort in many of the charges against them. This one is certainly silly. The oldest charge against a successful man is that he doesn't amount to anything; that his clerk made him. And the charge was never true.—[E. W. Howe's Weekly.

Our Agreeable Burden of Responsibility

(Chicago Tribune.)

OUR RUSSIAN POLICY

The speech of James M. Beck before the Pilgrim Society of London made clear to the people of England that this country was irrevocably committed to that form of government that has morality and law for its foundation, and that Russia, existing under a regime that repudiates every principle for which men and nations have fought for centuries, would be treated as an international outlaw. Mr. Beck, while thoroughly able to speak and think for himself on this question or any other, incidentally spoke for this nation and those responsible for its policies, and especially in so far as they in any way relate to foreign matters.

In the final analysis of all questions, however big may be their import, it is always true that the principle involved is one of elementary simplicity, one that controls men in their daily intercourse with one another. If it is wrong for the individual man to commit murder, it is likewise wrong for nations to do the same thing. In other words, murder is murder, and it does not matter under what circumstances of power or authority it is committed. The judgment of mankind has made it such and it will so remain as long as this is a civilized world. But if ever the day comes when human life has no value, is no longer sacred, then the high priests of Communism and Bolshevism, whatever those terms may mean, may succeed in placing Russia among the foremost nations of the world. But we apprehend, before that event can take place, we shall have to learn anew the moral code that protects man in his home, his life on the highway and the Ten Commandments will have to be rewritten.

It is true that Russia owes this nation $100,000,000 and more, and it is likewise eternally true that we shall never approve or condone as a matter of principle, national, international or private, the commission of crimes in order to recover that or any other sum. We do not intend to compromise with crime, otherwise men like Roy Gardner and Lenin could carry the commission of this nation to rob and murder at will, and whenever and wherever they may see fit.

France and England, and especially France, may recognize the Russian oligarchy headed by Lenin and Trotzky in order to recover the money and property belonging to the people of France and England, and very likely they will do so at no distant date and regardless of the moral question involved, but one thing is certain—this nation, for no selfish or mercenary reason, will commit itself to any principle or policy based upon crime and upheld by a band of international criminals. It is not a question of trade and commerce, dollars and cents; it is one of right and wrong—the same principle that sent the soldiers of America to the battlefields of Europe. We made the greatest sacrifice any nation ever made merely, solely for the maintenance of the principle that law is law and that it applied to Emperor William of the Germans with the same force and effect that applies to the humblest citizens walking the streets and roads of this country. There is no distinction. There can be none.

We know, everybody knows, that the conditions in Russia are unspeakably horrible, but we also know that thousands upon thousands of wives and children of criminals in this country are destitute and perhaps crying for the simple necessaries of life and to them we extend the charities of human sympathy in the same manner that we are helping the starving and dying hordes of Russian children. This policy we shall continue with regard to Russia until sanity and human nature reassert themselves in that country.

There are four methods of curing walnuts; sun curing in trays, bin curing with heat, house curing on movable trays, and curing with hot air.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM

BY HERMAN J. STICH

When You Don't Have to Know Libraries of Things

Thomas A. Edison, fairly well known as an inventor and propounder of "phasers," never had anything to do with colleges, except, perhaps, to endow them and ask their products some odd questions.

"Tommy," as they used to call him when he sold papers on the Erie, simply will have his little joke—as this incident illustrates.

Once he asked an employee—a college man who had been graduated with highest honors—to find the cubical contents of an incandescent electric bulb.

As a mathematical problem this was in every way as baffling as squaring the circle—something the brilliant college grad knew full well, thereby fooling the electrical wizard who thought he was putting one over.

However, he tackled it boldly and confidently, consumed quires of pads, burned watt after watt of midnight electricity, then finally brought to Mr. Edison the fruits of his figuring.

"You're at least 10 per cent wrong," commented the inventor.

"All right," said Edison, "I'll show you."

Upon which he took a small hammer, chipped the tip off the blown end of the bulb, filled the bulb with water, weighed it and in a few seconds had its exact cubical contents—incidentally proving that the mathematical calculations and conclusions of the young man were at least 10 per cent out of the way.

So-called "book knowledge" is frequently a more efficient way to learning, but not always, nor perhaps, even generally; the fact is you don't have to know libraries of things if you know enough to absorb the lessons of experience.

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE WONDER CAR

Month after month she goes a-chooing,
And all she asks is oil and gas; along the pike speed cops pursuing, you see her like chain lightning pass, pedestrians and farm stock strewing in heaps upon the wayside grass. Month after month, through mud and gravel, on errands vain I make her fly, and nothing seems to rip or ravel, she's always full of pep and spry; and speed cops, worn by ceaseless travel, crawl under some tall tree and die. Month after month, without repairing, without a wrench among her works, I send her whizzing, scooting, tearing, up mountain roads where danger lurks; and speed cops, tired and vainly swearing, resign, and hire as grocers' clerks. Month after month my car goes swinging, the envy of all other chaps, along the road, her rear wheels flinging the mud in chunks, the city in scraps; and speed cops stand, their worn hands wringing, or tearing whiskers from their maps. And then some day she breaks a casting, she stops, a helpless also-ran; and I must wait hours everlasting before there comes the fix-it man; and drearily I stand dodgasting the men who made so punk a van. Her long, long service all forgotten, I cuss, a symbol of despair: "The stuff they use in cars is rotten," I say, with cold and stony glare; "when once a car is sold and boughten the makers have no other care. This auto graft sure makes me tingle and long to wield a snickersnee; I'd like to warp a tight surcingle on those who wished this wain on me." And speed cops gaze from dell and dingle, and chortle in unholy glee.

Pity the Poor Ancients

When Horace tilled his Sabine farm
There were no learned profs to parley
And test his soil and tell him where
To plant his corn and where his barley.
No female experts taught his wife
How to bake sweetbreads facsem scidet,
And yet they somehow muddled through;
I wonder how they ever did it.

When Julia bore the Gracchus boys
No helpful district nurses sought her
To fill in forms about their norms,
No psychoanalysis brought her.
Great truths avowed by Wizard Freud,
What could the hapless Julia do?
She must have had a lot of trouble,
And yet she somehow muddled through.

When Solomon achieved a throne
And chose his brides by droves and batches
There were no ladies' magazines
To tell them how to sew on patches,
To serve their meals or do their hair.
They had to flare their skirts or bobble 'em
Without a Wilder or a Bok.
Well, sirs, it must have been some problem.

Daisye Imogene McClellan says she sees by the papers that the world's supply of carbonic acid is petering out and she doesn't know that she is sorry to see it. She is always getting carbonic acid and carbolic acid confused and she has always been afraid she might want to use one sometime and use the other and come to grief.

I, Too, Have Suffered

Hez Cushenberry says that when his Cousin Alf came in from the ranch the other day for a couple of days of city life Alf started to bed with his collar and tie on and Hez said: "Alf, ain't you going to take your collar and tie off?" and Alf said: "No, sir, that collar and tie was enough trouble to put on once without wrastlin' with it again in the morning. When that collar and tie comes off me again they stay off."

Pyce Kinnamon says the only time he really ever thought he had any use for a course of memory training like the papers advertise was the year he turned in a claim for $800 on a trunk the railroad company lost for him and they came back with a request for an itemised statement.

I wonder why so few endeavor
To live up to a standard ever.
Had our forebears when they decided Upon a "civil" war but guided
Their acts with due "civility"
Things would have gone off pleasantly.
There would have been no shells a-splitting
The wayside air while lives went flitting,
No millions hurried into coffins,
No widow women nor half-orphans.

Professor Dink Beeson says that if the field of conversation continues to be narrowed down and narrowed down and infringed upon, why the first thing we know it will be confined to asking for things at the table or the department stores or the gasoline stations.

Time was when a man won his bride by the things he said to her, but now courtship is carried on through the medium of the movies, the card table or the jazzateria, and he knows a man that never discovered till after he was married that his bride split her infinitives and curtailed her participles.

Abe Kinnamon came back from Europe last week. The prof says if Abe had made his trip twenty-five years ago he would have been the great "I am" of the town for years. As things are, we don't pay much attention to him. The movies can show us things that Abe never saw, and the geographical magazine can tell us of them in better language than Abe can.

The prof says he'd rather hear Judge Hibbard talk than any other man in town, but, shucks, when they meet up a half-hour of it is about all that they can stand. They play chess and forget conversation.

What does the prof care about the judge's idea of the Irish question, anyway? He has already read one more to his liking stated in the forceful style of a New Republic writer.

What does the judge care about the prof's theory of the Balkan problem? He has already adopted the one set forth by Howe's Monthly.

Fat Heads, They Never Grow Wiser

Daisye Imogene McClellan says people are always getting up schemes that will reduce the fat in the human body by dieting it off or dancing it off or exercising it off, but what the world really needs is something that will combat the accumulation of fat in the human head.

THREL FALL.

THE BUGBEAR OF COMFORT

BY ALMA WHITAKER

Theoretically, of course, a charming, well-gowned, well-preserved woman who is apparently defeating the ravages of time is envied as having an easy life.

"Why does a woman grow old sooner than a man?" plaintively asks a laundry-soap advertisement intent upon rescuing us from this mournful condition.

But, of course, we don't. Nothing of the kind. We have too subtle an instinct for discomfort and nothing generates energy and pep so much as discomfort. And nothing is so aging as ease and comfort. One only has to view the rare, horrible examples of overnourished, overpetted, superserved females to realise this.

The women who defy time, who preserve an indomitable friskiness, who pass for 40 at 60, who keep their figures and their complexions and their hair and who live to be remarkable old ladies with capable stomachs and efficient digestions spend their lives fighting off this bugbear of comfort. Your really smart, ever-youthful women are uncomfortable from the moment they get up in the morning clear through to the next morning. They never let down. They goad their ease-loving bodies into daily exactions.

When they feel that insidious longing for a wrapper and no corsets, for slipping into bed without caring a whoop about the cold cream and the nightly massage, when they yearn for roomy shoes and armchairs and rational dress, when they are tempted to just pin up their hair any old way and never mind the curls and the style, when they get that "what's-the-use?" feeling and double chins be sugared they know it for a sign of creeping old age and spurn it with contempt. Comfort, ease, sloth, bagone ye vain and spurious tempters. That way lies oblivion, that way lies wrinkles, fat, double chins, dowdiness, wabbly legs, false teeth, disastrous, unlovely, unthinkable comfort.

Given half a chance, men would simply wallow in this disastrous comfort. If we came up to their ideal of us our chief duty in life would be to feed them epicurean fare, to pet them, cosy them up, protect them from every little irritation, keep their clothes laundered and mended, fold things up and put them away for them and, in short, spare them every vexation that flesh is heir to. They would be fat, frowsy, flabby-jawed, bald-headed old fossils at 40, wallowing in ease and comfort, addicted to armchairs and pillows and sport shirts and baggy trousers. We should agree with every opinion they had energy enough to form. We would simply ooze sympathy for any and every little disturbance that intruded itself into their pampered lives. We would see that the children never worried poor, dear father. And it would be peculiarly bad for them. "Oh, woman! in our hours of ease Uncertain, coy, and hard to please, And variable as the shade By the light quivering aspen made; When pain and anguish wring the brow, A ministering angel thou!"

Thus sang Scott in one of his more gallant moods. And he had really hit upon the very essence of us. Can't you see how it is? These men positively must be uncomfortable for their souls' sake, for the sake of civilization and progress. Hence, in those "hours of ease" we instinctively make it our business to keep them on the jump, to be as exacting as we know how, thoroughly "incompatible," and only when they are disturbed with genuine, honest-to-goodness "pain and anguish" do we permit ourselves the ministering-angel role.

Haven't you noticed what a boon brilliant incompatibility can be to a married man? Nothing goads a man on to polish up his wits, to keep on the qui vive, to sleep with one eye open, to watch his step, to live up to his claims of superiority quite so effectually as a discreetly incompatible wife. The ungrateful creatures would never admit it, of course, and love to quote that "man married is a man marred." But look round upon your self-indulgent, self-pampered bachelor friends. How rare it is for such a one to rise to any distinction in public life. If they do, and the exceptions stand out in history, it is because they, too, have that inherent feminine streak for keeping themselves uncomfortable. You never saw a comfort-craving man achieving anything in this world—unless he has the sort of wife at home who defeated his craving and kept him hopping in spite of himself.

Why, I ask you, has the world progressed so amazingly in the last fifty years? Simply because women became restive and left off making the men too comfortable at home. Left off agreeing with them and accepting their opinions as final. Started having considerable opinions of their own and inducting any amount of valuable incompatibility in the homes. Started being competitive in business and professional life, making the gentlemen considerably nervous and uneasy in their old strongholds.

We must never, never let them be easy and comfortable again, sisters. And, oh, above all things, we mustn't let ourselves be easy and comfortable. We are in grave danger of it. Already we talk of "freedom" in terms that imply we are leaning that way.

...ES PEOPLE ...O LIGHTLY PRAY

...A. Torrey, preaching at the Church of the Open Door, yesterday, said that the assertion of God's holiness is the fundamental truth of the Bible. Dr. Torrey's sermon, in part, follows:

"Even the holy seraphim covered their faces and their feet in God's presence. They had four wings for worship and but two for service. Of course, we who are in Christ Jesus have a place above the seraphim, for when Jesus died on the cross He took our place of rejection before God and that moment we step into His place of perfect acceptance before God. And so we have a right to come into God's presence with unveiled faces and look up into His face with perfect childlike confidence and call Him 'Father.' Nevertheless we should never lose sight of the fact that He is the 'Holy Father' and along with our fearless, childlike trust there should also be an overwhelming sense of awe in the presence of this infinitely holy being whom we call God and Father. The light and frivolous way, the careless and familiar way, with which many, both ministers and people draw nigh to God today in what they call prayer, is shocking to anyone who has any real, complete Bible conception of who and what God is."

MASONRY LAUDED BY BRUCE BROWN

At the first general service in observance of Saint John's Day ever attended by Masons of Los Angeles, hundreds of members of that order, and their friends, yesterday afternoon listened to a lecture on "The Unfinished Temple," given by Dr. Bruce Brown at the First Christian Church; Dr. Brown's address, in part, was as follows:

"Masonry is not a political institution but it is the best support that any righteous ruler or any just government can have. It seeks no subsidies and would accept no favor. One of its fundamental teachings is equal rights for all and special privileges for none.

"This world wide institution has rendered an inestimable benefit to the cause of human freedom. The mightiest of earth who seek its advantages must enter its portals as the poorest of men in the humblest raiment. Its benefits are not commodities that can be purchased with gold.

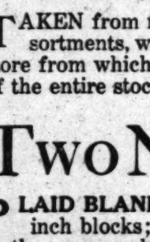
"The declaration of independence would never have been written, the Revolutionary War would never have been fought, the Constitution of the United States would never for Masons. In the darkest days of the struggle for human freedom Washington would not have a general serving under him who was not a Mason.

"The same forces that opposed Washington are the opponents of Masonry today. There are but two conceptions of government. One is that a certain favored few, by birth or divine right, have the authority to tell men what they must believe and how they must live. This is autocracy. The other is that all men are created free and equal and must ever meet on the level. This is Democracy, Masonry's gift to the world. All who believe in free thought, free speech, a free press, free schools, a free religion and a free government are Masonry's friends. All who oppose these are Masonry's opponents.

"Masons ought to love the American flag for it heralds to the world the great principles of liberty, equality and fraternity which they worked into the warp and woof of this great government. These sublime concepts, which are the very life's blood of this institution, are universal and eternal. Most naturally the stars and colors of heaven were selected to represent them."

PASTOR DISCUSSES "SCHOOL OF GOD"

"The Big School" was the subject of a sermon preached yesterday by Dr. W. E. Tilroe at the Boyle Heights Methodist Episcopal Church. Dr. Tilroe spoke in part, as follows:



Rev W.E. Tilroe

"The word of Jesus is a word of God. The word of the Holy Spirit is a word of God. The word of the Heavenly Father is a word of God. In these days when the schools are in our minds and on our nerves it is well to remember that the really big school is the school of God. Beyond all other big business God has on hand, He is keeping school. To save a man, to save a race, to save a world, is incidental. Men do not begin to live when they are dead. They begin to live the hour they gladly matriculate with God. To die is going into a higher grade at the school of God. A real scholar of God does not make large consequence of the graveyard. He calls it God's Acre and goes ahead with his lessons. The school of God is the really big school for it has no indifferent, unhappy scholars. Only as one chooses does he attend the school of God. There is no more startling thing under the sun than that a man can set his own lessons if he cares to. To have a will of one's own is a matter to make one catch his breath. A school is not so much a matter of size as an affair of the scholars. A school where no one hankers for another campus will have college spirit to burn.

"The school of God is a big school, making the best of every scholar. He is taught as he is able to bear. Though often not much credit to the school, the school stands by till he is guided into all truth. The queer antics of not a few truly good people makes one laugh and wonder, but the Great Teacher goes on with the lesson. The school of God is big as being the one real affair of human life. 'This is eternal life to know God and Jesus Christ whom He hath sent.' It is not quantity that is culture, but correlation. The man in the school of God is taught to see things in their true relations. He does not make much of little or little of much. Everything under the sun is of interest to him as somewhere touching the wisdom of the Great Teacher and the big school."

DR. SMITH DEFENDS THE MIRACULOUS

Dr. Herbert Booth Smith of Immanuel Presbyterian Church preached yesterday morning on the subject, "Can We Believe the Bible Miracles?" He said, in part:

"Those who object to the Bible miracles doubtless feel that the marvels narrated have never been proven to their satisfaction; consequently they decline to ally themselves with Christians. By a miracle we mean an unusual event, that is, something out of the ordinary course of nature, caused by some great power or energy and intended as a sign or demonstration.

"Primitive people are prone to seek the supernatural everywhere and to explain as spiritual much that is material. They think God is honored more in the breach than in the observance of the laws He has ordained. Are miracles in the nature of the case impossible? In the face of the marvels of this century, the word impossible has just about gone out of use. The Christian idea of God is that He is not a mere modification of force but a personal will able to do all His good pleasure. Religion assumes that personal ends are of more importance to God than mechanical laws. Another objection is that miracles cannot be proven. Men are not likely to die for fictions which they have invented. The fact is that at the time when the miraculous stories of the gospels were being preached and written, thousands of persons who had witnessed the ministry of Jesus were still alive, and they would have immediately challenged any statements which were untrue. In the Bible, omnipotence never acts except in the service of holiness and love."

PREDICTS ETERNAL LIFE ON EARTH

Preaching on "The Psalm of Justice" at the Trinity Methodist Church yesterday, Rev. Dan A. Trundle, executive secretary of the National Justice to Armenia Society, said that a close study of the Bible reveals the fact that more emphasis is placed upon doing justice than giving charity. In part, Mr. Trundle said:

Rev Donald A Trundle

"Charity is often like the flowers that sentimental women carry to prison to shower upon convicted felons; it is well meant and often does no harm, but, just what real solution does it bring to the condemned man's problem? If guilty, a question arises, does he not need something more than charity? If innocent, would not a wholesome effort toward establishing his innocence be far more sensible?

"It has been established beyond reasonable doubt that the very efforts of good-hearted Americans to help the persecuted Armenians has caused the death of many and has certainly not saved a one of the 1,250,000 who made the supreme sacrifice. When underpaid and nonpaid Turkish officials learned that the Armenians and Greeks had received goods and money from America they began at once, in many cases, to get this property into their hands, often killing the recipients of this charity to get possession of this much-coveted food, money and raiment. Was it not a gigantic and inexcusable blundor on the part of some one that armed protection was not always present where this charity went, to see that both it and those for whom it was intended were safe? It is high time that the people of America knew the whole truth."

SAYS GOLDEN GOD IS FOE OF PEACE

The acquisition of wealth, as a means to worthy ends, was defended, but the deification of the dollar was declared to be one of society's present dangers, in a discourse by Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin at the Temple B'nai B'rith last Friday. Dr. Magnin's address, in part, was as follows:

Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin

"This is an age of industrialism. More money is in existence than ever before and more people are in possession of money. Modern invention gave the impetus to industry. And today we measure things by the standard of quantity, immensity, efficiency, salesmanship, etc. Now, commercialism, pursued in the right spirit, is not a bad thing, for there must be an exchange of commodities. Nor is the possession of wealth even in great amounts a bad thing so long as one has earned it by the exercise of brains or muscle, or both, and uses it properly. But the dangerous thing is that we have made a god of wealth and material success; that we want money not for what it can buy us, but because we believe in it and reverence it. It has become a symbol for everything worth while and this leads to great and grave dangers.

"This worship of the almighty dollar has robbed people of peace and happiness. Unable to acquire it in large amounts by honest methods they will often stoop to acquire it by dishonest methods, for so long as one has it few people are going to question how it came. So long as modern society is controlled by such an ideal it will be exposed to destruction like the tower of Babel and the generation of the flood."

"GOD'S FOOTPRINTS TRACED BY DARWIN"

Declaring that Charles Darwin, as a man and philosopher, was one of the most dazzling stars in human history and that "prejudice and bigotry will never be able to drag him from his throne," Dr. C. Ellwood Nash rose to a defense of the renowned naturalist in a sermon preached at the Universalist Church yesterday morning. In part Dr. Nash said:

"Darwin was the ideal naturalist. To him the fact was sacred and he emptied himself before it. No prepossession was allowed to blur the clean eye with which he searched for reality. Thus his mastery of natural history became the marvel of scientific craftsmen. When one thinks of the fatuous dogmatisms with which he has been assailed by those not worthy to kiss his feet, one can but blush that this cheap arraignment poses as religion, especially as the religion of the great Prophet of Truth.

"The wealth of facts tollfully gathered and luminously held spoke to Charles Darwin. He listened with reverent ear, determined to hear nothing else; he added no syllable, kept not a whisper back. Darwin was a naturalist who traced the footprints of Deity."

ASKS FOR JUSTICE BEFORE CHARITY

Preaching on the subject, "Millions Now Living Will Never Die,' at Trinity Auditorium yesterday afternoon, Benjamin H. Boyd of New York quoted many passages from the Bible in proof of his argument that this earth is finally to become the eternal home of man. In conclusion, Mr. Boyd said:

"When will the Scriptures be fulfilled? Jesus said that the end of the world (age, not planet,) would be marked by a great struggle of nations, famine, pestilence. And the prophet, Daniel, declared that the end would be marked by much 'running to and fro,' 'great increase of knowledge' and 'a great time of trouble.' Surely none is so blind that he cannot see the fulfillment of these prophecies in the troublous events that have overtaken civilization since 1914.

"Today the world is vainly seeking by conferences and treaties, to restore a prewar balance and poise, but the Bible shows clearly that the kingdom of God alone can bring the 'desire of all nations.' For forty years Bible students pointed out the fact that 1914 would mark the full end of Gentile dominion, and that this date would witness the beginning of the travail of the nations, making way for the great Messiah, the 'Prince of Peace' and his glorious kingdom of righteousness which shall be the joy of the ends of the earth."

FIRST WIRELESS SPEECH

Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, in 1880 established his claim to recognition as a pioneer "wireless" enthusiast. He succeeded in transmitting speech, without the use of wires, over a distance of some 200 yards. His method was to produce a beam of light varying in intensity, its fluctuations being produced by the vibration of a diaphragm by sound waves. At the receiving end the beam of light was concentrated upon a cell containing selenium, the electrical conductivity of which varies in accordance with the amount of light to which it is exposed. The cell, in turn, controlled a current running to a telephone receiver diaphram and transformed the light waves into electric waves and then into sound waves. —[Telephone Press Service.

City to Have Rubber Street

A contract has been let in Copenhagen to a rubber factory for the building of a street of India rubber. The company estimated that the street would last fifty years and that it would cost about $5 a square yard. The rubber street is to be 220 yards long, and it is claimed that it will be the finest street in the world.—[Pathfinder.

THE ESSENTIALS OF SUCCESS

A few weeks ago one of our State universities asked me to tell its graduates what I considered the qualities most essential to success in life. In response I set them forth, briefly and briskly—and I have been greatly surprised and a little startled to discover how much attention the list has attracted in the educational world and the amount of discussion it has evoked.

THOSE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES

The essential qualities for success in life, as I set them forth, are brains, health, energy, a capacity for loving and a sense of humor. I did not include education, because that is included in the proper development of brains, and I did not commit myself to the opinion that everyone possessing all the qualities would necessarily achieve success. We all know many so-called successes who lack one or more of these essentials. We even know successes who seem to lack them all! The point I tried to make was that no life is really worth while without them and that no life containing them all can be a failure.

THE CAPACITY FOR LOVING

To check in advance the merry laughter of students and of the cynical, I explained that in including "the capacity for loving" among the essentials, I used the words in their best and broadest senses—in the sense of loving men, women and God. Given that capacity, given brains, energy, health and the power of regarding oneself and the rest of the world with a sense of humor that includes broad tolerance, few things can keep one from achieving one's object in life—which is one definition of success.

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

Of course, as some of my editorial commentators point out, there are other definitions of success and there are other essential qualities. But many of those they suggest are really included in my brief list. Love, for example, also means sympathy and understanding and charity; the brains I advocate are assumed to be well-trained and well-filled brains—not merely the physical contents of the skull; and the energy should be a spiritual as well as a physical energy, expressing itself in the affairs of the soul as well as in those of the mind.

As to success, each of us has his and her own vision of what it means, and each of us, consciously or unconsciously, works toward that vision. Sometimes it is a great vision, sometimes a petty one; sometimes it is hardly a vision at all, but merely a desire. None of us will deny that some of the greatest successes in the world are men and women of whom the world never hears—men and women who uncomplainingly give their entire lives to others.

But that is not the kind of success the ambitious graduates of today are seeking, and none of us will chide them for their ambition to win a place in the limelight of the world.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Impoverishing the People

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I notice that we have another "drive" in our midst. This is not news, but it would be news if there were no "drives." The taxpayers "view with alarm" the many drives for church and high school "extensions," and wonder if these expansions will never quit expanding?

And many wonder why these drivers give no thought to the soldiers who saved this country from invasion and thus made these perennial sand-baggings possible? The latest drive is for $10,000,000! This will put up more buildings, found more "chairs" and give easy positions to men who do not care to enter into the daily struggle for a livelihood.

It will enable the additional professors to cram into the heads of the students more of the almost forgotten dialects of the dead tribes of Greece and of Rome. Thus, the student will be saved from learning anything that is useful in this modern age. No matter about the pronunciation of these tongues, which no one on earth knows, or whether the dialects are spoken anywhere, it is an accomplishment, and a man is a barbarian who is not properly stuffed with this debris of a forgotten world. If any taxpayer objects to this big drive, let him be branded as "unpatriotic," or lacking in the spirit of progress. These are the terms usually applied to anyone who objects to shoveling out his money for "drives." The college "professors," the church "extensionists," evidently figure out the profits of the business men of a community, and then estimate the amount they can probably get under the old flimsy plea of "progress." These professional "drivers" do not want a man to have too much money—he may spend it unwisely, buy "hooch," go to the movies, or waste it on flappers. By regularly shearing him they place him beyond temptation, and thus benefit him.

It is no matter if the city needs a new Courthouse, and possibly an overhead railway, better water supply, sewage and other improvements for a "Greater Los Angeles." These should be sidetracked, and let the perennial drives take all the taxpayer can stand.

These shearing drives have become so common that the money is demanded, without any explanation as to necessity. As an accounting, that is none of the business of the taxpayer. His only business is to pay what is demanded. The church buildings of the ancients were primitive, and there was certainly as much religion, or rather morality, then as now. There surely could not have been less. The schoolhouses were also primitive in structure, the instruction was more thorough and practical, and there were more really educated men, proportionately. Most of the university and other school buildings of the present are burlesques on architecture, and built with a view of increasing their cost, and "prerequisites" in contracts.

A rotten administration, aided and abetted by a college professor, loaned $10,000,000 to several grafting nations, not one dollar of which is likely to be paid. We may get the interest for a few years, but that is doubtful. The present corrupt State administration has increased the yearly expenditures to about twice that of previous years. Consequently, there may be an increased taxation. All of these "drives" should be stopped. The overburdened taxpayer is tired of being sand-bagged by these self-styled "privileged classes."

Dr. Peters Writes

NEW YORK CITY, June 15.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you kindly correct a typographical error that appeared in my column, Diet and Health, recently?

I made the statement that curative medicine would always be necessary, but less and less as we were enlightened. In the copy as it ran, the words, "but less and less" were omitted. You can see that this modifies the meaning considerably.

On one other occasion, in speaking of the F.F.F., in explanation of the initials I said "F, Fat F-a-t-e-r-n-i-t-y, spelling intentional." The word was spelled correctly thus making a perfectly good smile lost to the world. That is a tragedy, I'll say!

I would like also to take this opportunity to thank the hundreds of my Los Angeles friends who are following my work and are writing me appreciative letters. While Diet and Health is appearing in newspapers all over the United States and in Canada, when I write, I write with my Los Angeles friends and my own home town in my mind, hoping that they will enjoy it and benefit by it.

Calls Articles Foolish

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] At school I was a good boy and believed everything I was told—or, at least, nearly everything. And one of the things I learnt was that foreigners are wont to visit America, and after a week or two to return whence they came and write a book of impressions. Very foolish of them! The impressions were naturally not worth reading. But why were they worth publishing? Clearly because foreigners were anxious to get the impressions of any one who popped his nose into that wonderful place called America. In other words, being interested, they were ready to read even nonsense.

Now, in these days, no one had any time to be interested in the places from which foreigners came. And most of us are still busy trying to learn more about the in and out of the way corners of our own country, one of the peculiarities of which is that it is growing so fast that if you visited it last year you will hardly recognise it this year.

None the less some people go to Eurotopia and when they've had time to sniff the air and unpack their pocket typewriter, they tap off their impressions, mail them to the editor of The Times and California swallows it all for breakfast. Worth reading?

I refer particularly to impressions recently published in The Times about England. This impressionist tells us that England hasn't changed and that it has not got going just as it was before the war. Now suppose that I gave this gentleman the lie direct, how could we decide what the truth is? It is quite impossible to know what he is talking about when he talks about England. Who or what is England?

Therefore, Mr. Editor, I write to ask you, in the interests of peace and good will among nations, to warn your readers, whenever you publish impressions, that your correspondent means by England only that little bit of it that he has been able to swallow at one go. The worst of these catty tourists is that they seem able to swallow the truth about a continent at one gulp. Perhaps the fact that they spit it up again so quick and mail it home, prevents their realizing how much such gulps need digesting.

Such impressions are a form of history. And it is ridiculous to allow any one man to spout his story as if his story were history. What about my story? When you've heard his story and my story then you can start making up your story. But in newspapers there is as a rule only one fellow talking at a time, and it saves time to swallow his story whole unless we happen to know something about it, and then we know it's only his story. May I suggest that in future all impressions should be introduced with the warning that they are probably all wrong? We all know it, but we need reminding.

As I do not want to fight a duel with your correspondent when he returns, I inclose my card and sign myself. F.A.C.T.

Missouri Flood Harvest

Reaping where he never had sown, a man in a skiff on the Missouri River attracted much attention from the railway station near the river here one afternoon last week when he rowed to numerous shocks of corn floating in the stream as a result of the recent flood and plucked the ears from the stalks, shucked them and pitched them into the bottom of the boat, getting the better part of a wagonload.—[Boonville Republican.

Question: Who pays for baseball suits, balls and bats? D. L. C.

Answer: In the major league clubs, such expenses are met by the club.

A.: The pay of State legislators ranges from $200 per year in South Carolina and New Hampshire, to $2500 per term in Illinois and $1500 per year in New York.

Q.: Was it Joe Leiter or his father Levi, who cornered wheat some years ago?

A.: Joseph Leiter, in the fall of 1897, began buying wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade in an attempt to corner the market. Within a few months Leiter held the largest private ownership of wheat in the history of the grain trade, but concerted action on the part of his opponents broke the corner and Leiter is reputed to have suffered losses to the amount of $10,000,000.

Q.: How long have spectacles been used? F. F. C.

A.: Spectacle lenses were well known in the Thirteenth Century and their invention is credited to Salvino d'Armato degli Armati, about 1255.

Q.: How many lepers are there in the world? A. G.

A.: The number of lepers in the world is estimated to be about 3,000,000, two-thirds of them being in China.

Q.: Are the five vowels, a, e, i, o and u, used more frequently than any other letters? H. G. L.

A.: Among printers, experience has taught the frequency of the use of letters so that tables have been prepared in which e comes first with a rating of 1,000, while the four next in order are t at 770; a at 738; i at 704 and s at 630. The letter z is most frequently used as an initial letter.

Q.: When was the power loom invented? E. B. J.

Q.: What was the Webster-Ashburn Treaty? N. E.

A.: This treaty between the United States and Great Britain was negotiated in 1842. By it the frontier line between the State of Maine and Canada was definitely fixed, provisions were made for putting an end to the African slave trade, and an agreement was made for the mutual extradition of suspected criminals.

Q.: How much does the Washington Monument sway? R. D.

A.: In high winds the monument deviates three inches in each direction, making a maximum sway of six inches.

Q.: What should be used to paint a compass case so that the spirits won't be interfered with? J. F. C.

A.: Paints used in compasses filled with grain alcohol are made of the whites of eggs mixed with such a pigment as white lead. Care must be taken in mixing the paint to avoid frothing of the egg whites. The paint is applied to a clean surface and cooked. A satisfactory method is to immerse the compass bowl in boiling water until the paint has set, care being taken to keep the inside of the bowl dry.

list of those who should certainly risk it, since any last stage of bobbiness could scarcely be worse than their present faulty achievements in hair-dressing and grooming, as any hatless club meeting will bear evidence.

However, in all the debates weighing the pros and cons, there is positively none on the score of morals. All those chic matrons who have taken the plunge unabashed by the hectic masculine censorship which has overtaken shop girls, stenographers, waitresses and sophisticated flappers, who, by the way, instead of following the elite, this time led the way, are as one in insisting that virtue has no relation whatever to the length of abbreviation of the coiffeur. That is, of course, as far as the female of the species is concerned, although there is just the possibility that men might be more moral with long hair and long beards—for did they not themselves coin the expression—"long-haired reformers"?

In which connection it is well to remember that in those remote and oft-quoted middle-ages, when men wore their hair long and all women wore theirs bobbed, we have certainly been led to believe that women were ever sweetly feminine and knew their place, while men were sumptuously masculine and held domination by natural right of unquestioned superiority. None of this political equality, economic independence, community property law, and feminist stuff arose to confuse the issues for Samson before Delilah clipped his shaggy mane. It is only since men clipped their heads and shaved their chins that their superiority complex was disputed and jeopardized and a scurry for chimpanzee and goat glands came in. Rather a pathetic thought, that, sisters. So far we, as a sex, have been reduced to nothing worse than bobbed hair and lip sticks to augment our superiority complex.

SETS FORTH DETAILS OF SETTLEMENT

Simons Breaks Silence Regarding Divorce Suit Filed by Wife

Breaking the silence that characterized his part in the divorce proceedings at Las Vegas, Nev., which terminated Saturday in the granting of a divorce to Mrs. Edna M. Simons, a statement was issued yesterday on behalf of Walter R. Simons, local wealthy brick manufacturer, setting forth details of the property settlement that preceded the divorce.

"On July 21, 1921, Mr. Simons made an agreement with Mrs. Simons, the statement by his personal attorney, Richard J. O. Culver, reads, "after several months' negotiation between them and their attorneys, whereby she received a house and lot in Pasadena for which he had paid $18,000, a lot in Pasadena for which he had paid $6500, his promissory note for $50,000, certain household furniture, a new automobile, $600 in cash and his agreement to pay her $350 per month for ten years to support her daughter and to make a will leaving her $50,000 upon his decease. In the agreement Mrs. Simons relieved him of all further responsibilities and released his property of all claims.

"Mr. Simons left for Nevada shortly thereafter and established a residence and on March 31 of this year began an action for divorce, charging cruelty. Mrs. Simons appeared in the courts at Las Vegas, Nev., and asked for about $4500 suit money and attorneys' fees and the same were denied more than a month ago.

"The parties thereafter agreed that Mr. Simons would pay Mrs. Simons $37,500 in lieu of leaving her a bequest of $50,000 in his will. Such agreement was signed on June 22 of this year.

"Mrs. Simons withdrew a demurrer which she had previously interposed to his complaint and filed a cross-complaint asking for a divorce on the grounds of desertion on June 23 of this year. No charge of infidelity was included in the cross-complaint, as has been inferred from published reports.

"I am authoritatively advised that the case was called for trial on June 24. Mr. Simons offered no evidence except to prove that he was a resident of Nevada. Mrs. Simons offered testimony to prove that Mr. Simons deserted her in April of last year and the decree was granted."

STOP SYSTEM BEING STUDIED

Seek to Lessen Danger on Boulevards

Every Phase of Problem to be Considered

Traffic Commission Will Hear Report

Preliminary surveys by the committee of the Los Angeles Traffic Commission, appointed to determine the merits of the "boulevard stop system" in this city indicate, it was stated yesterday, that helpful results would be accomplished. However, the committee points out that the regulation of traffic entering boulevards from side streets is one of far-reaching importance and that every phase will be considered before recommendation of its trial is made. The committee will continue its survey and report its findings for final indorsement by the traffic commission.

Traffic experts says the commission, long have recognized the necessity of eliminating doubt as to who has the right of way. The present law provides that the autoist on the right has the legal right, but under varying conditions, doubt arises. The matter has been further complicated where accidents involving disputs of right of way have been decided in courts, as conflicting decisions have been given, considering not only the legal possessor of the right of way, but also taking into consideration who reached the intersection first.

UNFAIRNESS POSSIBLE

Obviously, says the commission, unfairness is possible and complications invited, as in many instances the party on the left may have speeded up unduly, reached the intersection first and in the event of accident is vindicated, although morally responsible. Under present legislation one may presume he has the right of way so long as he can drive fast enough to reach the intersection first.

Sponsors of the "boulevard stop system," in submitting the proposal stated that its adoption would require: (1) Designation of certain main arteries as boulevards; (2) Require all vehicles, prior to entering or crossing a boulevard to come to a full stop; (3) to penalize anyone failing to come to a full stop; (4) to make person entering or crossing boulevard without stopping solely responsible for any accidents occasioned by such entry; (5) intersections at boulevards would be controlled by traffic officers or automatic traffic devices.

LIKE SAFETY FEATURE

The commission is inclined to look with favor upon the safety feature claimed for the "boulevard stop system," as statistics show that the greater percentage of accidents are occurring at intersections in the outlying sections of the city.

A legal question has been raised in considering this movement as to whether the city would be legally free to pass an ordinance placing the blame of accident upon the autoist who failed to stop at intersection as against the existing State law providing that the autoist on the right has the right of way. The question has been submitted to Jess Stevens, City Attorney, for his opinion.

Indorsement of the Traffic Commission has been made by the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, it was announced by commissioners at the City Hall.

Other organizations of the city are expected to follow the action taken by the Chamber, supporting the movement to relieve traffic congestion in the city.

For Gen. Farnsworth

A dinner will be given at the Wilshire Country Club at 6 p.m. today by Lieut.-Col. J. W. Sutphen, executive officer of the One Hundred and Eighty-second Infantry, as a compliment to Maj.-Gen. Charles S. Farnsworth, chief of infantry operations in the United States Army. Gen. Farnsworth arrived in the city Friday and is a guest at the home of his sister, Mrs. Florence Lawrence, 1423 Sanborn avenue. His visit here is for the purpose of meeting reserve officers who are organizing new units in Southern California.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

A PAINFUL SUBJECT

Midnight, July 3, 1920:—How I suffer! Oh, Allah, how I suffer! What shall I do for this terrible thing that afflicteth me! I don't remember ever having studied anything about such a condition in my medical college. I never was called in consultation to treat a case like mine. How I wish I had been, then I would know something about it and what to do.

How can I hobble over the hot cobblestones tomorrow in this desolate Albanian town and make my medical calls

I have very few books with me. In vain I look them over to see if perchance some will not give me some light on mine affliction. "Aspects of the Balkan Problem;" no one can interest me in any other Balkan problem when I have such a painful one of my own. "Diet and Health With Key to the Calories!" How could I ever have been cheerful enough to have written that? "Care and Feeding of Infants;" "The Therapeutics of Infants;" infants have their troubles, but afflictions like mine do not enter into them.

Ah! "Handbook for the Sanitary Troops." Surely something to help me in that! I look in the index. Hemorrhages, Fractures, Dislocations, Insensibility, Fits, Gas Poisoning, and a lot of minor things like that, but not one solitary word about soft corns. Authors are such idiots.

"How to Live!" Something in that, sure. I look in that index. Good! Here is the word corn. "Corn, Food Value of, page 66." Food value of! How to live and not a word on how to prevent or how to treat a soft corn! Oh, soft corn! Thou art not soft in suffering.

"A Woman in the Balkans." Me. A desolate woman in the Balkans. Home mail lost and a soft corn.

A Muezzin is now in one of the Turkish church minarets singing to Allah and reminding the devoted that it is time to pray. How plaintive, how beautiful, how melodious it sounds! How my toe throbs!

I copy this from my Balkan diary for I want you to know, those of you who have suffered, that I can sympathize with you.

CORNS—what are they? One of the books on skin disorders that I refer to dismisses the subject with these words: "It is unnecessary to enter into the details concerning so common an affliction." I put that book down in disgust. All the more necessary to enter into details if an infliction is a common infliction! I pick up an other book. "Corns and bunions are too frequently given too little attention by most physicians, for they affect the temperament, and the life of an individual is most miserable as well as others about him. The longer the trouble exists, the more anxiety and pain they cause, and they frequently cause disability of a serious nature."

Now this physician has some sense. I will see what else he has to say:

"Corn—a small local epithelial swelling on the foot, chronic, painful, and disabling. Corn cells grow at a greater rate than they are shed. Shaped like a cone the apex growing down into the deeper layer of the skin and pressing on the tender nerves causing exquisite pain when the corn becomes thickened." Yea-ah!

"In the ordinary treatment only the horny layers come off. The so-called root or core is not the part that furnishes the growth, but the deeper layer of the skin which is left.

"There is a personal factor in corns, for while ordinarily they are caused by shoes that are too tight or too loose and are causing friction, some people no more careful than others to have their shoes fit, do not have them.

"Hard and soft corns are structurally the same, but the soft corn grows between the toes and the moisture keeps them sodden and macerated. Only real cure is surgery under a local or general anesthetic. Have the proliferating layer of the skin which grows the corn cut off, as well as the horny layer."

Well, we perhaps do not want to have a surgical operation, so I will look up another author.

First, what to do for a soft corn: Soak the foot in hot water with a teaspoonful of baking soda to the quart. Dig out the core with a knife the blade of which has been passed through a flame two or three times to sterilize it. Put a big pinch of boric acid powder or ordinary baking soda between the toes. Keep the m separated, preferably with a little wad of lamb's wool. Absorbent cotton will do, but not so well.

Tomorrow—More about corns and bunions and what to do.

A CORRECTION

The attention of The Times has been directed to a typographical error in the Diet and Health article of June 14 entitled "Are Boils Healthy." The sentence in The Times read: "It is not true that boils are beneficial to health. That conception taught us so much relating to life invisible to the naked eye," etc. It should have read: "It is not true that boils are beneficial to health. That conception arose before we had the knowledge of bacteriology (germs) and before the perfection of the powerful microscopes which taught us so much relating to life invisible to the naked eye," etc.

BURRO HUNT COMES NEAR TO DISASTER

Los Angeles Sportsmen Tell of Hardships and Suffering on Trip

Quest for a herd of wild and rampant burros in the Panamint Valley almost ended disastrously for two young Los Angeles sportsmen a few days ago, according to the tale they brought back with them yesterday.

John Edwin Hogg, advertising man, and J. A. Fletcher, automobile dealer, had heard of droves of wild burros in the Panamint Valley. With a motorcycle and sidecar they went in search of them.

"We left Los Angeles last Tuesday," said Mr. Hogg. "We rode over a very poor trail until we reached some canyon, where the trail ended. Continuing on our way we rode the motorcycle into the barren, rocky and hot country.

"On Thursday we sighted the wild burros, roving in herds of about two hundred each over the hills, but they were so wild we could not get within rifle shot of them. We decided to return, but discovered we had descended into a canyon and were trapped. The motorcycle could not ascend the side.

"We had twelve quarts of water left. First we planned to abandon the motorcycle and our camping equipment and hike out. Eventually we got out of the canyon by dismantling the motorcycle and carrying it, a piece at a time, to the mesa above.

"After assembling our car in the torturing heat, Fletcher returned into the canyon to retrieve some of our equipment. I waited two hours and failed to return. After searching for him for some time, I found him, unconscious, at the bottom of a cliff. He had slipped, fallen and struck his head on a boulder. He was at the bottom of a sixty-foot cliff. I succeeded in carrying him on my back to the mesa, with the aid of a tow rope anchored at the top of the cliff. I then rushed him to Troma for first-aid treatment and took him to his home in Los Angeles. Had I been unable to drag him back to the motorcycle he would have died on the desert."

The wild burros were forgotten.

Over-Exertion Believed Cause of Woman's Death

While hiking in Griffith Park Saturday afternoon Miss Emma Clark, 2172 West Twenty-eighth street, became unconscious and died about an hour later at the park clubhouse. The young woman, with two nephews and a nice, had hiked from Mt. Hollywood to a hillside on the east side of the park. Death was caused, it is thought, by overexertion.

The young woman was said to be in the best of physical condition when she left the home of her brother a few hours before. The children who accompanied the woman could furnish no reason for her death.

The woman, with her two brothers and mother, came to California a short time ago from Nebraska.

Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

ANYTHING GOES IN OATMAN NOW

Judge Allows Howling on Town's Streets

No Silencer is Placed on Burro's Music

Even Swiss Yodelling is Permitted

BY ROBERT S. DOMAN
(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

OATMAN, June 23.—Judge Zadock Shefield, who will soon be re-elected by an overwhelming majority, according to his friends here, today ruled that any man, woman, child or jackass has a legal right to howl in the streets of Oatman at the slightest provocation and at any time of the day. Even howling at night will be permitted, declared Judge Shefield, if the provocation is great enough, and the howler can show good cause for his action.

This decision makes Oatman the only town in the country where a person can howl when the desire seizes him. In New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles or in any other large city it is not only bad form and a misdemeanor to howl in the streets, but to do so probably would result in the howler being placed under observation.

HOWLING IS COMMON

Not so in Oatman. Ever since the gold boom started here we have had continuous howling of one sort or another. Forty times a day, "Lou," the only town crier in America, lets out a blood-curdling yell as he rushes up and down the Gold Trail, our Main street, on his paging errands. Lou has an alarm bell and a trading post blackboard in the middle of the street, and when he isn't howling in front of the trading post he can be found ringing the fire bell to make announcements.

Our other recognized howler is "Yodel Joe" Krause, the Swiss miner, who recently had his teeth set with Bahia black diamonds costing $1700. Each evening "Yodel Joe" ascends to the top of the Elephant's Tooth, a white rhyolite outcrop, which dominates the Oatman landscape like a cathedral spire. From its heights Joe yodels as he did when a boy on Lake Lucerne in Switzerland. Very beautiful it is, too.

Lately we have had trouble with our burros including the Jennies and Jeanettes. For those who have never lived in the heart of the Oatman burro country it should be explained that a Jeanette is a cross between a horse and a Jenny.

BURROS MAKE MUSIC

Summer has come to Oatman and the howling season for burros is on in its full efflorescence. The males don't care where they howl. During the winter months the burros seldom come into town, but as soon as hot weather arrives they seem to take delight in backing up before the Ladies' Literary Club and howling. Attorney H. C. Tapp calls them "love songs."

The other local howlers here are the prospectors and miners. Whenever a rich ledge is struck the diamond drillers come into town, led by the lusk prospector, who owns the ground. In the old days all would have headed straight for a bar. But in these degenerate days the boys line up at the ice cream counter of the Oatman Drug Company for a general howl and ice cream treat.

Night before last "Cushy" Cushman came into Oatman and reported that a miner striking a shaft to bedrock on his Silver Creek placer claim had just been taken to the hospital.

"What happened?" inquired a native.

THUMBS DOWN FOR DARW

Offering to pay the traveling expenses of Prof. Edward J. Conklin of Princeton University if he will come to Los Angeles to debate on "Evolution," and declaring that the teaching of Darwin's theory in the schools should be prohibited by law, Dr. W. R. Riley, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Minneapolis, Minn., yesterday afternoon made the formal opening address at the fourth convention of the world's conference on Christian fundamentals at the Bible Institute.

The challenge to Prof. Conklin was intended as an answer to statements by Dr. Frank Dyer and Revs. C. J. Taft and G. B. Oxnam that Dr. T. C. Horton and his associates had refused to debate with any representative of science unless the latter's theology was first approved by the fundamentalists.

Jack O'Judgment

By Edgar Wallace...

"I've told him nothing," said the girl; "at least nothing about your people. And what do you think I could tell him that he doesn't already know?" she asked scornfully. "Why, Pinto, he's got you sized right down to the ground! He's got you in half a dozen! Tell him, indeed! Why, he told me things about you that I had never heard before in my life."

Pinto went a dusky red.

"That won't go," he said roughly; "he didn't meet you to give you information."

"Didn't he, though?" said the girl, nodding. "He told me all about the Orpheum, and the man you horsewhipped you, and—"

With an oath the other started to his feet, touched in the tenderest spot.

"Dry up, Pinto," said the colonel; "we all know that story's true. But why did he tell you this, Lollie?"

She hesitated.

"I'll tell you the truth," she said. "I'm sick of this life, colonel. I want to get away out of it all, and—and—he's going to help me."

"A social reformer, eh?" said the colonel. "I didn't know the police went in for that sort of thing. And when did he take this sudden liking for you, Lollie?"

"It wasn't a sudden liking at all," she said, "but I think it was because—well, because I stopped twice in the nursing home—and Mr. White told him. I think that's all."

The colonel looked down on his cigar.

"There's something in that," he said; "it sounds feasible. Didn't you question you?" raising his eyes. "About you?" she said.

"About us!" corrected the colonel.

"He asked me nothing about you, nothing about your habits or your methods or about any of our family business. I'll swear it," she said.

"You're not going to believe that, are you, colonel?" demanded Pinto. "You can see that she is lying and that she's double-crossing you?"

"She's neither lying nor double-crossing us." It was Crewe who spoke. "I don't know what you think about it, colonel, but I'm convinced that Lollie is speaking the truth."

"You!" Pinto laughed loudly. "I think you're in a state of mind when you'd believe anything Lollie said. And anyway you're probably in league with her."

"You're a liar," said Crewe, so quietly that no one suspected the surprising thing that would follow. Then of a sudden his fist shot out and caught Pinto under the jaw, sending him sprawling to the floor.

The colonel was instantly on his feet, his hand outspread.

"That's enough, Crewe," he said harshly. "I'll have none of that!"

Pinto picked himself up, his face livid.

"You'll pay for that," he said breathlessly; but Swell Crewe had walked to the girl and had laid his hand on her shoulder.

"Lollie," he said, "I'm believing you, and I think the colonel is, too. If you're going out of the country, why, I'll say good luck to you. You've made a very wise decision, and one which we shall all make—some of us perhaps too late."

"Wait a moment," said the colonel. He exchanged a glance with Selby, and the man slipped quietly from the room. "Before we do any of that fare-thee-well stuff we've got a few words to say to you, Lollie. I'm with Crewe. I think it is time you went out of the country, but you're going out my way."

"What do you mean?" she asked. Her hand clutched Swell Crewe's sleeve.

"You're going out my way," said the colonel, "and I swear no harm will come to you. You're leaving tonight."

"But how?" she asked, affrighted.

"Selby will tell you. You'll meet him downstairs. Now be a sensible girl and do as I tell you. Selby will go with you and see you safe. We made all preparations for your departure tonight."

"What's this, colonel?" asked Crewe.

"You're out of it," said the colonel savagely; "I'm running this show myself. If you want to join Lollie later, why, you can. For the present, she's going just where I want here to go and in the way I have planned."

He held out his hand to the girl and she took it.

"Good-by and good luck, Lollie!" he said.

"But can't I go back to my rooms?" she asked.

He shook his head.

"So as I tell you," he said shortly.

She stood at the door, and for a moment her eyes met Crewe's and he moved toward her.

"Wait!" The colonel gripped his arm. "Good-by, Lollie," and the door shut on the girl.

"Let me go," said Crewe between his teeth. "If she trusts you I won't. This is some trick of that dirty half-breed!"

With a snarl of rage Pinto whipped his ever-ready knife from his hip pocket and flung it. It was the colonel who drew Crewe aside, or that moment would have been his last. The knife whizzed past and was buried almost to the hilt in the wall. The colonel broke the tense silence which followed.

"Pinto," he said in his silkiest voice, "if you ever want to know what it feels like to be a dead man just repeat that performance, will you?"

He went to the window and looked out. The car which he had hired for the occasion was still standing at the door, and he distinguished Selby talking to the chauffeur.

"Listen, you," he said, "and especially you, Crewe. You're too trusting with these females. Maybe Lollie's speaking the truth, but it is just as likely she's lying. I'm not going to take your corroboration, you know, Crewe," he said. "We've got to depend on her word. There's nobody else can speak for her, is there?"

"Jack o' Judgment! Poor old Jack o' Judgment! He'll speak for Lollie!"

The colonel looked up with a curse. There was nobody in the room, but the voice had been louder than ever he had heard it before. It seemed as though it emanated from a disembodied spirit that was floating through the air. There was a knock at the outer door.

Chapter XXXIII
WHERE THE VOICE LIVED

"Open it," said the colonel in a low voice; "open it, Crewe." He pulled open the drawer and took out something. "And if it is Jack o' Judgment——"

Crewe opened the door, his heart beating at a furious rate, but it was Selby who came into the room and faced the half-leveled gun of the colonel.

"What do you want?" asked Boundary quickly. "You fool, I told you not to lose sight of her!"

"But when is she coming down?" asked Selby. "I've been waiting there all this time, and there's a policeman at the corner of the street. I wondered whether you had seen him, too."

Selby shook his head.

"She hasn't come down," he said, "and I've certainly not passed her on the stairs. Is there any other way out?"

"No way that she could use," said the colonel, shaking his head. "I've had new locks put on all the doors."

He thought a moment. "If she hasn't come down she went up."

They went up the stairs together and searched, first Pinto's flat, and then the storerooms and empty apartments on the floor higher up.

"Go down to the door and wait, in case she tries to get out," said the colonel.

He returned to the room with the two men, and they looked at one another in blank astonishment.

"Have you any idea what's happened, Crewe?" asked the colonel suspiciously.

"No idea in the world," said Crewe.

"But she went downstairs," said the colonel; "I heard the alarm click."

"The alarm?" questioned Crewe.

"I've got a buzzer under one of the treads of the stairs," said the colonel; "it is useful to know when people are coming up. It went off about twenty seconds after she left."

Ten minutes passed, and Selby returned to say that the policeman had been making inquiries as to whom the car belonged.

"You'd better get it away," said the colonel, "and send away your men."

"They've gone," said the other. "I wasn't taking any risks."

He disappeared to carry out the colonel's instructions, and they heard the whine of the moving car.

Boundary unlocked a cabinet and took out a full decanter of whisky. Without a word he poured three stiff doses into as many glasses and filled them with soda. Each man was thinking, and thinking after his own interests.

Boundary looked up and saw the dagger which Pinto had thrown. It was still embedded in the wall.

"It isn't enough that I should have Jack o' Judgment messing my room about," he said, "but you must do something to the same wall! Pull it out and don't let me see it again, Pinto."

The Portuguese sulked sheepishly, walked to the wall and gripped the handle. Evidently the point had embedded itself in a lath for the knife did not move. He pulled again, exerting all his strength, and this time succeeded in extracting not only the knife but a large portion of the plaster and a strip of the wall paper.

"Jumping Moses!" said the colonel softly. "Detectaphones!"

With a knife he slashed the plaster and exposed three wires that led straight downward and apparently through the floor. The colonel rested and eyed the debris thoughtfully.

"What is under this flat? Lee's office, isn't it? Of course—Lee's!" he said. "I'm the fool!"

He handed the knife back to Pinto, took an electric torch from his pocket and led the way from the flat. They passed down the half-darkened stairs to the floor beneath, on which was situated the three sets of offices. The colonel took a bunch of keys and tried them on the door of the surveyor's office. Presently he found one that fitted, and the door opened. He fumbled about for the electric switch, found it and flooded the room with light. It was a very ordinary clerk's office, with a small counter, the flap of which was raised. Inside the flap he saw something white on the floor, and, stooping, picked it up. It was a lady's handkerchief.

Crewe took the handkerchief and nodded.

"That is Lollie's," he said shortly.

"I thought so. This is where she was when we were looking for her. Here with Jack o' Judgment, eh? Let's try the inner office."

The inner office was locked, but he had no difficulty in gaining admission. Inside this was a private office which was simply furnished and had in one corner what appeared to be a telephone box. He opened the glass door and flashed his lamp inside. There was a little desk, a pair of receivers fastened to a headpiece, and a small vulcanite transmitter.

"This is where he sat," said the colonel meditatively, pointing to a stool, "and this"—he lifted up the ear pieces—"is how he heard all our very interesting conversations. Go upstairs, Pinto. I want to try this transmitter."

POWDER HORN MAY LOCATE LOST TOWNS

A map engraved on an old powder horn may lead to the location of the sites of several Cherokee Indian towns in Western North Carolina, according to the Bureau of American Ethnology at Washington.

The powder horn is a loan from Hugh Kirk, Newtownards, County Down, Ireland, and dates from about 1750 when the English were beginning to open up the Cherokee region. It belonged to James Grant, member of a company of British soldiers stationed near Charlestown and near Fort Loudon and Fort Prince George in the Cherokee country about the time that these forts were besieged.

The horn is elaborately engraved with the royal arms of Great Britain and the map showing the ancient town of Uucassee and other towns in the region in which the soldier saw service.—[Kansas City Star.

Quakers Elect Officers and End Meeting

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, June 25. — The twenty-eighth session of the California Yearly Meeting of Friends churches was brought to a successful close here today after a seven-day conference of Friends from the twenty-three churches comprising the organization.

Among the outstanding features of the convention may be mentioned the letter sent President Harding indorsing his stand at the Washington conference and his other efforts toward a world-peace program; the election of officers for the Yearly Meeting; the selection of delegates to the Five-Year Meeting, which is to be held in Richmond, Ind., in September; educational interest of the Friends colleges; church expansion and the epistles sent and received from sister churches throughout the world, particular interest being manifested in the churches and the reconstruction work in Germany and Russia, where the word "Quaker" is known as a magic word that proves an open sesame to doors closed to many others.

The officers elected for the following year are: Allen U. Tomlinson, Whittier, presiding clerk; Mrs. Edith Tebbetts Clark, Whittier, recording clerk; Mrs. Nellie M. White, Long Beach, reading clerk; George Taylor, Imperial, announcing clerk; W. Carlton Woods, Whittier, editing clerk; I. Henry Johnson, Whittier, treasurer.

OCEAN, LAKE EACH CLAIM ONE VICTIM

Two Los Angeles Youths Drown While Enjoying Swim on Sunday

Reports of the drowning yesterday of two Los Angeles youths—Leonard Cattell, at Anaheim Landing, and Gilbert Hull, in Big Bear Lake—reached friends and relatives of the young men here last night.

Cattell, who was 17 years old, and who is said to have lived at 409 West Fifty-fourth street, had gone to Anaheim Landing early in the day, accompanied by his parents. He was not swimming in the bay, but had entered the surf and was carried out by a rip tide. The body has not been recovered.

Gilbert Hull, who was 18 years old, and whose address is given as 316 North Place, had gone, with a companion, to Big Bear Lake, near the Stanfield resort, to spend the day. Little can be learned of the details of the death of Hull. He and his friend had been swimming and when the latter came out of the water he missed Hull and returned to look for him. The body was found a few minutes later and was taken to San Bernardino. This was the second drowning occurring at Big Bear Lake within the past week.

Boiling Water Scalds Infant, Death Expected

As the result of being scalded by boiling water, Irene Ayala, an infant, was taken to the County Hospital yesterday afternoon in a serious condition. The accident occurred at the home of the baby's mother, Mrs. Irene Ayala, 3022 North Avenue 26.

A bucket containing boiling water was overturned on a kitchen stove in such a manner as to scald the child on the right side of the head and over the entire body.

Surgeons at the County Hospital late yesterday said that they thought the baby would die.

Raid Cafe, Get List of Diners With Liquor

Members of the flying squadron of the police department raided the Turkish Village, 221½ West Fourth street, late Saturday night and took the names of all persons at tables where liquor was found, though there were no arrests. The course the police will follow regarding these persons has not been announced.

Peter Manos, the proprietor of the Turkish Village, is now awaiting trial on a charge of concealing and selling stolen property. His arrest was made at the time $40,000 worth of jewelry was recovered here. He was arrested with three other men, who are said by the police to be responsible for the theft of the jewelry from a safe in the Adolphus Hotel at San Antonio, Tex.

ROJA-YOGA LECTURER SPEAKS OF THEOSOPHY

Mrs. Marjorie M. Tyberg, lecturer on history and literature in the Raja-Yoga College and Theosophical University at Point Loma, and a member of Katherine Tingley's headquarters staff, spoke at Symphony Hall last evening on "Theosophy and the Bible."

Reviewing the history of the Bible and the higher criticism of the last generation or so, she said: "But it remained for Mme. Blavatsky, who knew the esoteric significance of the names used in the Old Testament, to point out what treasures of meaning had escaped expression in that most confused and borrowed collection of writings.

"You have only to read the works of this great Theosophical teacher to have all your conceptions of the Bible expanded, and many surprises and revelations are in store for the student who undertakes this. Katherine Tingley has said, 'Forms of religion change, but religion itself, which is based on truth and immutable laws, does not change. Theosophy is the ancient Wisdom-Religion.'"

SMALL BOY, WHIPPED, IS IN HOSPITAL

Police Are Holding His Older Brother on Charge of Battery

Jack Thomas, 8 years of age, lies in a critical condition at the Hillside Hospital, Los Angeles Harbor, from injuries inflicted yesterday by his step-brother, Arnold Thomas, 31 years of age, the police say. Up until a late hour last night Thomas, a cook at a harbor hotel, was being held on a charge of battery.

According to police, the boy was beaten into a state of insensibility with a club in the hands of Thomas. Neighbors, who notified the police, declare that the boy had been beaten and otherwise mistreated on numerous occasions by his step-brother, with whom he lives alone at 403 Harbor Boulevard. The little fellow's parents are dead and the step-brother is his only living relative, he told the police.

Rushed to the emergency hospital in the police ambulance, where his only garment, a pair of torn coveralls, was removed, the boy's body was found to be covered with deep cuts and bruises. Blood bruises, several inches in length, covered his back, while the blood streamed from cuts about his waist and legs. Previous to being taken to the hospital the police took Jack to a restaurant, where he became unconscious and suffered a convulsive fit. He had not eaten for two days, he told Patrolman Bost.

Dr. A. J. Langan, police surgeon, after working for two hours on the boy, ordered him removed to the Hillside Hospital and placed under the care of two nurses. Unless complications set in, Dr. Langan said last night, he has an even chance for recovery.

Thomas refused to give any reason for beating the child, when questioned by the police, other than that the boy had refused to obey him on various occasions.

DOUBLE EFFORT ON SCORE

On no production released to the California Theater recently has such time and effort been expended on a musical score as on James Oliver Curwood's story, "I Am the Law," which opened yesterday. Mr. Elinor usually puts in about a week on his scores and concert program with the aid of half a dozen assistants. But "I Am the Law" was such a big feature and the musical accompaniment so important, that the leader has been doing a double shift for two weeks in order to get it just right.

Sale of thirty marine engines at Tacoma to the Willamette Iron and Steel Works and twenty-three others at the St. Johns consolidation warehouse to the Barde Interests, both of Portland, has been confirmed by the shipping Board as the result of bids received at Washington last week in connection with an allotment of marine engines at various construction yards.

Whether the Japanese steamer Ypres Maru, which was damaged in collision with the oil tanker Frank G. Drum last week, will come here from Coos Bay to be repaired has not been determined as yet. A report of the survey will be made tomorrow.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—The Matson Navigation Company has instituted a service for the transportation of automobiles between the Hawaiian Islands and San Francisco. Mechanics will test machines when they arrive and get them ready for immediate use on landing.

The demand for western lumber in the East has been more than doubled in the last month, according to A. M. Hauptman, president of the ship Owners of the Pacific, who has just returned to the coast from an eastern trip. Hauptman said that this year 450,000,000 feet will be shipped East from the coast. Last year shipments totaled 225,000,000 feet.

SEATTLE, June 25.—A survey of the West Seattle Harbor area which is to be platted for harbor improvements will be completed this week by Capt. E. C. Dohrn of the State Land Commissioner's office. After the survey is completed, the portions designated as possible dock sites or suitable for port improvements will be placed under the jurisdiction of the Port Commission of Seattle. The survey will also designate ship channels and list soundings.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

You are politely requested to submit samples carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying, stating what tests are desired. Always attach the letter to the sample. Make samples of small size. There is no necessity for big pieces. Correspondents offering matter for analysis with each, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no marks of identification on specimen, will hereafter receive no attention. Analyses are made free of charge.

Silicate and Carbonate

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) June 8.—Question: Under separate cover please find four samples. Kindly analyze the same. They occur on the west side of Montezuma Mountain foothills, Nevada. I am particularly interested in No. 1, and does No. 4 indicate opal? Allow me to mention that last year's discovery (argentite) Cow Camp, Silver Peak Mountain, is developing very satisfactorily with depth and seems to be turning into a bonanza. Kind regards and many thanks. L.

Answer: Please accept the thanks of The Times for the information given on argentite (silver suphide) at Cow Camp, Nevada.

No. 1 sample is silicate rock containing sulphides; chiefly microscopical pyrite. Traces of galenite, and trace of silver (argentite.) What you are seeking for is probably tellurides, and that substance is not present. No. 2 is altered rhyolitic rock. No. 3 is a burnt-up and altered sand carbonate; lime carbonate, iron-manganese oxides, tourmaline and biotite (black mica of the mining boys) more or less present with black ilmenite (titaniferous iron.) No. 4 is of many colors in part resembling the gemstone known as bloostone (heliotrope.) The greenish matter is iron-magnesium silicate, and the most of the sample is jasper.

Three Samples

GOODSPRINGS (Nev.) June 5. Q.: I am mailing you for qualitative tests two samples of ore and a piece of rock for classification. M.

A.: Tests were made on the samples for "platinum, bismuth, cobalt and tin." Cobalt detected. The other named metals are absent. The samples contain iron-zinc sulphides, and sulphates sparingly present. Quantitative analysis, on an ounce or more of the concentrates, will be required to go further on the sulphides. The "heavy rock" is an iron-amphibole with dolomitic limestone present and more or less magnetite.

Chiefly Calcite

SHOSHONE, June 6. — Q.: I am forwarding under separate cover a sample from this vicinity which I believe to be strontian carbonate (strontianite.) Would you kindly inform me if such is the case and oblige? A.

A.: There are traces only of strontianite in the sample. It is possible, however, that strontianite occurs at the locality, with celestite (strontium sulphate,) for the reason that sulphate traces were noted in the tests made.

Sulphides Present

BROWN, June 6.—Q.: I am mailing two pieces of rock from the Argus Mountain. Will you please tell me the names of them and what they are composed of? Are they ore-making rocks? S.

A.: Sample 1 and 2 are quartzitic rocks. No. 1 shows microscopic fern-like markings of dendritic manganese, iron present and the fern "pictures" are known to the mining boys in the hills as "forest rock." No. 2 shows some chalcedony with other quartz. Pyrite (iron disulphide) and a little blende (zinc sulphide) present in both samples. The specimens may be referred to as "ore makers."

Rock-making minerals are partly listed as follows: All varieties of quartz are rock-making minerals; so is orthoclase, amazonite, albite, labrodorite, muscovite; the five last-named minerals being felspars.

Bitite (black mica,) hornblende (black amphibole,) iron-alumine garnet, tourmaline and beryl are also examples.

Platinum Absent

ESCONDIDO, June 7. — Q.: The samples are from around Escondido, San Diego county, California. Please test them for gold and platinum. H.

A.: Free gold absent. The samples are "greasy quartz" and this department of The Times makes no fire assays for gold or silver.

Quartz

LOS ANGELES, June 9.—Q.: I am sending you under separate cover some specimens to be assayed for gold. Please let me have report on this as early as convenient to you. H.

A.: This department of The Times makes no fire assays for gold or silver. Correspondents seeking fire assays are respectfully referred to assayers.

The samples are quarts containing quite a per cent of iron oxides, and are, therefore, known as ferruginous quartz. There are traces of miscroscopic pyrite in the rock and "peacock iron" (iridescent) shows its beautiful colors in traces. Free gold was found in the milled samples in traces only.

Concentrates

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—Q.: I am sorry to state that I am not able at the present time to forward a massive sample of the matrix containing the molybdenum, but will do so later. At present I take the liberty to send inclosed a sample of molybdenum concentrates containing approximately 59 per cent Mo S2. My former sample was obtained from this concentrate by screening out the muscovite. Please advise if you can detect sericite or any other representative of the mica family, and if so, the vital question is, will this prevent the making of pure molybdenum metal. The concentrates I am inclosing under separate cover is the result of a flotation test run. Thanking you in advance for any advice. G.

A.: But little information can be given by qualitative tests from a very minute quantity of microscopic impure molybdenite concentrates obtained by flotation; i.e., to recommend such concentrates to the metal industry.

The sample contains no sericite as sought for under the microscope. It shows, however, a trace of flake micaceous iron, and, probably, a like variety of ilmenite. Furthermore, unless the process yielded quite a quantity of molybdenite from "fat rock" it is doubtful that flotation would be a paying investment. Without massive samples nothing further can be added.

Obsidian

PASADENA, June 10.—Q.: I am sending sample of rock picked up on open ground below Mt. Wilson toll road. Kindly tell me what the metal is in it, and is it of any value? B.

A.: The sample is a variety of volcanic glass. The "metal" you refer to is flake microscopical ilmenite (titaniferous iron,) with traces of hornblende and microscopical glassy feldspar.

Lime Carbonate

DARWIN, June 11.—Q.: I am a reader of The Times. Would you kindly do me a favor by classifying this rock that I am shipping you from the Darwin district. It want to find out if it is good rock to work in. C.

A.: The sample is a shaly, altered and silicious lime carbonate. It reacts slightly for zinc; iron present.

We would not select rock represented by the sample as good rock to work for mining ores. The specimen may be from a blanket or from wall rock.

Three Samples

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—Q.: Will you kindly tell me through your columns the minerals contained in samples, and if of value? They are from the mountains south of Lakeside, San Diego county, Cal. No. 3 looks most promising to me and there is a large body of it. J. A. H.

A.: Sample No. 1 is altered rock containing iron oxides. The very deceptive yellow stuff in the specimen is yellow mica with traces of microscopic pyrite (iron disulphide.) No. 2, "metals contained": Sulphides of iron, arsenopyrite and traces of chalcopyrite (iron copper-sulphide;) traces of zinc-lead sulphides present. No. 3 is altered rock carrying iron peroxide (hematite, and known as "Indian war paint.") Pyrite traces, and trace of galenite noted under the microscope. The ores are probably of no great value unless gold or silver is present. Fire assays will decide.

Magnesite

SAN DIEGO, June 8.—Q.: What am I? K.

A.: Correspondents are once more politely notified that letters accompanying samples for analyses are required. Your letter was written in pencil on the sample.

Many requests for tests cannot be made on samples offered for the reason that they are received without letters stating what tests are desired; others come to us not even wrapped up, and without marks of identification. Read the requirements at the head of this column and we'll all perform a better service.

Oil Absent

SAN FERNANDO, June 9.—Q.: I am sending you under separate cover small package marked 7-11-77, to see if there are any indications of oil in it. A SUBSCRIBER.

Rock

CALEXICO, June 10.—Q.: Availing myself of your kind offer I am mailing you today a leather money bag containing three pieces of ore, which please assay for me and advise me of results. If I am to pay you any charges please let me know and I will remit. P.

A.: We make no fire assays for gold or silver. There is no free gold present in the samples submitted. Other specimens from the locality might show native gold sparingly. The samples are mixtures of quartz, iron oxides, altered hornblende, traces of magnetite, iron oxides and traces of lead. This is about all to state from qualitative analyses. No tests were made for zinc, and there is no charge for the service rendered.

Use of Mill Expected to Get Profit from Low-Grade Ore at Oatman

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OATMAN (Ariz.) June 23.—Possibly nothing has been of such substantial potential value to the district as the sampling mill about to be installed by the Tom Reed Company. The foundations are ready and the mechanical equipment will be here from the East by July 15. It is expected that through the samples, profit will be obtained from local ores that run as low as $7 gold. Many thousands of tons of low-grade ores are available for treatment on the dumps of scores of the smaller mines.

A mill is planned for the Black Range, a property that is believed to have demonstrated the value and extent of its ore. It lies beyond Boundary Cone, in the extreme lower end of the district, with several nearby mines of demonstrated value and ready to furnish custom ores.

Drilling is being prosecuted by sixteen companies and a large amount of underground work is being done. Surface operations are somewhat handicapped by excessive heat.

The Oatman Mining and Business Men's Association has made proclamation that it will give summary treatment to any one found guilty of circulating false reports concerning the camp or its mines. It is charged that several instances of stock depression on the Los Angeles market have been traced to lying details from local sources that were seeking to purchase stocks at lower prices.

Not Custodians

At the town meeting of a small place "up country" a citizen made a motion that was seconded in an astonishing way.

"Mr. Moderator," he said, "I move that the town set aside money for three cuspidors to be stationed at proper places."

At that an old fellow in the rear of the hall who was hard of hearing rose stiffly to his feet. "I second the motion," he said, "and I move that Jack Davis be made one of 'em."—[Youth's Companion.

What Would We Do Without Paper?

IT is doubtful if there is another commodity as essential to the free intercourse of all business as paper. It is the universal medium of communication and recording of information.

Newspapers are the largest consumers of paper. Newsprint is the principal product of the Washington Pulp & Paper Corp., which operates a complete paper manufactory occupying 60 acres of land at Port Angeles, Washington, fronting on deep water.

This locality probably has more of the requisite requirements for the manufacture of newsprint than any place on the Pacific Coast. There is unlimited timber supply, hydro-electric power at low cost, sawmill waste for fuel, rail as well as water transportation, pure soft water for manufacturing purposes, fresh water pond for storage of logs, and plenty of good labor surrounded with the elements of home life, schools, churches, theaters, parks, etc., which unite in promoting good health, contentment and efficient service.

The demand for this company's product continues to exceed the supply, and the [illegible] which is practically double that of last year, has been contracted for at satisfactory prices for the next four years. These favorable conditions coupled with good management enabled the company to show net earnings for 1921 of more than 11.9 times interest on bonds outstanding for that period. If the [illegible] charges on this issue were also included, the earnings would represent five times the total interest charges.

These facts give strength to an investment in Washington Pulp & Paper Corporation First Mortgage Sinking Fund Gold Bonds 6½% Series of 1941. The price is 100 and interest to 6½%. EXEMPT FROM PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXES IN CALIFORNIA

INVESTMENT FEATURES

ORGANIZATION. The Company was organized in June, 1922, under the laws of the State of California, by local financial interests, for the purpose of erecting a modern bank and office building on the property described below.

PROPERTY. The Company owns a lease for ninety-nine years on property having a frontage of sixty feet on the West Side of Spring Street between Sixth Street and Seventh Street, Los Angeles, and extending a depth of one hundred fifty-five feet to an alley. This valuable business property is situated in the heart of the financial district, as is evidenced by the fact that six of the largest banks in the city are permanently established within two blocks of this site, of which four, together with other important financial institutions, are within one block.

SECURITY. The Company is now erecting a twelve-story Class A steel frame fireproof bank and office building on the property as a permanent investment, and this issue of bonds is a closed first mortgage lien on the leasehold and building and is secured by a trust indenture executed by the Company to the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank, as Trustee. This indenture provides that bonds may be issued only after there has been deposited with the Trustee in a Special Trust Fund, cash and securities having a total valuation of at least $600,000. The indenture further provides that this Special Trust Fund shall be disbursed by the Trustee under rigid restrictions in payment of the actual cost of the construction of the building, not including operating expenses, taxes, insurance or carrying charges. In addition the Company has deposited with the Trustee marketable securities having a value of $100,000, as a guaranty that the building will be completed free from mechanics' liens.

INCOME. The entire building, with the exception of approximately two floors, has been leased for terms of ten to twenty-five years to responsible tenants of which the California Bank, for whom the building is named, is the largest single lessee. Applications for the remainder of the available space have been so numerous as to enable the Company to select its tenants.

A careful and conservative estimate of earnings and expenses of the Company from the property shows income available for interest on these bonds will be approximately FIVE times charges and about twice the combined interest and sinking fund requirements—which proportion will be greatly increased as bonds are redeemed through the Sinking Fund.

SINKING FUND. The Company must deposit with the Trustee on or before the first day of March in each year, beginning 1925, in a Sinking Fund the sum of $30,000 in cash or in bonds of this issue at par. All moneys so deposited must be used for the purchase of bonds in the open market at not exceeding their call price, or redemption by lot.

The incorporation of the Company and the creation of the bonded indebtedness, as well as the form and execution of the indenture securing the bonds, has been prepared by and under the direction of Messrs. Bauer, Wright and Macdonald for the Company and by Messrs. Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher for ourselves.

MONEY MARKET SHOWS EASE

Capital Being Released for Market

Billion-Dollar Loan to Germany is Possible

Mexican Petroleum Still Remains Puzzle

BY ALEXANDER DANA NOYES
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Considered in the light of large financial movements, the outstanding event of the moment is undoubtedly the continuing fall in money rates and the broadening of facilities for credit. Of the drift of affairs in that direction, the reduction of the Bank of England discount rate to the figure from which it was raised when credit first tightened in 1919, were merely somewhat belated landmarks. The course of the market had told a story in advance of this action by the central banks. The treasury's 3½ per cent rate on a short term government loan last April and the rise of all the 4 1-4 per cent Liberty bonds above their subscription price had borne earlier testimony to the situation. Decline in Wall street discount rates to the lowest figure since the month when our country went to war with Germany and in Lombard street discount rates to the level which prevailed six months before the war itself only reflected the release of accumulated capital in quantity far greater than is needed to finance the commercial requirements of the hour.

From the side of the bank position and the every-day money market it illustrates the condition which is finding much more dramatic illustration in the financing of Europe's needs through long term bonds placed with American investors, in the subscription by French investors, up to billions of francs, to their government's reconstruction loans and in the serious discussion by serious bankers of a billion dollar reparation loan to Germany. The whole course of the money situation in short emphasizes the important historical fact that the real tasks of economic rehabilitation after a great and destructive war can be taken up in earnest only after the world's capital has been released from its war time commitments and speculations, and has been accumulated in manageable shape where the reservoir can be drawn upon for the needs of world-wide reconstruction.

The past week's evidences of extremely easy money did not serve as stimulus to renewed speculation for the rise. On the contrary, prices in such speculative markets as wheat and foreign exchange showed a distinctly reactionary tendency and prices of investment bonds merely held steady at a level a point or more below the season's highest. With the stock market the course of events was different, but the character and circumstances of the market were such as to render difficult any judgment as to actual tendencies. In the speculative position, all other considerations were superseded by the rise in 5 to 14 points per day in Mexican Petroleum stock, its total advance within eight days being 52½ points or exactly 40 per cent in market value. This abnormally rapid rise was unaccompanied by any news bearing on the value of the property except for the publication of annual report for 1921. That report was undoubtedly favorable, but certainly not far enough away from general expectations to warrant any such violent convulsion in the price. The inference which Wall Street drew at once was that the stock, nearly three-fourths of which is tied up in the treasury of another company, had been cornered and that speculators who had sold for future delivery were being compelled to pay such prices as holders of the rest of the stock should choose to fix.

Whatever the exact facts of the matter, opinion manipulation of a corner has not characterized this episode. Such an experiment as that is doubly dangerous because of the attitude of the Stock Exchange authorities and because of its effect on the rest of the market.

LABOR PLENTIFUL

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MIAMI (Ariz.) June 23.—Nearly 5000 men now are employed in the mines of the Miami-Globe district, a number that compares well with the boom days. Inspiration has nearly 2000 men at work, while Miami has a pay roll of about 1200, and Old Dominion, 750. Good miners are being taken on at any time, while the supply of unskilled labor is diminishing, due to work elsewhere in the State.

EXPLAINS CORE DRILLING

Use of Samples from Oil Shale Will Make for Economy in Work

Core drilling, the latest method of determining the horizon in which the driller of an oil well is working, is attracting more and more attention. In oil drilling the use of the core sample is advantageous as well as economical, according to E. Call Brown, geologist for large Los Angeles oil interests, who was the first to apply the study of shales by means of the core toward determining the horizon in which the drill was located.

During the World War the government became aware of the fact that one of the most important non-metallic minerals necessary in the manufacture of amunition was potash. Like dyes, the government fully appreciated for the first time how dependent we were upon imports, principally from Germany, for our potash.

DRASTIC MEASURES ADOPTED

Drastic measures were adopted for the relief of the situation created by shutting off the importation of these two vital necessities. Our farms need potash as a fertilizer and in times of war we need it for the manufacture of explosives. The government resorted to all manner of means to bolster up our limited supply of potash, and the Geological Survey finally located just at the close of the war what they thought to be a valuable deposit of potash.

Here again comes the use of the core drill. The lands referred to in Texas have largely fallen into the hands of the Danciger Development Syndicate of Kansas City, Mo., for it seems that the district, which is close to Odessa, Tex., is also potential oil land and the Danciger Syndicate acquired a 12,000 acre tract and another 14,000 of acres on two structures, both of which, according to United States geologists are above valuable potash deposit. It is through the medium of the core drill that the quality and size of these deposits will be determined.

MAKES FOR ECONOMY

Relative to the use of the core drill in the development of oil lands, according to Mr. Brown, this late development has been a step forward, both in efficiency and economy. The old method of taking samples from a rotary drill was more or less haphazard.

A core extracted by means of a piece of casing which has been bent over at the lower end and teeth cut in, which when rotated cut and force the formation in which the core is working up into the casing, will bring up a pure sample of the horizon from which the core was taken.

The next step, Mr. Brown says, is to split open the casing in which the shale is and by placing part of the material under a microscope note the physical characteristics of the shale. Then, following a chemical analysis for organic matter, minute fossils are removed from the shales and after being placed on glass slides are ready for petrographic examination, which will show one familiar with the formation of a given field the exact horizon in which the core was taken, thus enabling him to instruct the men in charge of the drilling as to the formation they are working in, and enabling them to pursue the wisest course in drilling a well so as to secure the maximum production with the minimum of expense.

MERGER OF MINING COMPANIES RATIFIED

GRAND ISLAND STOCKHOLDERS APPROVE CONSOLIDATION WITH SHEA

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

JEROME (Ariz.) June 23.—At a special meeting of the Grand Island Mining Company, unanimous ratification of the plant to consolidate with the Shea Copper Company, for a consideration of 100,000 shares of Shea stock was given. At the meeting were represented 1,185,813 shares. James M Layman, who voted about a tenth of the stock, stated he had come prepared to oppose the sale, but had become converted to the idea since arrival. Under the transfer agreement, the Shea Company must resume July 1 and spend not less than $50,000 in continuous development.

The 800 crosscut of the Verde Central is all in ore sampling about 4 per cent copper with a little gold and silver. Drifting is being prosecuted along the contact both ways. On the 800 level the ore is in soft schists along the sheared zone and no values are found in the adjacent hard material.

Unemployment no longer vexes in Jerome, the supply and demand now appearing to balance, miners coming in steadily to fill places opened by extending mining and reduction work in the big mines.

A novel session of the Arizona State Medical Association was held on the 500 level of the United Verde, where there was demonstration of first-aid work by teams representing the United Verde and Verde Extension. Some of the eighty physicians present were dropped to the 1850 level.

DENY CONTEMPLATING EARLY PRODUCTION

PHELPS DODGE TO OPERATE ONLY ONE MINE IN NEAR FUTURE

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CLIFTON (Ariz.) June 23.—There is denial that production is contemplated at any early day in the local Phelps Dodge plans. The company here is in possession of the greatest mineralized area owned by any one mining corporation in the West. This area has been acquired largely from the Arizona Copper and Shannon companies, and, in combination with the Phelps Dodge Detroit organization, is filled with a diverse collection of mining transportation and reduction machinery that cannot be worked in unison with any approach to economy.

Just now the main improvement work is in the modernization of the Arizona No. 6 mill, which is to be the only one operated in the near future. There has been suggestion that the immense tailing dumps below the various concentrators offer excellent opportunity for leaching operations, for much copper has been lost in the past through ineffectual methods.

THE NATIONAL CITY BANK OF NEW YORK, Trustee.

Application will be made to list these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange. Issuance has been approved by the Public Service Commission of the State of New York

Mr. James D. Hurd, president of the corporation, has summarized his letter to us regarding this issue as follows:

The New York Steam Corporation supplies steam for power and heating purposes in the downtown financial district and in an extensive uptown commercial and residential section, serving over 1400 buildings, including some of the largest in New York City.

These bonds constituting the sole funded debt of the corporation will be secured in the opinion of counsel by a direct first mortgage on its entire property.

An appraisal just completed by independent engineers shows a value of the properties based on average prices in excess of twice the present issue of $5,000,000 first mortgage bonds.

Against future construction expenditures, additional bonds may be issued for not exceeding seventy-five per cent, provided net earnings are at least twice bond interest charges.

A sinking fund of at least two per cent each year will be applied toward the purchase of bonds or the acquisition of additional property and provision will also be made in the mortgage for the maintenance and replacement of the property through the operation of a strong general reserve fund.

For the twelve months ended May 31, 1922, gross earnings were $3,246,088 and net earnings $753,765, or over two and half times annual bond interest charges.

The franchise under which the corporation operates is entirely satisfactory, and, in the opinion of counsel, grants the right, without limit as to time, to lay mains and pipes in any of the streets on the Island of Manhattan and to supply steam for power, heating and cooking.

These bonds are offered when, as and if issued and received by us subject to approval of our counsel.

Price, 94 and interest, yield about 6.50%

UNITED'S WELL IN OIL SAND

Good Producer is Expected at Long Beach

Whittier Field Interest is Revived

Real Surprise is Given Montebello

BY ELLWOOD J. MUNGER

The United Oil Company's Hess No. 1, now drilling at 3100 feet, has been in the oil sand for more than 500 feet and there is every reason to believe that this test well will make one of the biggest wells in the field. The oil sand was struck at 2600 feet and has continued practically unbroken for 500 feet. United Hess will prove up the southwest side of the Long Beach field.

The Cal-Mex Oil and Refining Company continues to battle with the water in the Kirkpatrick well. A fourth cementing has just been done—at 2980 feet. Vern Dumas is making every effort to bring into production a well that means much to the field and to his company. A lot of development has been hanging fire for months pending the outcome of the Cal-Mex.

Interest in the Fischer well increases as the hole approaches the 4000-foot mark. At 4175 feet the well is showing a brown shale, a change from the gas sand at 4350 feet. The prediction now is a small well near the 4500-foot mark.

AT LONG BEACH.

New production at Long Beach is about to be delivered by the Holmes Oil Company and the Union Oil Company. The Holmes Oil Company's No. 1, completed at 3185 feet, has been bailed down and shows promise of making a 1000-barrel well. The Union Oil Company's Community No. 1, drilled to 3300 feet, was given a chance to flow and came in a 2000-barrel well. This is the Union's first Long Beach production.

The San Martinez Oil Company has succeeded in getting one of its wells on clean oil production. Frye No. 1, completed at 3506 feet, is making 300 barrels of clean oil, 26 gravity.

The Tehmescal Oil Company has taken a prominent place in the development of the Long Beach field and is making an enviable record. The Tehmescal put on production its No. 1, a 1000-barrel well, a couple of months ago. Since that time the company has started its second well, put up a rig for a third and made a location for a fourth well.

The Transport Oil Company, headed by former Lieut.-Gov. A. J. Wallace, is about to break into the producing list at Long Beach. The Transport has a well drilling in the heart of the west side and there is reason to believe it will bring a 2000-barrel well.

DEEP TEST WELL.

Richfield has a test well drilling at close to 5500 feet that is interesting. The deep well is the property of the Standard Oil Company and is located on the Kellogg property. The formation for several hundred feet has been running in gritty sand and there seems to be no possibility of getting a producer now. Few wells in Southern California have become commercial producers below 4500 feet. The test will undoubtedly satisfy the operators in the east end of the Richfield district on deep-well outlooks.

In the old Whittier field interest has been revived by the starting of well No. 5 by the Whittier Oil Company. No. 5 has been located near No. 5, regarded as the best producer in the field. It is understood that the Comanche Oil Company plans on getting into the Hideout Heights section of the field soon. The Comanche has closed a lease for property adjoining the Whiting on the northeast line.

Drilling by the Standard Oil Company at Buena Park is not causing any special excitement. The test well is close to 3400 feet and as yet has not shown any strong indications of oil. A few weeks ago an attempted excitement was started by some one saying that the well was looking good. A lot of people in the commercialties the work of the Standard Oil Company to such an extent that it often becomes disgusting to this big oil company.

SANTA FE SPRINGS

Santa Fe Springs drilling conditions for the week show that the Amalgamated Oil Company is next for production honors. The Amalgamated has Butterworth No. 5 in the oil sand at 4450 feet and is making up strong. The Amalgamated's Jordan got a nice showing of oil at 3527 feet.

Geo. F. Getty's Nordrum well did not break into big production last week as expected. Drilled to 3581 and given a production try-out, the well produced nothing but gas. Getty has his No. 2 ready to spud in, and is starting a well on the Mitchell property north of the Santa Fe Springs Oil Syndicate.

The production of the General Petroleum Spring's 1 well has declined from 3000 barrels to less than 1000 barrels. The production is showing some emulsion and there is a suspicion that the water may be slowly breaking in on this well. The General Petroleum has the pride of the field in the way of producers. Two wells of the company are producing an aggregate of 8000 barrels. Santa Fe No. 1 making 4120 barrels and Santa Fe 2 holding steadily at 3725.

The Globe Petroleum Company, owner of the Brunson property, adjoining the General Petroleum's Springs 1, has started development work.

The Union Oil's outpost well, Farwell No. 1, now drilling at 4355, is not showing any particular encouragement. The gray sand formation has been running for several hundred feet. Gray sand below the 4000 mark is not encouraging for any well. The Union's Alexander No. 2 has been showing a little emulsion lately and with a decrease in production there is a suspicion that this well may be developing water.

The Nevada-Ventura is rigging up to drill the cement out at 3698. Prior to setting the pipe the Nevada-Ventura got an excellent showing of oil, and the drilling-out will be watched with great interest.

MONTEBELLO FIELD

The old Montebello field had a real surprise when a 300-barrel well was brought in by the Western Pacific Oil Company. The Western Pacific started drilling three years ago, had all the troubles catalogued in oildom, and finally completed a producer at 2930.

The Commanche Oil Company has its Calkins No. 1 ready to go on production at 4230 feet. The Commanche is endeavoring to duplicate the big well brought in by the St. Helen's Petroleum some months ago on the Eggleston property.

The Interstate Oil Company will prove up the extreme western end of the Montebello field with a well on the Monterey Land Company's property. The Interstate well is located west of the Standard Oil Company's Howard Smith 1.

In the Puente Hills the Mahala Oil and Gas Company is getting some excellent showings in its No. 2 well at depths ranging from 200 to 500 feet shallower than the test well No. 1. At 2900 No. 2 is showing better than No. 1 did at the time it was put on production at 4010 feet. No. 1 is now redrilling and deepening and is giving a lot of promise at 4200 feet.

The Jose Oil Company succeeded in finding the leak in the casing at No. 1 and has had the well passed for a production test by the State department.

IN IRVINE HILLS

The Wucherer-Gray interests, drilling two test wells in the Irvine Hills south of Newport, have reached a depth of 4200 feet on one well and 3600 on another. The deep well at 4200 is showing a brown shale and is looking about the same as it did at 4000 feet. The next 300 feet will determine the fate of the well.

The Long Beach Consolidated Oil Company has succeeded in getting its No. 1 at Newport down to 3900 feet. At this depth the tubing will be put in and a production test made. Recent showings led to the stopping of drilling and making the production test now.

Athens on the Hill is predicted now to be the next oil field of Southern California. Three of the largest oil-producing companies in the State are about to begin operations. The Union Oil Company has made two locations and will start work soon on the Wagner property. The Shell company and the Standard Oil Company have made two locations each. The Barndall Corporation will be the first concern to start actual work, having a rig under construction.

Seal Beach is all expectation now. The Henry R. Dabney Syndicate has set a string of ten-inch in its test well somewhere in the neighborhood of 3000 feet. It is understood that the showings have been exceptionally good and warranted the setting of pipe.

The Redondo field suffered a little setback when the Chanslor-Canfield Del Amo well fell off in production from 800 to 350 barrels. The sudden decline of the well is not believed to be due to the nature of the field, but because sand has come in and choked off the flow.

Woman Seriously Hurt When Auto Turns Turtle

As a result of an automobile accident early Sunday morning, Mrs. Annetta Clark, 630 Eva Terrace, is in the County Hospital in a critical condition. She suffered a possible fracture of the skull and serious internal injuries when a machine driven by J. D. Ward, 416 Turner street, turned over and rolled to the bottom of a hill at 800 Sierra street.

OUTING FOR POOR

King's Daughters Will Care for Forty Children

Continuing a policy adopted twenty-five years ago, the King's Daughters' Day Nursery at 132 North Clarence street, is making preparations for giving forty children a few weeks' outing at the beach. The organization has been caring for the children of working women. The King's Daughters' cottage is at Manhattan Beach, and the cost of caring for each child is placed at about $3. Mrs. George P. Lewis of 1353 West Thirtieth street is treasurer and is in charge of obtaining the necessary money for the enterprise.

REPORT MAY OIL OUTPUT

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, June 24.—Kern county's oil production figures for May have just been compiled and show that 4,626,347 barrels came from 5725 wells in the county. The daily average production amounted to 162,157 barrels, divided as follows:

Midway-Sunset, 126,195 barrels daily from 2657 wells.
Lost Hills-Belridge, 8492 barrels daily from 485 wells.
McKittrick, 6830 barrels daily from 347 wells.

During May twenty-eight rigs were erected in Kern county and twenty-seven new wells were completed. There were 143 wells being drilled at the time.

STOCKS INCREASED

May production by all companies in California, amounting to 257,276 barrels a day, established a new production record for the State and exceeded April production by 16,299 barrels a day. May shipments were 284,910 barrels a day, an increase of 3945 barrels a day as compared with April. Stocks were increased 2,246,404 barrels during the month.

Six new wells were started in Kern county last week, the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company leading the list with two holes in the Midway district.

A. W. Hunt and the Union Oil Company have each started a new well in the Kern River field. The Brookshire Oil Company has spudded in its No. 9 well in the Midway. In the Elk Hills the Belridge Oil Company has started another well in the western end of the district.

REDRILLING TEN WELLS

Ten redrilling and deepening jobs were started in fields of the county during the last ten days and a similar number of tests for water shutoff were recorded.

After a slump of months, activity has been renewed in the vicinity of Haselton, near Maricopa, where the earliest wells were discovered in the West Side fields. The new activity is due to the bringing in of a seventy-five-barrel well on the F. Welch property of the former Sunset Road Oil Company at a depth of 550 feet. Owing to the crude methods of drilling and inexperience in early days, this portion of the field was condemned.

About three years ago the Standard Oil Company proved that water could be controlled in the wells in that vicinity and a number of profitable wells were drilled.

The Welch property is under the direction of A. J. Pollak, who is making an effort to put the territory between Haselton and the Western Minerals property back on the oil map.

FIND GAS PRESSURE

Gas pressure so great that it raised water and oil 1700 feet in the casing and flowed over the top was encountered recently in the Assurance Oil Company's wildcat well in the Devil's Den, according to J. H. Jordan, an official who came to Bakersfield this week for supplies. The drillers recently passed through a twelve-foot oil sand at a depth of 1643 to 1655 feet.

The Western Petroleum Corporation has entered a shell formation in its test well in the western end of the Elk Hills, according to Thomas Bastian, superintendent. The well is down approximately 1900 feet.

A. L. Weill has been elected president of the Midway Oil Company, succeeding James Ogden of Bakersfield, who has disposed of his interests in the concern. J. D. Herskill was chosen vice-president and Alex Heyman was re-elected secretary.

BETTER ORE BEING FOUND AT MAGMA

Mine Being Put in Best of Shape for Economical Operation

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SUPERIOR (Ariz.) June 22.—One of the least-advertised mines of the Southwest is the Magma, considered by many mining men as the best small mine in Arizona. By "small" is meant only a mine of small area, this referring to the concentrated area of the company's present workings, for it has absorbed much ground in the past few years, giving opportunity not yet utilized for extensive lateral development. Just now depth appears to be aimed at. The shaft of 2500 feet is the deepest vertical shaft in the State, though closely approached by that of the United Verde at Jerome. Ore continues in bettering quality and broadening in width down to the bottom. While an immense quantity of concentrating ore is available, local interest especially attaches to a late development, a vein of bornite six feet wide that has sampled approximately one-half copper. On either side is much leached ground. This is only one item of riches, however. Another is a strong and separate vein of high-grade zinc, not worked at present, but constituting a reserve of value.

For some time past Manager Browning has been putting the mine in the best of shape for economical operation. Underground operation will be at minimum cost.

Unusual is the scheme of underground b/n separation of the several classes of ore. Economy also is obtained by use of the tunnel at the 500-shaft level.

While there is argument whether the new smelter in the end will prove economical, in view of the large cost of the improvement, there is agreement that the Magma is one of the new mines that can operate its own smelting plant without necessity for going elsewhere for flux, for it has its own carbonates and oxides, lime and iron, to make ideal charges for the reverberatory for which ground now is being cleared. In the past the Magma has been rather a high-cost mine. In the future, after about $5,000,000 has been spent on improvement, the tonnage and per pound costs are expected to be as low as known in any other Arizona copper mine.

"Brother" Tom Will Entertain Homeless Men

The birthday party is to be held tomorrow night at Midnight Mission on Los Angeles street between First and Second streets, to commemorate the fifth anniversary of the founding of "Brother" Tom Liddicoat's mission which has served as a haven for homeless and unemployed men regardless of creed or color.

The guests will probably total many hundreds of derelicts and homeless men who loiter along the gutters of Los Angeles street. A full meal will be the big feature of the party.

CRISIS AHEAD FOR GERMANY

Teutonic Capitalists See No Relief in Sight

Say Reparaton Obligations Must Change

Standardization of Mark is Imperative

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, June 25.—Despite the decline to the lowest point on record the position of the mark is not hopeless if the Allies awaken to the true nature of the situation and act accordingly. Herr von Glasenapp, vice-president of the reichsbank, told the Tribune correspondent today.

There is not the slightest doubt, however, that unless the Allies agree to a radical revision of the reparations problem and the cost of the Army of Occupation, which Germany must bear this country will find itself in the throes of the severest financial and economic crisis which may shatter the governmental structure. Herr Glasenapp declared also that the compulsory internal loan which Germany undertook to carry out as demanded by the Allies will produce a severe crisis in the money market, unless accompanied by measures on the part of the Allies looking toward a reduction of Germany's obligations.

PAPER MONEY IMPERATIVE

"Germany cannot discontinue the issue of paper money, however much she might desire to do so," said Herr Glasenapp, "because she must continue buying foreign currency to meet reparations obligations. Germany cannot continue drawing on her depleted stock of gold to meet these payments.

"The Reparations Commission asks Germany to reduce her internal expenditures. We shall do all possible because it is to our interest to do so, but the Reparations Commission should not forget that the cost of keeping up the Allied armies of occupation totals 125,000,000,000 marks annually which is greater than our entire budget."

SUGGESTION WELCOMED

Referring to the commission's demand that the reichsbank be made independent of the government, Herr Glasenapp welcomed this suggestion although he said he doubted whether this would have the desired effect declaring "there can be no real autonomy of the reichsbank until reparations are revised radically, for so long as Germany's obligations remain as they are, the government will always be compelled to resort to the reichsbank's assistance to meet its payments. This means the reichsbank must go into the open market to purchase large stocks of foreign currency, which in turn drives down the mark, necessitating the further issue of paper money.

"I believe a sensible solution of the reparations problem, serving the best interests of both the Allies and Germany is still possible. Until this solution is reached all efforts to stabilize the German mark will be artificial and futile.

WHEAT OUTLOOK IS MOST SATISFYING

FRANCE EIGHTY MILLION BUSHELS SHORT WHICH MUST BE IMPORTED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, June 25.—Weather and crop news and carrying changes are the important factors in the grain trade, and are to be for some time. The country never looked better at this time of the year, which tends to create a bearish feeling in certain quarters, but grain traders have given too much attention to selling scenery and a change has come within the last ten days.

There have been too high temperatures scattered over the leading grain States with too little moisture for the high condition of crops to be maintained, and while the winter wheat crop is regarded as made temperatures of 100 and over the greater part of the last week have injured the crop by shriveling the berry and reducing quality.

DETAILED REPORTS

The trade is looking for some reduction in the July report of the government due Monday, July 10, at the regular time. The Kansas reports show injury especially to the late germinated wheat. Spring wheat conditions are most favorable, but there are dry spots in South Dakota and Southern Minnesota and Canada needs rain and black rust exists in North Dakota, although no damage has resulted so far.

Speculative trading has broadened in wheat futures, and with a great deal of covering by short values have advanced 7⅝ cents on July, 7¼ on September and 7 cents on December from the low point of the previous week.

The market has absorbed several millions of hedges put out against purchases of new wheat to arrive, which was offset in a measure by removal of hedges against cash sales for milling and export. This helped to advance prices in connection with a covering movement, and sentiment among the speculative trade has become more bullish, while cash interests are emphatically bearish.

EUROPEAN SHORTAGE

Foreign crops are spotted. There is a deficit of 80,000,000 bushels wheat in France, which will have to be imported from other countries. There is no probability of a great excess of wheat supplies the coming season, but there is one factor that must not be overlooked, which has cut a figure in wheat consumption the last year. It is rye, of which there is 31,000,000 bushels this year, or 13,000,000 bushels more than last year, and there will also be a good carry over.

BOB MAXWELL INJURED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Bob Maxwell, who gained the endearing title of "Tiny" because of his enormous size and who is widely known because of his prowess as an all-American football player, was seriously injured today in an automobile accident.

MONEY USED IN BUILDING NEW PLANTS

Edison Company Stops Sale of Common Stock to Public

Sales of Edison common stock were discontinued Saturday. Since the Southern California Edison Company began selling its common stock to its consumers and employees in 1917, over $34,000,000 par value has been purchased by over 45,000 people. This money has been put into new construction, the major part of it having gone into the building of water power plants on Kern River, Big Creek and the San Joaquin River. It represents a part of the investment which the company has made during this time in water power development for electric generation and for distribution. The remainder has been derived from the sale of the company's bonds, which were for the most part negotiated in the east.

The sale of stock has been active for the last six months, culminating in "John B. Miller Week," during which employees of the company interested a large number in the purchase of stock. This work was in compliment to their president, John B. Miller. The week's work by employees increased the number of stockholders by over 11,000, according to preliminary figures. Just what the total sales will amount to, and how many new stockholders were secured during the "John B. Miller Week" cannot be definitely stated until the office force has had time to tabulate the subscriptions.

Aged Painter, Ill, Ends Life by Shooting

W. H. Kline, aged 70 years, a painter living at 6642 Lexington avenue, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself. It is said that the man had been suffering from a serious malady for a long time, and that despondency over his condition is responsible for the action.

Kline is survived by a widow and two children. The family has lived in Southern California for the last fifteen years. Definite arrangements for the funeral, which will be conducted at the parlors of Strother and Dayton, have not been made.

PICKPOCKET ESCAPES

Victim Chases Light-Fingered Crook Through City Streets

After following a negro pickpocket for several blocks yesterday John Conlin, 410 North Chicago street, lost the man, who had previously taken his purse, which contained $16 in money and $100 in checks.

The robbery occurred as Conlin was boarding a Brooklyn-avenue car at Fifth and Main streets. He was bumped by the negro as he entered the street car. At Fourth and Main streets the negro left the car. Conlin followed him until he came to a near-by pool hall, where the trail was lost.

GASOLINE BILL OF NATION HIGH

Increase of Cent a Gallon Hits Consumers

Congress Will Investigate High Prices

Output Exceeds Demand, It is Asserted

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) June 20. On the basis of the average daily consumption for 1921, figured at the recent price of 23 cents per gallon, the gasoline bill of the people of the United States amounts to almost $3,500,000. An advance of 1 cent adds $122,726 to the daily gasoline bill of the nation. A few months ago the price of gasoline was as low as 21 cents. The increase of 7 cents has meant a daily toll of $846,084 levied on consumers, which amounts to the tidy sum of $316,120,900 a year.

During the first three months of the present year the average daily consumption of gasoline, including export, was 11,883,333 gallons, while the daily production averaged 14,612,487 gallons. On March 1 the reserve stock on hand amounted to approximately 854,000,000 gallons. During 1921 the average consumption was 13,884,313 gallons per day, while production averaged 14,119,313.

SUPPLY EXCEEDS DEMAND

Just why there should have been this advance in the price of gasoline when there was an abundant supply on hand and production was running steadily ahead of consumption may be explained in the course of the investigation by the Senate Committee on Manufactures. It may develop that there was a good and sufficient reason for the advance, which hits almost every man, woman and child in the United States directly or indirectly.

On the other hand, the inquiry may prove that there is ample ground for the suspicion in the minds of some members of Congress that the price has been moved upward because producers of gasoline saw their opportunity to profiteer and have been taking advantage of it.

In view of the general decline in wages in all industries, it is not expected that the substantial addition to the nation's daily and annual gasoline bill will be attributed to increased labor costs. Labor, in this instance, may escape the indictment that has been brought against it repeatedly in connection with the problem of high prices since the early days of the European war.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED

In Congressional circles there are those who see a direct connection between the high price of gasoline and the enormous earnings of the Standard Oil Company, together with its subsidiary and associated interests, and other oil producers of the country. Senator McKellar of Tennessee was the first to introduce a resolution calling for an investigation, and it was adopted promptly by the Senate on May 13. Later Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, who is the chairman of the committee charged with conducting the inquiry, introduced another resolution which gives the investigators wider latitude and greater authority in order that the job may be a thorough one.

Your "OPPORTUNITY"

To make money in the Oil Business

John D. Rockefeller was once asked what the best way to make money in the oil business. He replied:

"Buy Land Ahead of the Drill"

That is exactly what we are offering you now. We have no stock for sale; we give you a deed to an undivided interest in five acres of land and a certain number of twenty acres of land located in the heart of the big producers in the northwestern slope of SIGNAL HILL.

The great Shell Company who "found" SIGNAL HILL are drilling this land now.

Our first well is drilling thru blue shale at 1000 feet and is expected to hit the oil sands today, and we will pay the royalties to the owners of the land thru the Western Savings Bank of Long Beach.

First royalties are expected not later than October 10th.

How Much of It Will You Get?

Our land is on a direct line between the two best some producers—the Shell Goddard, which produces 2100 barrels daily, and the Shell Andrews, which is about 2000 barrels daily—and within about two hundred feet of these wells.

It is also on a direct line between the Pan-Pacific and Temascal and the Shell Dobbins, which produces about 3500 barrels daily.

What others have made by buying oil land about the drill on SIGNAL HILL:

$4500.00 invested by Mr. McDavid for a five-acre tract about three years ago has increased to $1,500,000.00 in the 1-6 royalty.

$7500.00 invested by the Dobbins family three years ago pays approximately $900.00 per day now, and it is said the five-acre tract is today worth $3,000,000.

We think our land just as well located for oil as within about 500 feet of these wells.

How to Get to "Opportunity"

Call any of our offices and we will send for you or drive down yourself. Go out Long Beach Boulevard to Willowville, turn east on Willow street, and go two blocks to the other side of Cherry street boulevard to corner of Willow and Dawson streets. Or drive out Cherry street boulevard to the southern foot of SIGNAL HILL at Willow street, go east two blocks.

"I AM THE LAW" DISCLOSES FINE ACTING

By Grace Kingsley

The plush-chair adventurers are going to have the time of their lives this week if they attend either the California or Loew's, where brisk murder mystery stories are shown. The hot weather doesn't at all cramp the lively style of the celluloid troupes who take part, respectively, in "I Am the Law," which holds down the sheet at the California, and in "Arabian Love" at Loew's.

Perhaps it is largely the face-card cast which adorns "I Am the Law" at the California which drew the heavy crowds yesterday. Or maybe we give them credit for too much aestheticism. Perhaps it is because the fans have learned the California is cool in summer that they flocked—at any rate, they did.

Some very fine acting goes to the making of the picture, which was admirably directed by Edwin Carewe. Alice Lake's work as the heroine, beloved of hero and heavy alike, is not only the last word in naturalness, sincerity and flexibility of mood, but has a very genuine depth as well. I look upon Miss Lake as one of our finest screen actresses, and some day a producer is going to give her the great big chance which she deserves.

Kenneth Harlan is steadily improving, and both he and Gaston Glass lend their fine profiles to this play. Gaston Glass has a heavy role, while Noah Beery has a sympathetic part, in which he does just as fine work as he does in the villain roles where he throws the hero around so hard he breaks things with him. This seems to be a good idea—switching actors from heroes to heavies and vice versa, as it has the effect of adding real suspense. You keep wondering if the character really will turn out good instead of bad or vice versa.

"I Am the Law" is a stock pattern photoplay, Northwest Mounted Police Series No. 3-B, or thereabouts. It tells of the two brothers, one good, one a murderer. The good boy takes the blame for the bad boy's deed. The plot is varied a little by the fact that the good boy, being ill, thinks he is going to die anyhow.

There is, besides, the heroine, more sinned against than usual, and the adventuress, deftly played by Rosemary Theby.

A small trapper's role falls into the competent hands of the picturesque Hector Sarno.

The ingredients are so mixed that the heroine falls into the hero's arms at 1:30, 4:30, 8:30 and 11:30 at the close of the four respective unwindings of the tale.

But there is brisk action, and while it is likely that if you had three guesses you wouldn't fail to solve the plot's outcome before the first reel is over, there are spots which give you momentary pause. Very excellent photography.

"Arabian Love" is Hot Stuff at Lo

Why the name "Arabian Love?" There's little love lost among the Arabs. It really ought to be "Twenty-Love" for that is about the number who adore the heroine, and each has his own little game to play.

While "Arabian Love" does sound fairly torrid for the weather, still, however much your emotions may sizzle down at Loew's, you'll find the house deliciously cool.

And "Arabian Love" will keep you awake, not to mention that fascinating hero, Jack Gilbert.

The story is by Jules Furthman and it causes one to guess every minute. Its incidents are from the scenario barrel, too, but woven deftly and acted smartly. Jerome Storm was the megaphone god in the machine.

Arabian women of the desert had better unionize or they will find their jobs all gone, if we may judge from the number of picture plays in which white ladies are stolen by desert Arabs. However, there is always a nice, gallant white man somewhere around who goes to it that nothing happens to disturb the chemical purity of the heroine when the villain attacks, and so it is in "Arabian Love."

But there is a good deal of dirty work at the crossroads later with the attempt to rekidnap the heroine. Everybody gets kidnaped, in fact, and always quite unexpectedly.

You guess at once that it is the hero who murdered the heroine's husband while she was still a listless bride, and also that he did it for a very good reason. But the way to the end is marked by many little ingenious twists and quirks. So you are entertained, after all.

Jack Gilbert as the dashing and misunderstood gentleman who slays the wanton despoiler of his sister is charming and reveals all the talent the role permits. Barbara Bedford is convincing as the heroine with the multiple troubles. Barbara La Marr, a really brilliant actress, whom we used to see in vampire roles, has a real character in the jealous young Arabian girl. In love with the hero, her soul wars constantly between her love for him and her bitter hate for the woman whom he loves. She manages it all with very deft appeal, never losing your sympathy even when she is being rather a revengeful little girl.

Some of Miss La Marr's manners may be a bit too stiffly conventional for the oriental maid, but this is the only criticism.

Herschal Mayall brings dignity as well as genuine atmosphere to the role of the shiek. Other parts are nicely played.

The vaudeville part of the bill is above the usual Loew standard.

TOMMY MEGHAN'S NEXT

"The Man Who Saw Tomorrow," an orginal story by Perley Poore Sheehan and Frank Condon, will be the next vehicle for Thomas Meighan, Paramount star, and work will begin upon it on July 10th under the direction of Alfred Green.

EVER .. A .. BEAUTEOUS .. CHARMER

Star of "Domestic Relations" at Kinema

Katherine MacDonald

"Little Eva Ascends" Has Clever Motif

Comedy, pathos and extremely intimate sidelights on the backstage life of a barn-storming troupe running wild among the tanks all figure in "Little Eva Ascends," which is this week's feature at Clune's Broadway Theater. The accent is on the comedy, however, and the thing, though light, has a good deal of charm and some not too obvious satire.

The story concerns two boys whose mother is the rather passe star of the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company in question, and how they brought up in a strange town only to discover that their father, whom they supposed dead, was the leading citizen.

Separation from the troupe, rehabilitation in the eyes of the world as personified by the task town, love and prosperity follow in close order. And mother takes $10,000 to build an "opry" house, and fades away like the Arabs to parts unknown.

The funniest stuff is done by Gareth Hughes in the role of the younger lad, who has to play little Eva much against his masculine sense of proportion. The role becomes particularly onerous when, during his last performance, he sees his best girl watching him with horrified eyes from a near-by box.

And his Thespian career comes suddenly to a close when the ladder on which he stands during his "ascent to heaven" collapses and drops him through the scenery onto the stage.

The picture might be called "Little Eva Descends" but as college is probably better than barn storming on rickety ladders, let it go as is. Eva never does get to heaven, though, which is hardly surprising under the circumstances, but faintly disappointing.

AMERICAN BEAUTY AT THE KINEMA

The principal impression that I have regarding "Domestic Relations" this week at the Kinema Theater is that Katherine MacDonald is very beautiful. Personally I am quite satisfied, because I haven't seen Miss MacDonald on the screen for about six months, and in that time one can learn to anticipate viewing her in a picture.

"Domestic Relations" is a routine photoplay. Its theme is of the neglected wife. Or in this case, one should say, neglected wives, for there are two of them.

One, belonging to the grand monde, is played by Miss MacDonald; the other, who "lives across the river" or some such place, is delineated by Barbara La Marr. An attempt is made to contrast their lives and to weave their destinies together. Approximately the same coincidences are used to bring domestic tribulations to both.

The finish shows the husband of the poor wife attempting to wreak revenge upon the husband of the society woman. Disaster is averted, understanding is brought about and the play ends with the usual halo of happiness.

The characters are barely believable and the way their destinies are mingled is too casual and obvious to be especially attractive, but the picture manages to gloss the surface of its claptrappy situations so as to hold perhaps a fair interest for the beholder.

Miss MacDonald plays her role in her usual composed manner. Her best moments are those in which she reflects caprice. Certainly there is reason to hope that this star will be seen eventually in a lighter brand of stuff than tangled domestic plays.

Miss La Marr, the exotique, has a drab role as neglected wife No. 2, and she reveals moments of effectiveness in acting. William P. Carleton gives a fairly convincing portrait of a frigid and implacable jurist, while Frank Leigh does acceptable work with a character. Chet Withey directed.

Vocal solos on the Kinema program by Roy Smoot and Pauline Dreuske are appreciatively received.

Lloyd Hamilton puts over some lively comedy in "Poor Boy." It is not Hamilton at his very best, but nevertheless is thoroughly amusing. There is a clever variant on the familiar chase idea.

A SKIN GAME

Claire Windsor has just finished playing in "Brothers Under Their Skins," by Peter B. Kyne, at the Goldwyn studio, and she thinks "Broken Chains," in which she is now appearing, should have some sort of cuticle title also. The reason being that Claire has had to sacrifice several patches of her fair skin while a burglar snatched bracelets from her arms.

BOWL PROJECT GAINS

WELL-ARRANGED SCHEDULE FOR CONCERTS

By Edwin Schallert

Soloists and programs for the concerts at the Hollywood Bowl will probably be decided on this week. The final arrangements will be consummated on the return of Alfred Herts, conductor, Saturday.

The schedule of concerts during the first week has already been announced. The opening program will be given the evening of July 11, instead of the 10th, as originally anticipated. One reason is the desire not to conflict with the first presentation of the Pilgrimage Play. The other is owing to the permanent plan of having no concert on Monday evening, so that the musicians may have one day of rest.

The second concert during the first week will be given Friday night, July 14; the third, Saturday night, and the fourth, Sunday afternoon. Five concerts will be given the second week and thereafter the schedule will be six. These will take place Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights, and Thursday and Sunday afternoons.

A unique feature will be the children's programs, which will be presented at the Thursday afternoon concerts. From the character of selections played these will be a manifest attraction to the young people.

Upon his return Mr. Herts will probably make a selection of an assistant conductor. More likely, however, a project now being considered will be adopted. This is the giving of certain concerts with guest conductors. It is definitely stated, however, that Mr. Herts will lead four concerts each week.

Approximately $2800 was raised, in addition to the amounts previously subscribed, at the meeting and concert Saturday evening at the Hollywood Woman's Club House, according to Mrs. J. J. Carter, secretary of the Hollywood Bowl Association. She stated that the support for the concerts has been greater than for any previous Hollywood community event, and that everything promises a tremendous popularity for the music season.

The musical program at the club was given by Margaret Mosser Morris, lyric soprano; Frieda Peycke, in pianologues; Cornelia Rider-Pessart, pianist; Norma Gould, classic dancer; the Rosenfeld Trio, and Henry Svedrovsky, violinist.

ELLIS CLUB IN NATURE PROGRAM

Music of the sea and forest and brookside served to convey a refreshing atmosphere to the listener at the concert by the Ellis Club yesterday afternoon at Philharmonic Auditorium. The program, which was the closing one for this season, and drew a large though not a capacity attendance. The attractions of nature in the real were probably greater for some than those represented in song on so warm a day.

Most pleasing among the smaller numbers were "A Song of the Three Seasons," by Archer y Duna" (the off-setter) the "Gypsy Song" from Herbert's "Fortune Teller," arranged for chorus, and "Bells of St. Mary's" by Adams, which was encored. The most worth-while composition on the program was Carl Busch's "The Brown Heather," which, while having a remote theme in its text, contains remarkably inviting music that is also singularly free from the more academic traits.

"The Brown Heather" and "Forest Harps" by Edwin Schultz, were sung with orchestral accompaniment, provided by members of the Philharmonic. Tenor solos in both were sung with characteristic by Ralph Laughlin. B. L. Brown, baritone, was heard in "The Brown Heather."

The reception accorded Gertrude Auld Thomas, soprano, who was the special soloist of the day, was moderately impressive. Miss Thomas evidences a good legato quality and a breadth of tone, but lacks in brilliance and flexibility. This was especially to be observed in "Madame Butterfly" aria. She manifested pleasingness and feeling in her rendition of "Nina" by Wekerlin. "Le Miroir" by Ferrari and the folk songs of her group.

The club showed a tendency to slip off the pitch, or rather failed to get on it at the start of several numbers. They attained some very excellent effects in the Busch and other favored numbers.

While he failed to overcome the technical flows mentioned J. B. Boulin interpected his program attractively. Mrs. M. Hennan Robinson is again to be credited with superior accompaniments.

LLOYD AVERAGES A HIGH RECORD HERE

The start of the seventh week of Harold Lloyd's first five-reel production at the Symphony yesterday brought to light another freak record set by Lloyd, and it is doubtful if any other screen player has had such a unique experience.

Last October the premiere of Lloyd's thrill classic, "Never Weaken," was given, and on the first of the year "The Sailor-Made Man" followed. On May 13 "Grandma's Boy" opened.

"Never Weaken" played to excellent business for over six weeks. "Sailor-Made Man" was good for a seven-week run, and so far "Grandma's Boy" will have run seven weeks, making a total of over twenty weeks in the space of thirty-five weeks that Lloyd productions have played to capacity business.

The attendance mark at the end of the sixth week of "Grandma's Boy" is in excess of the attendance mark at the end of the seventh week of "Sailor-Made Man."

"WHILE SATAN SLEEPS"

"While Satan Sleeps," adapted from Peter B. Kyne's masterwork, "The Person of Panamint," with Jack Holt playing the part of a convict who poses as a parson in order to "clean up" in Panamint, is to show today at Grauman's Rialto. This is a premiere, and as an accompaniment to the production, a bathing-girl revue will be presented.

EYTON BUSY AGAIN

Charles F. Eyton, general manager of the Lasky Studio, has returned with Mrs. Eyton (Kathlyn Williams) from a trip to China and is again at his desk. During his absence the post was filled by Victor H. Clarke. This having been Mr. Eyton's first vacation in a number of years, he enjoyed the rest and relaxation greatly.
